HARVARD ELEVEN DEFEATS OREGON BY POINT MARGIN

Crimson Triumphs, 7 to 6, in Thrilling Contest Before Throng at Pasadena.

VICTORS CROSS RIVALS' LINE

Touchdown and Goal Made by Easterners, While Losers Get Two Goals from Field.

SCORING IN SINGLE PERIOD

Machines Hold Each Other Pointless Save in Second Quarter—Casey and Horweens Shine.

Special to The New York Times.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—Harvard succeeded this afternoon in breaking the string of defeats registered against Eastern football teams visiting this section by beating Oregon on the Tournament of Roses field by the score of 7 points to 6. Although the breaks, both deserved and otherwise, went against the Crimson, the eleven which came here from Cambridge less than a week ago got in its scoring punch early and then playing on its nerve outgeneraled the opposing team during the final half, the portion of the game in which Oregon, in fact all the West, expected the visitors to go to pieces.

Just as had the previous visitors from Brown and Pennsylvania, Harvard started raggedly enough but by putting a new series of open plays into effect acquired enough points to bring home the victory. The Cambridge players grew steadier as the game progressed, although the weakness of the Oregon kickers proved their real undoing.

Oregon started its tallying early in the second period, when all the points were made. The second play of the quarter found "Bad Bill" Steers directing an easy drop kick over the bar from the 25-yard line. Steers had been doing some wonderful work up to this time, and a few plays later was helped off the field after he had been madly tackled by Arnold Horween, who shared with Eddie Casey the offensive as well as defensive honors of the game. Ralph Horween's work also stood out until his bad shoulder forced him to the sidelines.

Passes Aid the Crimson.

Harvard's points were made after Murray had caught Steers's punt on the 40-yard line. Passes similar to those which Casey handled against Princeton and Yale for his scores which tied the Tiger and defeated the Elis brought the Crimson along forty yards, with Murray passing the ball twice.

A. Horween furnished a fine bit of line bucking and Freddie Church, who has been out of the game much of the season and who has been recommended for his letter although not taking part in the Yale game, circled wide, with Arnie Horween and Casey taking out Howard, and Murray holding off Brandenberg, and scored after a fifteen-yard run.

Oregon's final score was made by Manerud on a drop kick after the ball had been carried from the Westerners' 40-yard line, chiefly by off-tackle plays. Steers and Manerud both lost two other chances to score on drop kicks. Two of these were blocked only to be recovered by their teammates.

Huge Crowd Early on Scene.

At 2 o'clock practically every seat in the box-like structure was filled, more than 30,000 spectators having filtered in straggling streams into the stands.

On the west side of the field Harvard had two sections of rabid rooters, who arose en masse to greet Captain Billie Murray and his cohorts as they trotted onto the field for practice. The Oregon enthusiasts were quartered directly opposite the Harvard contingent just as the Eli's are in the big classic of the East, and vied with the visiting Cantabrigians in tumult as they welcomed Captain Brandenberg and his burly bearer of the lemon-yellow.

At quarter past two an airplane containing a movie comedian swooped low over the gridiron and dropped a pigskin ovoid, decorated with the colors of both teams, which was to be used to start the game. The south goal was entwined with the Oregon colors and its mate at the other end of the field was bedecked with the crimson. Harvard wore numbers for the first time in its football history, large white numerals, as did also the Oregon team.

Murray Wins the Toss.

Harvard felt it a good omen when Captain Murray called the toss of the coin and chose the south goal and the right to receive the kickoff. Steers kicked off to R. Horween, who ran five yards to Harvard's 25-yard mark. Howard recovered a Harvard fumble on the latter's 40-yard line. One rush failed, and then Huntington ran to Harvard's 22-yard line, but Oregon was caught holding and set back to the 40-yard line. Huntington made a yard and Steers added four. Steers's pass went wide and his attempt for a drop-kick goal went five yards wide of the bars.

Casey made two yards for Harvard and in the next play R. Horween punted to Jacobberger on Oregon's 40-yard cross-

FLORIDA LIMITED TRAINS
From New York via Pennsylvania Railroad, Seaboard Air Line Railroad and Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, will be inaugurated on Monday, January 5. The "Seaboard Florida Limited" will leave Pennsylvania Station, New York, 6:20 P. M., and the "Florida Special," at 6:30 P. M. No coach passengers will be carried. An extra fare will be charged on the "Florida Special," which will provide baths, barbers, valets, ladies' maids and secretaries. Each train will carry through sleeping cars to Jacksonville, Palm Beach, Miami, Key West, St. Petersburg.—Advt.

Berlin to Use Sleeping Cars in Caring for Hotel Overflow

BERLIN, Jan. 1. — Beginning with the new year, tourists unable to obtain accommodations in hotels here will receive offers of quarters for the night in sleeping cars sidetracked at the main stations. An endeavor will thus be made to meet the increasing influx of strangers.

Travelers arriving late at night and intending to leave the next morning will have preference in the reservations, which at present comprise 600 berths.

The Railroad Administration says that it is not intended to compete with hotels, although it announces that the prices for the berths will be kept within a moderate range.

HYLAN DENOUNCES ALL WHO 'POKE IN'

Attacks Merchants' Association and Chamber of Commerce In New Year's Address.

HITS FINANCIAL INTERESTS

Insinuates That City Government Is Embarrassed by Men Seeking Personal Gain.

At a reception given yesterday to Mayor Hylan in the City Hall by several commissioners and deputy commissioners and their wives and friends, the Mayor made a bitter attack upon the City Club, the Merchants' Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Bureau of Municipal Research and other organizations which he said are controlled by a few men allied with powerful financial interests, who "poke into city affairs" and who try to embarrass public officials.

The Mayor said that many prominent and presumably respectable men of the city make it their business "to keep the city in such financial straits that the city must necessarily borrow a great deal of money to finance its activities." These men, he said, are prepared to lend substantial sums to the municipality at a good rate of interest "thereby reaping great profits which must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers." He included in his denunciation "cliques, rings and combinations" which have grown "more powerful than the Government itself because of their control of public officials," but he did not name the cliques or the public officials who are controlled by them.

Mayor Recalls Own Inauguration.

The large reception hall adjoining the Mayor's office was filled with men and women when the Mayor and Mrs. Hylan entered soon before noon. The Mayor greeted the gathering with a "Happy New Year everybody. Take a seat." There was no cheering, but several shook hands with the Mayor, who shouted:

"You would almost think it was Jan. 1, 1918, when I took office. That's the day the plums were handed out."

There was silence for a few seconds. Then Grover A. Whalen, formerly the Mayor's Secretary, who now is Commissioner of Plant and Structures, remarked:

"We have only peaches here today."

When the laughing had subsided the Mayor reached into his pocket and drew out a manuscript, saying:

"I thought I would impose upon you by saying a few words."

The Mayor then read his attack upon the various organizations which have criticised his administration. He began by saying that when he took office the more important departments of the city "were in a most dilapidated, disorganized and demoralized condition." The whole city administration, he said, was in control of individuals "whose sympathies were not with the people, but with those whose business and object it was to secure special consideration and special privileges for the political and financial manipulators, as well as the public utilities and other corporate interests."

Visionary Undertakings Discarded.

The Mayor said it took considerable time to reorganize many of the departments, to relegate "theoretical and visionary undertakings" to the scrap heap and pursue a strictly common sense business policy.

"In assuming office," he said "it would have been an easy matter for all of us to have followed the beaten path, to have taken the lines of least resistance by being subservient to the self-seeking interests, the traction trust and the monopolies, to have permitted the city to remain the experiment station of the faddists and theorists in visionary schemes of municipal government, to have allowed as heretofore the operations of the city Government to be directed by counterfeit reform and research organizations, and to have had the policies of the administration dictated by representatives of predatory wealth and municipal funds diverted to private channels.

"Public officials elected to high and important office by the people should exercise the prerogatives of their offices without fear or favor and allow no agency to influence their action or swerve them from their duty to the municipality.

"In almost every municipality powerful cliques, rings, and combinations of

REDS SWEEP ON IN SWIFT PURSUIT OF DENIKIN ARMY

PUSH ON IN TRANSCASPIA

ESTHONIA SIGNS A TRUCE

Is Recognized by Moscow Soviet and Freed of All Former Obligations to Russia.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The capture of Ekaterinoslav, on the Southern Russian front, and Novomoskovsk, fifteen miles northeast of Ekaterinoslav, is announced in a Bolshevist official statement issued today.

Another Bolshevist communication received later says:

"The enemy was expelled from the town of Cherkassy. We advanced to a line ten versts southwest of Ekaterinoslav. In the direction of Tagan Rog we occupied Ilovayskoye and a series of villages to the east.

"On the Trinka and Meus Rivers our cavalry captured 2,000 prisoners, three armored trains and other booty. We have reached a line on the Kamenka River, forty versts southwest of Lugansk."

The Bolsheviki have occupied Marinsk, east of Tomsk, on the Siberian front, the statement adds.

The position of General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, is daily becoming more critical. Reports received by the War Office show that his retreat is continuing along virtually the whole of his yppamile front, and that the Bolshevist drive against his center, with the purpose of cutting his army in two, has brough about a critical situation.

Reds Reach Donetz Coal Basin.

The Bolshevist advance guards have reached the Donetz coal basin and are less than 100 miles from the coast. This basin represents the richest mineral section of Russia and its acquisition by the Reds would be of inestimable value to them.

The Bolsheviki evidently have succeeded in brilliantly concentrating overwhelming forces against Denikin's somewhat thinly held center and are exploiting their advantage to the fullest degree.

Another threatening situation exists in Transcaspia, where the Bolsheviki claim that they have occupied Djebel station, eighty miles east of Krasnovodis, in their advance toward that town. Red reinforcements continue to arrive in the Nerv region of Transcaspia from Central Russia. This makes the menace along the Persian and Afghan borders critical.

The Red propaganda is increasing in intensity, and all the evidence indicates that the Soviet Government entertains far-reaching anti-British designs in Central Asia.

The War Office report says that it may be considered that General Kolchak has ceased to be a factor in Russian military affairs.

Kolchak Forces Hold Irkutsk.

IRKUTSK, Dec. 28 (Associated Press). —Irkutsk is in a state of siege. Martial law was declared following the uprising of Social Revolutionary troops on Dec. 24, during which they captured the railway station, but were unable to take the city from the Kolchak forces. Peace is being preserved by the Czechoslovak troops. The Americans in Irkutsk are safe and will be evacuated to Verkhne-Udinsk, 100 miles east of Irkutsk.

Communication across the Angara River is difficult because of the cutting of the pontoon bridge, and American Red Cross boats are the only means of transportation.

Several of the Cabinet Ministers have been arrested. The revolutionary forces are in virtual control of the railroad from Irkutsk westward to Krasnoyarsk, but no serious outbreaks have been reported.

Admiral Kolchak is said to be at Achinsk, 220 miles east of Tomsk.

DORPAT, Jan. 1.—Last night I witnessed the signing of an instrument agreeing to the cessation of hostilities between Esthonia and Soviet Russia. Last night's decision, arrived at after prolonged deliberation, means that Soviet Russia's professions of good faith are to be given a month's trial. It is true that the cessation is technically only for a week, after which it is terminable by either party giving twenty-four hours' notice, but the point to note is that a full armistice or preliminary peace, deliberations to which end commence forthwith, must be ratified by

President Signs McNary Sugar Control Bill; Tumulty Says Prices May Soon Decline

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Announcement was made at the White House today that President Wilson signed the McNary Sugar Control bill last night after a talk with Secretary Houston, who had conferred earlier in Philadelphia with members of the Sugar Equalization Board.

In announcing the President's action, Secretary Tumulty stated that it was doubtful, however, whether the President would exercise the power granted by the new law for the purchase of Cuban sugar. The statement of Mr. Tumulty reads:

"The President has signed the Sugar Control bill. This bill confers discretion on the President in the matter of purchasing sugar from Cuba. It is doubtful whether it will be practicable or wise for the President to exercise the power conferred so far as the purchase and distribution of sugar are concerned. Some of the Cuban sugar has already been purchased, and there is no central control over sugar in Cuba as there was last year, and it might therefore be impossible for the Government now to step in and purchase the sugar without increasing the price to the consumer. The bill, however, continues the licensing power also, and this power may be used to assist in controlling profiteering among distributers. Much Cuban sugar is coming in now, and the indications are that prices have reached their peak, and that there will be a tendency for prices to fall in the next few weeks."

Under the new law the Sugar Equalization Board is continued in power for a year. The board recently sent a report to the President, recommending that it be allowed to dissolve, and there were intimations that the board would resign, if the McNary bill became a law. The understanding is that Secretary Houston's conferences smoothed out all differences and that the board will continue to serve under the new law.

TWO HUNDRED REDS TAKEN IN CHICAGO

State's Attorney Says He Was Hindered by Federal Authorities in Raids.

ASSERTS RADICALS GOT TIP

Wholesale Plot Hatched to Overthrow United States Government, He Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—In a series of raids exceeding 300 in number, in which upward of 200 prisoners were taken, State's Attorney Hoyne and his staff of assistants started the new year in Chicago with a determination to wipe out Bolshevism and anarchy in this community, for years the centre of the nation's radical activities. Beginning promptly at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and continuing far into the night, scores of raiding parties descended alike upon open and secret gathering places of the dozen or more radical cults existent in the city, and nearly 300 Reds had been gathered within the police net, according to the latest returns.

This was accomplished without the cooperation of the Federal authorities in the Department of Justice, and not only against their wishes but with active hindrance from them, according to the State's Attorney. He charged that not only had the Government, for some inexplicable reason, withdrawn their aid, but that the Reds "without any question had been tipped off by some employe or attaché of the Department of Justice."

Plans for the raid had been under way for five months, but had been carefully concealed, according to Mr. Hoyne. He personally made several trips to Washington, where, he said, he arranged complete harmony between the Department of Justice, the Military Intelligence Department and his office.

A week ago, according to Mr. Hoyne, John C. Creighton, special assistant to the Attorney General, came to Chicago to handle the litigation growing from the raids, when it planned that federal and local authorities would co-operate, the Department of Justice looking toward deportation of alien radicals and the local authorities acting under the recently passed Illinois Syndicalist law, making it a criminal offense against the State to preach destruction of the Government by force.

Mr. Hoyne states that he was subsequently notified that the Department of Justice would not co-operate in the raids, and was requested not to proceed, but he went ahead, because his plans had been laid.

Among those arrested were Arthur Proctor, Chairman of the local Communists' Labor Party; Fanny Grovorsky, well known New York City radical; James W. Crowley, Secretary of one of the Chicago I. W. W. locals; Roscoe T. Simms, negro member of the National I. W. W. Executive Board; Morris Stollar and Edward N. Titus, both prominent in I. W. W. circles, and scores of other radicals affiliated with various organizations.

Tons of literature, red flags, and pictures of Lenin and Trotzky were seized in various places.

State's Attorney Hoyne, who conducted the raids, offered some severe criticism of Attorney General Palmer for the latter's failure to co-operate, charging that he seemed to be playing petty politics.

Plan Overthrow of Government.

In a statement, issued late tonight, Mr. Hoyne said:

"A gigantic conspiracy has been formed throughout the United States to overthrow the United States Government, and the headquarters of many of the Red organizations in this conspiracy are located in Chicago.

"My investigation discloses that the centre of the activities of this criminal conspiracy are Chicago, New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Seattle.

"The conspirators proposed to establish in this country a Soviet form of Government, patterned after the present form of Government in Russia. They proposed to seize the industries, the business, and the national resources of the country by direct action, which means action taken through their organization by force in total disregard of law. They propose they shall rule politically and industrially and that rule of the proletariat be established.

"They proposed 'councils' which are military units and which they call 'the

TAKING OF CENSUS WILL BEGIN TODAY

86,000 Enumerators to Start Nation-Wide Canvass at 9 o'Clock—4,000 in City.

VAST MASS OF DATA SOUGHT

Officials Urge Public to Help Work by Answering All Questions Frankly.

Uncle Sam starts to count his family at 9 o'clock this morning. At that hour, some 86,000 persons will begin ringing doorbells throughout the country and asking people questions as to sex, color or race, age, domestic state and other things. Every person is required by law to answer truthfully.

To an extent never before attempted, this year's census—the fourteenth decennial count of noses—will take account of the foreign-born population. Such questions as the year of immigration, whether naturalized or not, the mother tongue or native language, and the language of each parent are designed to afford data for a timely and searching analysis of the alien proportion of the population. The present census also involves a more careful general analysis of parentage and of occupation than has been attempted before.

The taking of the census is to be completed in fifteen days, but it will be months thereafter before the results are tabulated, and the number of persons, horses, cattle, farms, factories and various other information obtained can be announced.

Census Bureau officials believe the United States census furnishes a degree and variety of information obtainable in no other country. Surprise has been expressed at the lack of such information in the great countries of Europe. Though such nations as Great Britain and Italy from time to time have invited American experts to organize a bureau or institution to collate reliable general statistics, the work each time has languished.

Discussing in this city a few days ago the value of the census to the nation, the bureau heads pointed to its use in framing legislation, in furnishing a basis for economic data upon which revenue systems may be predicated, in disclosing the relative importance of various industries, both to the nation and to more restricted localities, and to giving a basis for the calculation of really accurate health and vital statistics. In countless ways, they say, the United States is "aware of itself" as is no other nation.

Asks Public to Co-operate.

In a plea for public co-operation during the work Sam L. Rogers, Director of the Census, when he visited New York this week said:

"The enumeration of the population during a census always presents difficulties, among them the apprehension by the people, particularly those of foreign extraction, that their answers will cause increased taxation, legal entanglements, or other consequences injurious to them.

"It is hoped that clergymen, editors, school teachers, employers, agricultural agents, and others will grasp every opportunity to correct erroneous opinions about the census. The act of Congress providing for the census makes it the duty of all persons to furnish the information asked for. No persons should hesitate, neglect, or refuse to answer fully and accurately all the enumerator's questions.

"Keepers of hotels, apartment houses, boarding or lodging houses or tenements must assist the enumerator in getting information concerning the persons living in such hotels and houses."

Recognizing that for many reasons New York presents the census takers' greatest problem, Mr. Rogers supervised the organization of nearly 5,000 persons who will work under the following four supervisors:

First—Samuel L. Foley, ex-State Senator, Manhattan, Army Building, Thirty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue; Greeley 110.

Second—Francis Fischer, lawyer, the Bronx, 953 Southern Boulevard. Intervale 7887.

Third—Arthur C. Dore, newspaper man, Brooklyn and Richmond, Offerman Building, Fulton and Duffield Streets; Main 7867.

Fourth—Rodman Richardson, lawyer,

DIVINELY INSPIRED TO BEAT GERMANS, FOCH DECLARES

Marshal Believes That He Was Guided from on High in Great Crises.

BROODED REVENGE SINCE '70

"How Did I Win the War? By Smoking My Pipe and Refusing to Get Excited."

HIS ESTIMATE OF GERMANS

Kaiser a Stage Coach Driver Running an Express Train—Help from Napoleon's Campaigns.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—In a remarkable interview published here today Marshal Foch says he was divinely inspired to defeat the Germans and that the allied victory was willed by God.

"When," says Marshal Foch; "in a historic moment a vision is given to a man and when in consequence he finds that this vision has determined movements of enormous importance in a formidable war, I believe that this vision—and I think I had it at the Marne, on the Yser and on March 26—comes from a providential power in the hand of which one is the instrument, and I believe that the victorious decision was sent from on high by a will superior and divine."

In religion Marshal Foch is a devout Catholic.

The allied leader also reveals that from boyhood, when he saw Germany defeat France, he had lived for but one purpose, and that was to humble the power that had humbled his country.

All the world knows Marshal Foch as a soldier. The allied statesmen and the Germans, too, have come to know him as no mean diplomat. But how many know him as a philosopher? This is the side of his character which is pictured by his acquaintance, André Demaricourt, in the Echo de Paris.

"From the age of 17," Foch says, "I dreamed of revenge, after having seen the Germans at Metz. And when a man of ordinary capacity concentrates all of his faculties and all of his abilities upon one end and works without diverging, he ought to be successful. There are, of course, conditions. He ought to be objective and never subjective. I contend he ought not to get lost in passing impressions. Facts alone count, and he ought to devote himself to facts.

"I Did It by Smoking My Pipe."

"How then did I win the war? I did it by smoking my pipe. I mean to say by not getting excited, by reducing everything to its essential, by avoiding useless emotions, by concentrating all my strength on my job.

"Was this job difficult? Possible it was. Our war you see was a very curious war. It was a battle of governments. To speak only of ourselves—we had confronting our French Republic, with its profound national sense, the Kaiser, a man intelligent, perhaps, but not very intelligent, a bluffer, a man of hasty action, and for that reason a bad judge of his acts.

"Germany, it is true, had a super army and professional soldiers of the first rank, but she lacked a Moltke. He would never have started the war without trying to neutralize Russia, and if he would have had to swallow that pill, believe me, he would have conducted the war differently. The Kaiser served us in good stead, for an express train was intrusted to a stage coach driver.

"I am often asked if I really believed the war would be a long one. I know nothing about that. It wasn't my business.

"It is a loss of time, thought, and strength to speculate at the expense of the needs of the hour. I have always sought to do my work according to the formula 'sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.' When one philosophizes too much on the consequences of the act one thinks he ought to perform one loses one's footing, also one's strength.

"I permitted myself two emotions because they were agents of power. It was necessary to face the idea of defeat and to face the idea of victory.

"Look at what defeat meant. The sacrifices had been bloody, cruel, and more than cruel. They pointed out the superior duty. They ought not to be useless. If we did not succeed, I said to myself, all would smash. That could not be.

"The idea of victory—it had to be at all costs. 'Je la veux.' I wished it, yes, but that was easily said. To gain it it was necessary to recognize that the war of human beings never changes in essence. It varies only in its tools. I remember that before Arcola, the master Napoleon had said, 'I must get out of Verona,' and he had been beaten several times.

"On the Marne I did not forget this advice. I had been beaten and I said to myself, 'I will be beaten four times or five times if need be, but I will survive.'"

Will to Conquer Is First.

"Above everything stands the will to conquer based upon confidence. But this will is nothing if it does not know how to use the means, and I do not speak only of myself when I say that it is there that hangs success or failure of the chief from the intellectual point of view."

The Marshal then goes on to tell

Berlin Bourse Becomes Lively on Expectations of Treaty

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—The Boerse today assumed a lively and firm tendency on the last day of 1919.

This was due chiefly to the understanding Germany had reached with the Entente with regard to the signing of the Peace Treaty and the expectation of better conditions for exports and imports.

BRITISH SCOUT FEAR OF GERMAN ATTACK

Officers Find That Present Forces Have No Power of Mobility, Lacking Supplies.

ABOUT 1,000,000 IN ARMS

Army of 100,000 Allowed by Treaty Considered Small—Danger in Irregular Forces.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Though there is no reason for any alarmist fears as to the recrudescence of Germany's military power in the immediate future, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that British officers who are in a position to know the true state of affairs see several elements in the situation that need careful watching.

At the present time the Germans are thoroughly war weary. Their armed forces have no power of mobility, and there is a great lack of petroleum, rubber, coal, rolling stock, and other necessities of modern war. Their regular army, or Reichswehr, today numbers about 400,000, and the land forces of the regular navy or Reichsmarine about 12,000.

Under the Peace Treaty the regulars must be cut to 100,000 by March 31, and in that competent military observers see the first real weakness in the future situation. The provision, they declare, is too stringent and may have a boomerang effect on the Allies. Germany is a large country and needs a certain military force as police, and if it is denied the right to maintain an adequate one it will be forced to find a substitute.

As a matter of fact, some British officers are inclined to consider this particular clause in the Peace Treaty another of the politicians' blunders. Lloyd George was hot against conscription. He has made a great point of his success in dealing a death blow to conscription in Europe but the French had no particular hatred of conscription as a national institution and had a very lively memory of the marvelous efficiency of England's "Old Contemptibles." From the purely safety point of view they would rather have seem Germany with some kind of national service than with a small, highly trained professional army on which it could build up rapidly as large a force as it needed if ever it wanted to renew the war. Consequently when Lloyd George got his way, the French were anxious to keep the Reichswehr down to the smallest possible figure with the result that it is now really inadequate for peace duties. Consequently the fear is expressed that Germany will be able to make out so good a case for maintaining various types of auxiliaries and military police that the Allies will be unable to protest and the power of Germany to create a formidable army by means of semi-military organizations is one of the most unmistakable lessons of history.

The Germans have today from 450,000 to 600,000 men enrolled in just such auxiliary units, and British officers are forced to admit that considering the state of the country they are justified in maintaining them. Of these from 150,000 to 200,000 belong to "Zeitfreiwilligen" organizations. They are local reserves to the regular army who are embodied only when some crisis arises when they are called up. They are armed, uniformed, and paid precisely as though they were ordinary soldiers. Their existence today is defended on the ground that in the present uncertain condition of affairs it is absolutely necessary that the authorities should have a body like the Royal Northwest Mounted Police of Canada on which to rely for the maintenance of order.

Then there are from 300,000 to 400,000 "Einwohnerwehren" or civic guards scattered through the centres of population. They are organized in local companies and are armed with rifles, revolvers and some machine guns, but wear a brassard on ordinary clothes instead of uniforms. They came into existence through the daring and violence of Spartacide outrages, and undoubtedly their one purpose at present is to prevent their homes being at the mercy of organized brigandage. Stories are told of entire patrols in certain localities being formed of Major Generals or Colonels, and as long as they confine themselves to the work of vigilance committees, none can find fault with them.

But what British officers fear is that these "Zeitfreiwilligen" and "Einwohnerwehren" organizations, just because they are necessary and harmless today, will give Germany an opportunity to repeat its military surprise of a century ago. It would be better, these observers declare, to permit it to have a regular army strong enough to maintain order and so enable the Allies to refuse to tolerate these auxiliary forces.

A good deal, however, depends on what rifles Germany retains. According to the Peace Treaty, all but 84,000 rifles and 18,000 carbines were to be sur-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The first definite step toward forcing the treaty of peace and the League of Nations issue into the national political campaign was taken today by the irreconcilable group of Senators and their adherents, when Senator William E. Borah of Idaho made public a letter he had written to Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, in which Mr. Lowden was asked to state clearly his position on the League and the future relations of this nation with Europe.

This letter is the first of a series which will be addressed to every aspirant for the Presidency whose position on these points has not been made clear. It is the intention also to sound out candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives. In the event that President Wilson does not run for a third term, candidates for the nomination on the Democratic as well as the Republican ticket will be asked to make declarations.

With the announcement of the Borah letter to Governor Lowden, the efforts of the Republican campaign managers to sidetrack the League of Nations as a major issue in the national campaign have been embarrassed. The movement which the irreconcilables have started gives promise of a serious rupture in the ranks of the Republican Party, if the candidates approached refuse to give satisfactory assurances to Mr. Borah and his followers.

For the present Senator Borah refuses to divulge the names of the men who are associated with him in the movement, but he said tonight that Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and his lieutenants had not been advised of the plan or consulted concerning the course to be followed. Mr. Hays has consistently sidestepped discussion of the League of Nations as an issue of the national campaign, and during the recent meeting of the Republican National Committee which was held here the League was studiously avoided as a topic for discussion by most of the political leaders.

Johnson and Poindexter with Him.

With Senator Borah in the movement, it is understood, are, among others, Senators Johnson of California and Poindexter of Washington, both avowed candidates for the Republican nomination for President. Senator Borah refused tonight to discuss what, if any, part they were playing in the movement, stating that he would prefer that other Senators speak for themselves.

Senator Borah said that the movement had been organized in at least six Atlantic and Middle Western States and that it was being organized in others. At present, he said, it was not believed to be wise to make public the names of others who were associated with him or to give details concerning the organizations which have been formed. The preliminary fight, he said, would be waged in the primaries which are to be held in more than a score of States. No one who has not answered the questions in Mr. Borah's letter satisfactorily, it appears, may hope to receive support from the organization which he represents.

At present the chief objects of attack are Governor Lowden and General Leonard Wood, neither of whom has given any definite statement concerning his position as to the League of Nations or other questions which Senator Borah develops in his letter to Governor Lowden. As other candidates who have not made their positions clear enough to satisfy the irreconcilables appear on the horizon, they will be questioned.

Senator Borah was asked tonight if he would send a letter to Senator Johnson.

"I don't think that is necessary," he said. "He has certainly made his position clear."

"How about Senator Harding?" he was asked.

"Senator Harding has defined his position fairly well. But there might be circumstances under which a letter would be sent to him.

Will Fight in the Primaries.

"We are determined," Senator Borah continued, "to obtain, if possible, a declaration from each candidate whose position is in doubt, upon the fundamental principles presented in my letter. We propose to avoid any possibility of sidestepping upon reservations and questions of that kind."

Mr. Borah was asked if the stand he had taken would mean a determined, organized opposition to any candidate in the Republican fold who failed to conform to the viewpoint of the irreconcilables in the national campaign. This was a point, he said, which he did not wish to discuss. The preliminary fight, the Senator added, would be carried on in the primaries.

The attitude taken by Senator Borah and the knowledge that he had behind him some important figures in the Republican Party came as unwelcome news to the Republican leaders who have been endeavoring to avoid the development of just such a situation. The movement is considered to be pregnant with possibilities of a split in the Republican ranks.

That there has been danger of such a development in the national campaign has been realized for some time by the party leaders. Senator Borah has declared on the floor of the Senate that he could not trail with a party that accepted the principles set down in the treaty of peace and the Leagu eof Nations and that he would repudiate a party platform which indorsed the League or ignored it.

Senator Borah, in his letter to Governor Lowden, made it clear that in his opinion the issue of American participation would have to be met by the next President, no matter what the Senate might do. He therefore questioned Mr. Lowden in detail concerning what his policy would be concerning arrangements or alliances with European powers should he become President.

Text of the Borah Letter.

The Borah letter reads:

"My dear Governor Lowden:

"I understand you are a candidate for the Presidency. Your distinguished services as Governor of your State justify you in aspiring to and your friends in urging your nomination for this high office. As a candidate, I assume from your past public record that you are quite willing to share any opinions you may have upon public questions with the people whose suffrages you solicit.

"I am sure you will agree with me, furthermore, that party platforms are not quite so important as the views and convictions of the successful candidate. The things which distinguished Mr. Roosevelt's administration were found in no platform. The things which characterize Mr. Wilson's reign are apparently in conflict with the platform upon which he was elected.

"The fact is that the issues of the campaign are made after the campaign opens and the policies of the administration are made after the inaugural ball is over. From all of which it follows that the most vital thing in connection with the coming campaign is the individual views of the respective candidates upon living issues.

"For nearly a hundred and fifty years we have in this country, regardless of parties, adhered to a distinct foreign policy—no entagling alliances or partnerships with foreign powers in American affairs. Under this policy we have grown to our present commanding position in the world of affairs. If you should be nominated and elected President and sit in the place of Washington and Jefferson, or Jackson and Lincoln, all of whom earnestly and consistently sustained this policy, would you exert your influence and the influence of your administration to maintain this foreign policy or would you consent in any way to its abandonment or its substantial modification?

"Do you believe, in other words, that the time has come when we should abandon the policy of no entangling alliances, no partnerships with European powers, and enter into alliances or understandings with European powers?

"I ask these questions because regardless of what may or may not be in the platforms the next administration will have to meet this issue in different ways. It might be possible to avoid it in a campaign, although the outlook for that is not promising, but it will not be possible to avoid it during the next administration.

Says Powerful Forces Are Working.

"Powerful forces in this country cooperating with equally powerful and persistent forces in Europe are determined to draw the United States into associations and partnerships with European powers, to embroil us in all European turmoils and conflicts, to utilize our young men in policing the territories and fighting the racial and dynastic battles of the Old World, and placing upon our taxpayers the burden of the financial and economic life of both Europe and Asia, and these forces will continue their efforts to bring about these things after the election.

"If they cannot do it in one way they will do it in another. If they cannot succeed by open agreement they will endeavor to succeed by secret and tacit agreement. We, many of us, feel, therefore, that we would like to know what your views are upon this problem, and what it will be your purpose to do should you be honored by an election as President.

"May I not give you an illustration? A short time ago the bodies of 7,116 American boys were brought back from the frozen regions of Russia, where they had died of disease and in battle. Last week we were further advised by the press that 200 wounded American soldiers had arrived at Vladivostok and were in the hospital and were illy cared for.

"We are not at war with Russia. The American people do not want to carry on war with Russia. All these things are being done in violation of the Constitution of the United States without any authority of Congress and against the wishes of the American people. These things are being done because the representatives of five great nations, including the United States, sitting in secret at Versailles, decided for secret reasons to do them. No American father or mother whose boys are being thus sacrificed is permitted to know why the sacrifice is being made.

"This is but an intimation of what is to happen should we conclude to abandon our traditional foreign policy and enter into understandings and combinations which would embroil us in all European conflicts and turmoils. Our young men would be asked to sacrifice their lives in just such secret and unconscionable affairs as this in Russia. And Mr. Taft, as I understand from his public statement, is in favor, if necessary, of conscripting our young men for that kind of service.

"Are you in favor of any such policy, or of any alliance, league or partnership which may lead to such a program? What is to be your policy with regard to such affairs?

"Less important, but not unimportant, is the fact that into this Russian turmoil we have poured several hundred million dollars of the money of an already overtaxed people, and millions more are to be used in the same way. Under this new departure our men and our money are to be called into the service of the foreign situations; and if we are to judge the future by the past, in absolute violation of the most fundamental principles of the American republic.

"I think you will agree with me, therefore, that these are matters upon which the people are entitled to a candid and open statement as to the attitude of every man who aspires to the office of President. I do not assume for a moment indeed, knowing you as I do, I could not assume that upon so vital a question you should desire for any reason to remain silent.

"I wish to say further that those for whom I speak, and I particularly, have no intention of confining these and similar questions to yourself. Very respectfully, WILLIAM E. BORAH."

Expect Letter to Wood Next.

It is probable that the next letter will be sent to General Leonard Wood.

The Borah forces believe that the organization now being formed will have reached such proportions soon that no candidate will be able safely to ignore it. There is, apparently, no chance that the Republican campaign leaders will be able to call off the movement.

Senator Borah and his associates feel that it is highly important also that candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives should make clear their positions before the people. It is the hope of the Borah followers to build up an organization in practically all of the States where it might hope to prove effective. Organizers are now at work in a number of States.

The Borah followers do not yet admit that the movement may be properly classed as "insurgent," though it is causing much worry in Republican Party circles.

While no move to question candidates for the nomination on the Democratic ticket will be made until it is known whether President Wilson intends to run again, in the event that William G. McAdoo, Attorney General Palmer, or others in the Democratic Party appear as active candidates, they will be asked to tell the country where they stand.

NEW YEAR CALLING CUSTOM REVIVED

DULL DAY IN RESTAURANTS

Many Former Service Men Entertained—Yorkville Draws the Inebriety Prize.

If that youngster 1920, christened in strong stuff but doomed to be brought up on water or bevo could have obtained a uniform to fit his chubby proportions he might have had a regular time yesterday, what with the city's organizations keeping "open house" for present and past soldiers and sailors.

The kid, however, couldn't get an "issue," so he had to duck into "civilians" and join the great number of visitors who called on their friends, paying the old-established New Year's calls. Statistics, those great supporters of facts, are lacking, but "the oldest inhabitant," "the man in the street," and that old reliable, "the authoritative quarter," all contributed to declare that there was a tremendous increase in the custom of New Year calling. Everybody went to everybody's friends, in the hope that there might be "something left over."

A Dull Day for Cabarets.

This idea of going to the friend's house and looking expectant had its effect on Broadway and the remainder of the town, which dripped so much the night before. The cabarets and hotels were as empty and as dry as a section of sand somewhere east of the Sphinx and the Pyramids. Those who were in the dining, dancing places or the hostelries were there, it seemed, with one idea in mind—an onslaught on the menus. The Rialto's tabletops presented uninterrupted vistas of bottleless tablecloth.

The theatres, however, did a big business. Virtually all of them had sold out weeks ago, and box office men were busy up to the time the curtains ascended explaining regretfully to long lines of would-be playgoers that the S. R. O. sign meant just that. Taxi men were also in the big business class.

A great number of persons took advantage of the Y. M. C. A. plan of throwing wide open the doors of all its huts and its buildings. More than 3,000 visited the association's building at 318 West Fifty-seventh Street and enjoyed band concerts and motion pictures. Last night was "ladies' night" in all of the buildings, and tabloid musical comedies were presented.

More than 500 service men were entertained with dainty food and vaudeville by Joseph J. O'Donohue, Chairman of the Cardinal Farley Club, 15 East Thirtieth Street. The finals of the billiard and the pocket billiard tournament, which had been in progress a week, were played, the winners being Sylvester Hughes of the U. S. S. St. Louis and Frank Vestola. The prizes were donated by the National Amateur Billiard Association.

In Brooklyn at the Prospect Park Branch a "snake show" was put on. Arthur S. Williams, Director of the Reptile Study Society of America, lecturing on live specimens. A carnival of nations was the feature of the program at the Central Branch.

Gerard Talks on America.

James W. Gerard, Ex-Ambassador to Germany and a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, was the speaker at the entertainment held by the Bedford Branch of the association. When he was introduced he left it to the audience to pick out the subject of his talk. "America," shouted somebody and Mr. Gerard accepted.

"There's nothing that I like to talk about better," he said, "for America offers opportunities found in no other land in the world for law-abiding men and women, and Bolshevism will not be tolerated here. The people of this country need not fear Bolshevism. Democracy has made this country safe from Bolshevism, and our form of Government would prevent a revolution such as swept and ruined Russia during the last few years."

He was interrupted toward the close of his speech by a man who wanted to know where he stood on the ultimate ownership of the railroads.

"I don't say that I have definitely made up my mind on this point up to date," replied Mr. Gerard, "and it is a grave question, and you will, no doubt, hear a great deal about it during the Presidential campaign. As for myself I intend to give Government ownership of railroads a great deal of earnest consideration before I commit myself on the question."

A new sort of celebration of the arrival of another batch of days and nights was produced by Brooklyn. Five were arrested for shooting off revolvers and trying thereby to make Jan. 1 look like July 4. The men were arraigned in police courts and held in $500 bail each, charged with violation of the Sullivan law.

Drunkenness Moves Uptown.

Twenty-five inebriety cases which came up before Magistrate Tobias in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday fixed quite definitely the geographical centre of the city's New Year's Eve celebration. In three other courts about the city, the Jefferson Market, the Tombs, and Essex Market, there was not a single case of intoxication in contrast to other years. Fines aggregating $27 were assessed by Magistrate Tobias. The records of the Yorkville Court show that last year there were only six arrests and fines tetaling $12.

This is the first New Year's in the history of the Essex Market and Tombs Courts, according to attachés, when there were no charges of drunkenness to be disposed of. Magistrate Corrigan and Koenig, who presided over the two courts respectively, both commented on the change.

When one woman prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Koenig on a charge of disorderly conduct, she was asked if she had been drinking. She replied in the negative, adding, "Where can you get it?"

Police Sergeant Massam who was standing nearby remarked to the Court:

"Your Honor, intoxication cases don't come here any more; they go direct to the morgue."

"It certainly seems that way," Magistrate Koenig replied.

Only two defendants were arraigned for intoxication before Magistrate Harris in the Washington Heights Court Magistrate Sweetser in the Harlem Court fined two men $2 each on charges of intoxication.

From midnight Wednesday night until 11 o'clock last night only thirty-three cases of alcoholism had been treated in the hospitals of Manhattan and the Bronx. Thirty of the cases were in Manhattan and three in the Bronx. A number of the cases were attended by ambulance surgeons, who administered first aid by means of stomach pumps. It was pointed out that the men and women treated were not suffering from the effects of "poison" liquor but were plain "drunks."

Free Champagne at the Vanderbilt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to call your attention to an inaccuracy in the New Year's story in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning. You state that no wines were given away except in the hotels of the du Pont-Boomer group. The Vanderbilt Hotel gave away its stock of champagnes—not by the drink, but by the bottle. ELBERT E. MARTIN.

ANOTHER DEAD IN HARTFORD

Federal Authorities Arrest Alleged Owner of Illicit Still.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 1.—Additional arrests in New York City will be made before the Hartford authorities decide how many of the New York wood alcohol gang they will bring here for trial, either by regular extradition proceedings or by a legal "kidnapping" through Federal agencies. Prosecutor Alexander Creedon praised the speed and thoroughness of the New York authorities in handling the case and intimated that the next forty-eight hours would clean up the entire case.

Frank Dennello, proprietor of the Front Street cafe, which was raided Tuesday, when the bartender and three others, it is alleged, were caught operating a still in the cellar, is being held with his employes in $10,000 bail each by the Federal authorities, who will turn them over to the State authorities at any time they are wanted. The Federal authorities say they know the printing shop where the fake "Martel cognac" labels were printed for Dennello.

Hartford's fourteenth and latest death, that of Michael F. Dunn, is believed by the internal revenue agents to be traceable to Dennello's still, although they have under surveillance three saloon keepers in New Haven, where Dunn bought his "cognac" last Saturday.

HASTEN EXPORT OF WHISKY.

First Consignment of 30,000 Barrels from Kentucky Reaches Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—The first consignment of 30,000 barrels of whisky for export has arrived here from Louisville. A train of thirty cars, carrying 3,000 barrels, is today on a siding of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The freighters Western Comet and Shamrock have been prepared by the International Freighters Corporation to take the liquor abroad. More trains are expected to arrive soon to bring in the full consignment.

At the Custom House officials said it was not necessary to gauge every barrel, three barrels out of a locked car being deemed sufficient.

SABATINI'S RESTAURANT IN NEW HAVEN BURNED

Fire Starts After Festivities—Proprietor and Bartender Under Arrest for Alcohol Sales.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 1.—Fire completely wrecked the restaurant known as Sabatini's, close by Police Headquarters, early today, after the departure of guests who had watched the dawn of a new year.

Several explosions followed the discovery of the fire by a waiter, and an official inquiry was begun at once. For a time the firemen had a task to save the building, which is at the corner of Church and Court Streets, with the City Hall almost adjoining on the former street, and Police Headquarters close by in Court Street. The lower floors will have to be replaced.

The restaurant was well patronized last night with diners, who stayed well into the morning hours. Internal revenue men made visits and found no violation of the law.

It has been charged that liquor was distributed from Sabatini's to various saloon keepers in the city and Louis Gargiulo, manager of the café, is held in bonds of $3,000 on charges of violating the wartime prohibition law. Biaggio Trappiano, a bartender at the place, is held in $5,000. Harry Vincent and William Guangi, now held by the Chicopee, Mass., police had been familiar figures in the café.

Sabatini's is the headquarters for the Leonard-Dundee bout which is scheduled to be held here Jan. 16, and 400 tickets for the affair were burned.

The damage is placed at $35,000.

Trenton Woman Drinks Poison Shortly After Husband's Death.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 1.—Following the sudden death tonight from heart disease of her husband Pearce Matthews, a wholesale pork packer, Mrs. Gertrude Matthews swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets and is now in a serious condition in the Mercer Hospital. The woman declared she had taken the poison in an attempt to end her life as she had nothing to live for.

The couple had been married about ten years. They lost an infant by death sometime ago and had no other children. Mrs. Matthews was a tireless worker in the war drives here and because of her activity her health had become impaired.

First Suicide of New Year.

The first suicide of the new year reported at the County Medical Examiner's office was George Bosic, 28 years old, of 566 Eleventh Avenue, who shot himself in the stomach in a furnished room which he occupied at that address. No motive for the suicide is known. The police were unable to find any friend or relative of the dead man.

Guard Against Impostors.

The enumerators receive four cents a name. There will be nearly 4,000 of them in the city. Each is armed with a written commission and an identification card which he or she must show upon demand. Persons who may suspect the man or woman who calls are urged by the authorities to demand presentation of credentials, that impostors may be detected.

The supervisors of the districts believe that if every person could be made to understand the value of the census, there would be little reluctance to aid. The information obtained is used entirely for the compilation by machinery of abstract statistical data, and the law requires that the individual's record be kept absolutely secret.

The enumerators all have been selected by competitive examination, Arthur G. Dore, Brooklyn's supervisor, added to the examination papers a questionnaire designed to bring out the degree to which each applicant participated in war work. As a result, he has a force of men and women that is nearly 100 per cent. ex-service.

Mr. Dore is urging his enumerators not to miss a man, woman, or child in Brooklyn, for it is his hope that for the first time Brooklyn will be shown to be more populous than Manhattan. The last State census, in 1915, showed that Manhattan numbered 2,137,747 persons and Brooklyn 1,796,513. While it will be months before final reports, it should be only a few weeks before this burning question and other local population statistics should be compiled tentatively.

May Reach 112,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The census which will begin tomorrow is expected to show a population of from 107,000,000 to 112,000,000, as compared with 93,000,000 in 1910. The estimated population, July 1, this year, was 106,871,294.

Cards will be collected by 312 supervisors and forwarded to headquarters here, where 4,000 clerks will be engaged in tabulation work. Totals for each of the items on the cards will be computed by specially designed machines. Officials expect to be able to make a preliminary estimate of the population of the larger cities by the middle of March. Returns for country districts will not be completed until later.

This census is the first to be taken during the Winter months. For the first time, also, women have been employed as supervisors. Congress appropriated $22,000,000 for the work.

The first census, taken in 1790, during the administration of President Washington, showed a population of 3,000,000.

POLICE SEIZE LIQUOR IN JERSEY SALOONS

FIND SUPPLY WORTH $3,000

Clue Furnished by Six Wood-Alcohol Victims—More Arrests Expected in Brooklyn.

Acting on information obtained from new victims of "poison" whisky who were removed during the day to the hospitals of Newark, N. J., the authorities of that city and Belleville, N. J., raided two saloons late yesterday afternoon and confiscated several thousand dollars worth of liquor which will be turned over to chemists for analysis. Lieutenant Frok E. Brex of the wood-alcohol squad of Newark, declared last night that he had evidence which led him to believe he had uncovered one of the places in the State which was a distributing point for "bootleg" whisky to sellers.

When the fact that there were six new cases was communicated to Lieutenant Brex he at once went to the City and St. Michael's Hospitals and queried those of the victims who had regained consciousness. Michael Griffith, one of the patients at the former institution, told Lieutenant Brex that he had purchased whisky at the saloon of Julius Pitscher at 466 Broad Street. Detectives were at once sent to the place and arrested Pitscher, who was brought to Police Headquarters.

The saloon keeper confessed that he had bought $3,000 worth of liquor within the past six weeks from Julius Amsterdam, who until a few months ago ran a saloon at 248 Orange Street, Newark. With members of the wood-alcohol squad, Lieutenant Brex then raided the Orange Street building and arrested Amsterdam.

Amsterdam when confronted by Pitscher indignantly denied ever having sold him liquor. Pitscher produced his check book and stubs which the police said would bear out his statement that he had obtained his supply of liquor from Amsterdam. Amsterdam was held without bail on a charge of violating the Volstead act and also the Crimes act in selling adulterated liquor. Pitscher was held in $1,500 bail as a material witness.

Bought $3,000 Worth of Whisky.

In searching Amsterdam's premises, Lieutenant Brex said his men found eighteen empty five-gallon cans and about $3,000 worth of liquor in whisky jugs containing from one to five gallons each. Pitscher told the police that he paid Amsterdam $16 for 70 per cent. proof and $18 for 90 per cent. whisky, which was delivered to him in five gallon cans by Amsterdam personally. Amsterdam brought the stuff to his place by auto, he declared.

The information which resulted in the Belleville raid was given by George Vanse, 40, of 136 South Eleventh Street; Albert Ansiduc, 46, of Nineteenth Street and Springfield Avenue, and Joseph Segal, 45, of 41 Nesbitt Street, all of Newark, who were new patients at the hospitals yesterday. They told the police that they had purchased drinks in the saloon of Samuel Kahn at William and Cortlandt Streets in Belleville. Two of the patients lost consciousness later and were picked up by the police.

The police of Belleville visited the saloon and placed Kahn under arrest for violation of the Volstead act. They seized several barrels and cases of liquor which they found in his saloon. Elmer Drake, 36, of 123 Seventeenth Street, Newark, and an unidentified man, both of whom the police believe drank liquor coming from Amsterdam, complete the list of six new cases in that city yesterday. Both are in City Hospital.

Determined to clean up Brooklyn and Long Island of places where "poison" whisky such as caused many deaths in Chicopee, Hartford, and other places in New England, United States District Attorney Leroy W. Ross announced yesterday that he would take steps today to have the corps of investigators aiding him enlarged. United States Marshal James M. Powers probably will be asked to swear in additional deputy marshals to take part in running down the clews which the authorities are receiving.

The District Attorney predicted that further arrests would be made soon. Mr. Ross has received many letters, most of them anonymous, and telephone calls from citizens who believed whisky and gin offered them for purchase contained wood alcohol.

The Brooklyn authorities reported yesterday three cases of wood alcohol poisoning, and one suspected case. James Gregory, 19 years old, of 551 Nostrand Avenue, was found unconscious at Albany and Atlantic Avenues, near St. John's Hospital.

Dr. McDonald of St. John's diagnosed the case as wood-alcohol poisoning. Charles Smith, 20 years old, was picked up at High and Washington Streets, and removed to the Long Island College Hospital, where a similar diagnosis was made. John O'Brien was taken from his home at 640 Hicks Street to the Long Island College Hospital. His condition was serious. An unidentified man was found unconscious in front of 347 Dean Street. At the Kings County Hospital, where he was taken, it was said that the man showed evidence of being a victim of wood alcohol.

Two New Year's Eve celebraters wound up in the Jersey City Hospital yesterday suffering with the symptoms of wood-alcohol poisoning. Clarence Jordan, 19 years old, of 388 Bergen Avenue, Jersey City, was picked up in the street by Patrolman Wolf. Michael Flaherty, 34, of 36 Courthouse Street, Jersey City, was found unconscious at St. Paul's and Oakland Avenues.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

Laundry Manager Locked Up on Chauffeur's Complaint.

A man who said he was Arthur T. Tween, 24 years old, of 410 West Fifty-eighth Street, manager of a laundry, was locked up last night in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station on a charge of robbery made by Harry J. Johnson, a taxicab chauffeur of 23 North Twentieth Street, Elmhurst, L. I.

Johnson told the police that Tween hired his taxicab at Sixty-fourth Street and Columbus Avenue shortly before 10 o'clock last night and ordered Johnson to drive him around the West Side. When the machine reached Fifty-sixth Street and Eighth Avenue, Johnson says Tween ordered him to halt in front of a cabaret, alighted, pulled a revolver, and held him up for five dollars. Tween said he had been celebrating New Year's Day and could not account for the revolver, the police stated.

HAYS SILENT ON LETTER.

Chairman Going to Chicago to Confer with Party Leaders.

Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, who was at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, declined to make any comment on Senator Borah's letter to Governor Lowden.

Mr. Hays will go to Chicago today, to take part in a regional conference with party leaders next Tuesday.

Two Boys Held for Burglary.

Frank Joyce, 17 years old, of 266 West 118th Street, and Joseph Tierney, 17, of 316 West 121st Street, were held in $1,500 bail each for examination next Monday, by Magistrate Charles N. Harris in Washington Heights Court yesterday, charged with burglary. It is alleged they attempted to hold up the shoe store of Gabriel Montanigo, at 2,539 Eighth Avenue, Wednesday night.

PREDICTS SWEEP FOR WOOD

Senator Moses Says the General Will "Win in a Walk."

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 1.—"Wood will win in a walk," declares Senator George H. Moses. He believes not only that General Wood will be nominated at Chicago next June but also that he will be elected.

"Next year will see 1908 repeated," he says, "with the allied association of favorite sons trying to combine to defeat one man. I know whereof I speak because in 1908 I was one of the allies, but after that harrowing experience, I am glad to be on the other side this time.

"I know just what will happen at Chicago. Wood will have a long lead on the first ballot, and then the favorite son managers will steal up dark stairways, and in the seclusion of a room at the Congress Hotel will draw lots to see which favorite is to receive the combined support. They will still be discussing it at breakfast time, and having reached no agreement thereon, will march meekly into the Convention Hall in time to take part in the Leonard Wood stampede."

Senator Moses talked at length on the so-called mathematics of the situation, bearing out the reputation he won some years ago of being an "actuarial politician." Of the 1,000 delegates to the convention 192 will be delegates at large, and of this number, he said, those who are not for Wood will be left severely alone. The Wood leaders are absolutely confident that a large majority of the district delegates, pledged, perhaps, to some favorite son, will have Wood as their second choice and will exercise their voting privilege in that direction as soon as their obligation has been disposed of.

Senator Moses has no resentment against the Coolidge boom, even though it serves to divide New England on the Wood question.

"Neighborliness and admiration for Governor Coolidge's determined stand for law and order would undoubtedly give him a strong foothold in New Hampshire," says the Senator, "but for the fact that New Hampshire has a candidate of its own whose attitude on Governor Coolidge's chief issue is just as strong and even more widespread in its demonstrations."

TWO ROOSEVELT MEETINGS.

Tributes to be Paid on First Anniversary of His Death.

The first anniversary of the death of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will be observed in New York by two public memorial meetings, one in Trinity Church on next Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the American Defense Society, and the other on Monday evening, Jan. 5, at Carnegie Hall, under the joint auspices of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association and the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

At the Trinity Church meeting, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of the church, will take as the subject of his address "The Message of Theodore Roosevelt's Life to America Today." Henry C. Quincy, Chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting, will read the last message of Roosevelt, which was written to the American Defense Society by Roosevelt on the night before his death.

The Carnegie Hall meeting will be presided over jointly by Mrs. John Henry Hammond, President of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, and William Boyce Thompson, President of the Roosevelt Memorial Association. The Right Rev. Charles Sumner Burch, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, will deliver the opening prayer, while the favorite Psalms of Colonel Roosevelt will be read by Rabbi Samuel Schulman of Temple Beth-El.

PLAN TO LIQUIDATE ROAD.

Atlanta-Birmingham System Lost $1,500,000 in 1919.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—There is a definite movement on foot among security holders of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad system to liquidate the entire property, abandon the railroad and scrap it for what its physical properties will bring in the open market. This information is authentic. Official reports for the year just ended show that the A. B. & A. Railroad system lost more than $1,500,000 in operation alone for 1919.

The common stock of the company is owned generally throughout the country, and it represents an original construction investment of $29,000,000 in cash put into the building and equipment of the road, and on which not one cent has been paid.

TWO HUNDRED REDS TAKEN IN CHICAGO

Red Guard.' They have established schools in Chicago and elsewhere to teach their propaganda.

"Daily they address audiences, urging workmen and others to be ready to join 'on the big day' the revolution for the overthrow of our Government.

"Tons and tons of seditious literature advocating the destruction of our Government is being disseminated by those conspirators all over the country, most of which has been printed at the I. W. W. printing plants at 951 West Madison Street and 1,001 West Madison Street."

Concerning the Communist Labor Party, Mr. Hoyne says:

"This party adopted, clause by clause, the Bolshevist program laid down by Lenin and Trotzky in the so-called Moscow manifesto, which gives as its aim the dictatorship of the proletariat through soviets, and which is the most revolutionary, inflammatory, and Bolshevistic document ever promulgated."

FINDS RED INFLUENCE BEHIND UTICA STRIKES

Lusk Committee Gets Evidence of Radicalism in Textile Workers' and Garment Workers' Unions.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 1.—At a session which began this morning and lasted until 6 o'clock tonight the Joint Legislative Committee investigating radical activities under the direction of Senator Clayton Lusk, through testimony and documentary evidence, brought out the fact that the activities of the amalgamated textile workers and the Amalgamated Garment Workers responsible for recent prolonged strikes and two bloody riots in Utica have been closely allied with the activities of the Communist Party of America.

Evidence was adduced at the hearing to prove that organizers for the amalgamated during the strike here openly announced their Bolshevistic beliefs and documentary evidence submitted to the Lusk Committee by Archibald Stevenson of New York, associate counsel for the Legislative body, showed that the same arguments and the same propaganda are used in literature of the amalgamated and of the Communist Party of America.

Testimony given the committee today showed the existence of an inside ring of anarchists working within the Communist Party. Prior to the drastic action of the Lusk committee here plans were being perfected for the organization of classes in Socialism, Communism and Bolshevism.

A large amount of seized radical literature, advocating in a half dozen foreign languages, the overthrow of the Government, is being examined by agents of the Lusk committee who remained behind tonight when the members left for Rochester, where they hold sessions tomorrow.

EDWARDS CONFIDENT 'DRY' LAW IS INVALID

Jersey Governor-Elect Expects Report Today on Phrasing of Ratifying Resolutions.

SURE WORDING IS DIFFERENT

Investigator Said to Have Met Cold Reception in Capital in Search for Documents.

Many supporters of Governor-elect Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey called yesterday at the City Hall in Jersey City and wished a Happy New Year and success to him in the campaign he announced Wednesday to free the State from the restrictions of the Prohibition amendment. Mr. Edwards was full of confidence and enthusiasm, and reasserted that flaws would be disclosed in the ratifying resolutions of States which ratified the measures. In answer to questions he said:

"My secretary, J. Harry Foley, who went to Washington to see the originals of the amendment ratifications was delayed in his search by the holiday, but he is returning to the capital tonight, and tomorrow he will undoubtedly accomplish the object of his visit. He also will confer with Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary.

"Mr. Foley will look at the original resolutions, not merely certified copies. The information I received that several States in their ratifications used the words 'alcoholic liquors' instead of 'intoxicating liquors,' according to the language of the amendment, itself, came from a thoroughly dependable source.

"I cannot tell you the exact number of States that failed to follow the exact wording of the amendment, but I am assured that it is a sufficient number to bring the total of States ratifying properly below that required by the Constitution."

"It is clear that the language of the ratifying resolution must be the same as that of the amendment it ratifies. There is a considerable difference beween the phrases, 'intoxicating liquors' and 'alcoholic liquors,' and that should be more than enough to vitiate the effect of those ratifying resolutions which were incorrect."

John Milton, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, who is personal counsel to Mr. Edwards, described the reception accorded to Mr. Foley at the State Department as not entirely cordial.

"He seems to have been shunted about quite a bit in the halls of the State Department," he said. "He listened to a good deal of 'See Smith about this.' Then Smith would greet him with 'Jones is the man to see about that.' Jones said, 'Brown is the man for this thing,' and so on. But I think that he will reach the originals he is after tomorrow, and then we shall know where we stand.

"One man in the State Department said to Mr. Foley: 'If you are going to try to trip up these resolutions on the ground they are not dated, you will fail, because that has been fixed up. They were sent back and dated.' That is a new point—absence of dates on some of them when received at Washington. This may amount to something or nothing. It is another one of the many stones in our path which we do not intend to leave unturned."

WINE MADE CHILDREN ILL.

Five Members of Family in Hospital and Liquor Is to be Tested.

Five children of Mr. and Mrs. John Vigilio of 403 East Twenty-ninth Street are in Bellevue Hospital believed to be suffering from the effects of wine which was drunk at the Vigilio home last night at a New Year's dinner. Several quarts of the wine have been taken to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station for analysis. Dr. Wurzback of Bellevue Hospital, who treated the children, is unable to say from the present developments of the children's illness whether or not it is due to wood alcohol poisoning.

According to the police the Vigilio family ordered a five-gallon jar of wine from a store on First Avenue. All the family drank the wine at New Year's dinner, and while the mother was in another room the five smaller children drank a considerable quantity more. Mr. and Mrs. Vigilio and their eldest son, John, 20 years old, were not affected by the wine. The children are Susie, 7 years old; Lucie, 14 years old; Sarah, 11 years; Tony, 13 years old, and Richard, 16 years old.

TRUCKLOAD OF WINE SEIZED

Schenectady Police Hold Shipment from New York Dealer.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 1.—A truckload of wine from Brooklyn was seized by the Schenectady police today. The truckload was intended for Dominick Ciarvo, a saloonkeeper, at 612 Cutler Street.

The truck with its load of twenty-five 52-gallon barrels of wine, of approximately 14 per cent. alcohol content, is in the possession of the Police Department and is being closely guarded pending an investigation by Federal authorities.

Mr. Ciarvo, the man to whom the wine was consigned, said that he bought it last June for $1 a gallon from E. Banell of 33 East 114th Street, New York, and that he had been expecting it for some time.

The wine, it is said, was shipped as "syrup."

how, when he took the leadership, he found soldiers jaded and worn by the weary months of war and how it was necessary to inspire in them the will to win. He says he did this and won.

"And now," says the Marshal, "do not speak to me of glory or the beauty of enthusiasm. They are only words. Guard yourself in France against these expressions. They are useless. They are lost strength. 'The war is finished.' That is one expression that is good but epithets as well as fancy phrases are worth nothing. Nothing survives except acts because acts alone count.

"Here is one act that gives me satisfaction. It was the meeting at Rethondes. That was an act. That act marked the decomposition of the German Empire and I saw Erzberger with rage seize his pen and sign that act. And then I was content to have willed it and to have known how to employ the means, for the business was done."

Marshal Foch concludes with the statement that he believes he was guided from on high as given at the beginning of this dispatch.

GIBBONS ASKS CLERGY TO FIGHT BOLSHEVISM

Cardinal in New Year Message Says Ministers of the Gospel Must Uphold the Civil Law.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons in a New Year's message to the people of America today condemned radicalism in its various forms, and declared that to denounce it openly is one of the duties of the Church.

"I wish happiness to all our American people at the opening of the New Year," he said. "This happiness does not depend on wealth, honor or pleasure. These gifts, while they bring some satisfaction are invariably shortlived. They do not satisfy the craving of the human heart. Our chief hope consists in faithful, obedience to the will of God. If we are so obedient, we, in a measure, carve out our own destiny, for God will not be wanting to those who preserve His law.

"The Church will succeed if it restricts its mission to the preaching of the gospel and to all subjects connected with our religious and moral welfare. If clergymen devote their time to the mere discussion of politics and ephemeral topics, they cannot expect to keep congregations together. We hear enough of politics during the week. At least one day should be devoted to the consideration of God and eternity.

"All denominations now are faced with the important mission to denounce and discountenance the Bolsheviki and radicals whose aim is to undermine the principles of our constitution, and to substitute anarchy for law. It behooves us all as ministers of the gospel to uphold the hands of civil rulers, so that legislation which they enact may be carried into execution as the authorities hold over us the aegis of their protection in preaching the gospel. It is our duty to assist them by investing their authority with moral and religious sanction."

HIGH BRITISH TRIBUTE TO OUR FIGHTING MEN

Lord Mayors, Lord Provost and Mayors Send Address to People of America.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — Announcement was made today by the State Department that it had received through the embassy at London an address to the people of the United States signed by the Lord Mayors, Lord Provosts, and Mayors of cities and towns of Great Britain and Ireland, expressing their appreciation of the co-operation of the American Army and Navy in bringing the war to a victorious end and their regret at the departure of the American military and naval forces from the British Isles.

In acknowledging the address, the department forwarded to the embassy expressions of appreciation from Secretaries Baker and Daniels.

The address follows:

"To the People of the United States of America.

"Be it known by these presents that we, the undersigned Lord Mayors, Lord Provosts, and Mayors of the undermentioned cities and towns in Great Britain and Ireland, while rejoicing that with the co-operation of the American Navy and Army and that of the Allies the war has been brought to a victorious conclusion, do hereby declare, on behalf of the people of these islands our deep regret at the consequent departure from among us of the American naval and military forces who have fought side by side with our soldiers and sailors with so much gallantry and success.

"We are sorry that we in this country have not been able to welcome as many of the American land forces as we should have liked, owing to the exigencies of war. Those of your men, however, who have resided with us have made countless friends among our people, and we shall always retain the happiest memories of their visit.

"The standard of conduct they have set has indeed been a high one, and we can only say that we hope they will take away with them some of those feelings of affection which they have inspired during their sojourn with us."

ROADS NEED BILLIONS.

Elliott Says They Should Spend Huge Amounts for Rolling Stock.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 1.—Three billion dollars must be spent by the country's railroads "within the next few years" to provide first-class passenger and freight facilities, Howard Elliott, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad, declared today. Mr. Elliott came from New York for conferences with prominent railroad officials.

"Difficult and serious as is the plight of the railroads and of the owners of $20,000,000,000 worth of property, it is not more serious than the condition facing the country," he said.

"Transportation facilities must be made available not only for the present volume of business, but for the increases that a progressive nation like the United States needs each year.

"Since the Government took control, only 100,000 new freight cars have been bought, so that at the end of 1919 there probably are not more than 3,400,000 freight cars in the country—slightly more than in 1915. It is not too much to say that probably $3,000,000,000 should be spent for cars, engines and shop facilities by American railroads within the next fewye ars if the country's transportation needs are to be met."

CENTRAL EUROPEANS FULL OF DISCONTENT

Political Talk Shows Despair of Reaching a Settlement of Racial Antagonisms.

AUSTRIA'S OUTLOOK DARK

Numerous Unions and Alliances Discussed, but No One of Small States Is Willing to Aid Others.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 1.—One becomes fascinated by the political talk of Vienna. Its subjects are not closely followed by the mass of English-speaking peoples, but they are big. The frontiers are involved in its, and the transference of peoples and the encouragement or deflection of great trade routes and markets. The national armies, too, are involved in it, and the transference of

But one also becomes alarmed by this political talk. In Western Europe we are accustomed to settled frontiers, within which social ideas are thought out and experimented with in creative political life. Here in Central and Eastern Europe people are still quarreling about frontiers and the settlement of races, and politics assumes a tribal complexion—of tribes struggling for the possession of corn lands, of political activity expressing itself in terms of only food supply and elbow room. This is what the talk is about.

Austria is terribly afraid of internal dissolution owing to her want of food and raw materials and her depreciated money. The Tyrol generally is threatening to go to Bavaria while the Vorarlberg region, immediately east of Lake Constance which means textile industries to Austria, threatens to secede to Switzerland. Hunger is said to be the prime motive in this threatened breakaway, but low exchange value and fear of the future are at least contributory causes.

Austria is feeling somewhat cold, too, toward her old partner, Hungary, the particular trouble here being that West Hungary, which is promised to Austria, is at present in the occupation of Hungarians who show no great desire to terminate the occupation. There is also the monarchist movement in Hungary, while Austria remains strongly Social-Democrat.

Both countries still await peace with the Allies, but politicians agree that Hungary also is far from satisfied with her present frontiers or those likely to be allotted to her under the forthcoming peace treaty. Rumanians are in occupation of considerable parts of her territory and apparently refuse to retire behind the demarcation line agreed upon. Then Slovakia, which belonged to Hungary for centuries, now belongs to the Czechs, and I have never yet met a Hungarian who could not prove that the Slovakians are seething with discontent against Czech rule and are longing to be saved by the Hungarians. A Hungarian usually adds that they will be saved, too. The absence of a frontier continuous with Poland is likewise a grievance with the Hungarians, while the transference of some of their kin to Jugoslavia is a subject which had better not be broached with them.

Czechoslovákia is also restive. She knows she has the friendship of the big Allies, but she also knows her enemies are a very present source of danger. She is afraid of what Hungary may do because of Slovakia, while Poland, which is friendly with Hungary, is not quite peaceably disposed toward the Czechs. She has also had some trouble in Slovakia caused partly by religious animosities, but, of course, exploited by her enemies as being evidence of her misrule, and from Jugoslavia comes news of differences between Serbs and Croats and Slovenes, while her frontiers against Austria have not yet been delimited.

It is around all these discontents and dissatisfactions that political talk turns in never ending circles. The discontent is real. I have spoken with many men of different countries and of different types—Ministers and ex-Ministers, business men and financiers, professors and men who were frankly propagandist. From all of them one obtains the same impression of deep feeling and conviction on the subject of nationality.

From all of them one obtains the same feeling that a sort of mental despair is arising with the recognition that the problem is too involved to permit of a perfect solution and no one will agree to compromise it. It is recognized too, that while racial problems made the settlement difficult before, the settlement is more difficult now because of economic questions which have arisen. The most recent cessions of territory in Central Europe have involved the cession of important economic resources without which the old States are incapable of independent economic life and no one State appears to be willing to help the others.

But the talk goes on. There is talk of a customs union, which most people will agree will prove to be ultimately necessary, but which most people equally agree is impossible of present attainment because of political jealousies. There is talk of various alliances, military and economic, between different groups of States, say Austria and Czechoslovakia on the one hand and Poland and Hungary on the other. There is talk of the formation of a great Roman Catholic union comprising Poland, Hungary, Austria, Bavaria, Italy, and the Croats of Jugoslavia, all forming a continuous block of States. There is talk of Italian influence here, of French there, of English somewhere else. There is talk of the necessity of dependence upon the Allies. There is talk of the necessity of forming a Central Enropean economic union which can be independent of the Allies.

But always the fear of economic starvation is what is uppermost. It is all very real, and some of it is very true, and the final impression is always the same. One goes home through unlit streets among the cold and hungry people and feels that things have indeed suffered a setback. Central Europe is back again in the old days, engaged in a struggle for the means of subsistence and elbow room, instead of on keen enterprises in creative politics.

FOOD DRAFTS OUT SOON TO AID HUNGRY EUROPE

Bankers' Association Will Issue Paper on Warehouses in Warsaw, Prague, Vienna, &c.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 1.—Food drafts on warehouses in Central Europe soon will be sold by the American Bankers' Association to Americans who wish to aid European food sufferers, according to an announcement tonight by Julius H. Barnes, Chairman of the United States Grain Corporation.

Mr. Barnes said that the drafts could be mailed to Europe and cashed for food at warehouses at Warsaw, Prague, Vienna, Danzig and other points in the famine territory. The drafts will probably be of $10 denomination and will be exchangeable for about 24 pounds of flour, 10 pounds of beans, 5 pounds of lard, 8 pounds of bacon, and 6 cans of condensed milk.

Any profit resulting from these transactions will be used to feed undernourished children, said Mr. Barnes.

FOOD FOR CENTRAL EUROPE.

First Shipments of Flour Expected at Hamburg on Jan. 6.

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—The Government has received news that an agreement has been reached on the conditions suggested by Herbert Hoover whereby food will be supplied to Central Europe.

It expects shipments of flour will arrive in Hamburg on Jan. 6, but says they will not be distributed until details of Mr. Hoover's plan are completed.

SENDS NEW REPORT ON POGROM AT KIEV

Jewish Delegation at Peace Conference Cables Details of Alleged Massacre in October.

The committee of the Jewish delegation at the Peace Conference has forwarded from Paris to the American Jewish Congress, 1 Madison Avenue, a communication relating to the alleged pogrom in Kiev and nearby localities in October, in which hundreds of persons are reported to have lost their lives. The communication reads:

"We are informed from a reliable source in Constantinople that a terrible pogrom took place in Kiev from Oct. 14 to 18. The massacres were instigated by the semi-official anti-Semitic press, especially by the newspapers published by the well-known politician Chouligine, and assisted by the volunteers. The number of victims has not yet been definitely established. According to various accounts from newspapers and eye-witnesses, there were thousands killed. It is quite certain that several hundred Jews perished. The Jewish intellectual class has been exterminated. Each wave of massacre lasted half an hour. The executioners allowed the Jews to choose the form of death and to designate the one who was to be first killed. A great number of women and young girls, having applied to the civil authorities for aid and protection, were brutally driven away. They fled to their houses and jumped out of windows in order not to fall into the hands of the murderers.

"The pogrom in Kiev is confirmed by a number of Russian journals which are subject to the censorship of Denikin's army. The Priasowsky Krai, which is published in Rostev-on-the-Don, the seat of the central Government of Denikin, gives the following details about the pogrom:

"'The Jewish community of Kiev is occupied exclusively in organizing relief. The number of victims is so great that it is almost impossible to go to the assistance of the starved persons, bereft of clothing and shelter. In the Podole quarter almost 14,700 Jewish victims of pillage during the pogrom are registered; in the Lybed quarter, 8,000; in that of the Jewish Market, 3,000; the situation of all these unfortunates grows worse from day to day on account of the very rigorous Winter.'

"According to the Sowremennoye, which is subject to the military censorship, pogroms have taken place, in addition, in the following localities situated in the region of Kiev: Borispol, Grebenka, Smielo, Korsun, Germanovka, Tcherkassy, Makarow, Gorodiitchi, Chiblennoye, Korito, Dymer, Stephanzy, Ignatovka, Tripolle, Rossova, Motovilovska."

Meir Grossman, representative of the Jewish National Consul of Ukraina, whose report of the first pogroms in a number of cities cabled to this country first made the Jews of America acquainted with the outrages in Ukraina, arrived here on the Adriatic several days ago, and brought with him additional information relating to the pogroms in many cities, in which 40,000 Jewish men, women and children lost their lives.

America Gains in Argentine Sailings

BUENOS AIRES, Wednesday, Dec. 31.—The United States ranks second to Great Britain in the number of merchant vessels entering the port of Buenos Aires in 1919, Norway being third. The growth of North American marine traffic to South America is shown in statistics published by La Razon, which indicate that 170 ships under the United States flag, with a total tonnage of 300,000, arrived during the year.

In normal times Buenos Aires is second only to New York in marine traffic for the Western Hemisphere.

BRITISH SCOUT FEAR OF GERMAN ATTACK

rendered. Ostensibly this has been done, but no one believes it is true. Rifles and ammunition are easily hidden and it would not be surprising if from 500,000 to 1,000,000 rifles were still to be found in German hands. On the other hand, British officers feel easy concerning big guns. As soon as the treaty is finally signed commissioners of the allied officers will traverse Germany from end to end to see the munition factories and that there are no evident preparations made for converting ordinary commercial units to warlike purposes. Then, after the commissioners are withdrawn, it is not believed that it would be possible for Germany to set up secret large munition works without either the French or British learning of it.

The Army of Occupation is to stay within the German frontier for fifteen years, and it will be a strong guarantee of German good behavior during that period. So competent military observers smile at talk of "Germany's secret army" as quite beside the mark at present if only because its considerable armed forces lack all mobility. But they are not without anxiety as to the possibilities of the future. They believe it is to the interest of the Allies to maintain the present moderate Government against the extreme reactionaries or extreme revolutionaries who alone could replace it. They note the average German seems to cherish hate far more against the French than the British. The only exceptions to this are the Junker or military elements, whose feeling toward England is greatly exaggerated by the large share they attribute to her in their defeat in the war.

1,000,000 Men Under Arms.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Germany's armed forces are estimated by the British War Office to total close to a million men. These are divided into the regular army of 400,000, the land forces of the regular navy, 12,000; the armed constabulary, 40,000 to 50,000; the temporary volunteers or regular army reserves, 150,000 to 200,000; civic guards, 300,000 to 400,000.

The figures with regard to the last named branches are rough estimates, the exact totals being unknown.

Quite apart from the British official statement, but bearing on the subject, is unofficial information brought to England from Germany by British army officers. The substance of their report is summed up as follows:

"There is no truth in the stories that Germany has a secret, mobile army. Not only are the German people war weary and anxious for peace, but there is a great shortage of war supplies such as rubber, petrol, coal, horses, and in addition the rolling stock of the country is greatly depleted. Manufacture of arms and munitions is not going on in any large degree, although it is probable that to force the Germans to give up all the rifles stipulated in the Peace Treaty will be impossible since the concealment of arms is not difficult. There is no danger of warlike aggression from Germany in the immediate future. However, if the Germans are permitted to maintain volunteers and civic guards these bodies would constitute a potential danger as they would provide basic material for a big new army."

It is stated in well-informed circles in London that the Allies will insist that these military organizations be abolished. It is conceded, however, that the maintenance of a constabulary is necessary to protect property from hoodlums and organized bodies of thieves.

Army officers are said to believe that considerable ground exists for Germany's claim that she needs a regular army of more than 100,000, as this force would be very small for a country so great in extent. Many citizens of Germany as a patriotic duty are said to be joining the Civic Guards to protect themselves and others as well as their property from depredations of criminals and from Spartican outbreaks.

Numerous generals are among the Guards, including the famous von Kluck who is serving as a private.

ESTHONIA SIGNS TRUCE WITH REDS

By ARTHUR COPPING.

Esthonia's constituent assembly, which will not meet again until the end of January.

So profoundly did Esthonia distrust Bolshevism, so apprehensive were the Esthonians of having their new democracy undermined by Red agents, that for a long time it looked as if the Dorpat deliberations would reach no pacific conclusions. But not without effect were the persistent claims of the Moscow delegates to be honorable representatives of a responsible Government whose sole concern was to promote order and happiness within its own borders and to live at peace with its neighbors.

Not only Finland, Latvia, and Lithuania, but the whole world will watch with interest the behavior of Soviet Russia during this period of probation. On neither side was any jubilation manifested in the council room. In conversation with me, the Bolshevist delegates admitted that a truce with one enemy was most acceptable as a possible beginning of larger results, but with grave shakings of head France was mentioned as possibly contemplating a military adventure which would provide further occupation for 3,000,000 Soviet soldiers.

"And our one desire," came the confession, "is to disband every one of them and throw ourselves heart and soul into the internal organization of our country."

The difficulty encountered on Christmas Eve was overcome by removing Esthonia's frontier ten kilometers east of the Narova River, both parties agreeing to the Gulf of Finland becoming neutral water. Soviet Russia formally abdicates all sovereign rights over Esthonia.

DORPAT, Esthonia, Dec. 31 (Associated Press)—The first step toward peace between Esthonia and Soviet Russia was taken tonight by the signing of a preliminary armistice, which is to exist for one week, stipulating an immediate cessation of hostilities and covering questions concerning Esthonian independence and military guarantees with regard to the frontiers.

The delegates were seated at a huge round table with M. Poska, the Esthonian Foreign Minister, and Adolph Joffe, the Bolshevist Commissioner, in the centre, with their respective delegations facing each other. All the delegates appeared to be in a cheerful mood as a result of relief from the strain of the long-drawn-out and tedious negotiations, but there was observable no spirit of comradeship between the opposing factions.

The text of the clause recognizing Esthonia says:

"In accordance with the principles proclaimed by the Soviet Russian Government of the right of all peoples to a free determination of their nationality, even to the complete secession from the State to which they belong, Russia recognizes without reservation the independence of the Esthonian State and freely abdicates for all time all the sovereign rights which belonked to Russia with respect to Esthonia's land and people in accordance with former State orders, as well as those rights given under international treaties. Esthonian land and people shall have no obligations whatever with respect to Russia because of the former connections of Esthonia with Russia."

The signing of the armistice proceeded expeditiously. Only twenty minutes was required for the formalities. The clerical staff, which included many young women, chatted unconcernedly at the tables in corners of the room. M. Joffe, wearing a red insignia in the lapel of his frock coat, offered the only color to the gathering, except that a stalwart Bolshevist clerk sported a flashy sweater.

Says Others Will Seek Peace.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 2.—Representatives of all the Baltic States, who will meet at Helsingfors soon, will request an armistice with the Russian Soviet Government on the same basis as that agreed to between Esthonia and the Bolsheviki, according to The Herald, organ of union labor.

REDS PREDICT WORLD VICTORY

Say Soviets Will Rule in Washington and Europe's Capitals in 1920.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A Soviet wireless message received from Moscow today flashed New Year's greetings to the world. The message, after celebrating 1919 as a year of victory for the Soviets, says:

"In 1920 we shall attain a victorious end of civil war. Siberia, the Ukraine, the Don region and the Caucasus desire Soviets. There will also be Soviets at Berlin, Washington, Paris, and London. Soviet authority will be supreme throughout the world."

FOOD LACK HAMPERS LETTISH CAMPAIGN

Army Is Threatened with Hunger While Fighting in Winter Rigor.

REINFORCED AGAINST REDS

Bolsheviki Wait in the Hope That Destitution Will Weaken Their Foes.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Riga, Dec. 31.—The food shortage here is becoming increasingly acute. I now learn that the army supplies are very limited. The danger of the situation is obvious.

There is no doubt that the Letvian Government is strongly and honestly fighting Bolshevism with all the means in its power and the majority of the people recall with horror the period of the Bolshevist régime. But, while civilians, in houses, can tighten their belts and eke out their existence with a cup of soup or a few spoonfuls of porridge, matters are very different for the soldiers in the field, who, in addition to their daily risks, have to face the rigors of the Russian Winter. If one is exposed to the weather here proper nourishment is an absolute necessity.

The Letts are forced to maintain an army in the field, not only against the Bolsheviki, but also in Courland, where the presence of the Iron Division at Memel still gives rise to anxiety. In both cases they are fighting the allied battle. If it had not been for them there is precious small likelihood that the Niessel mission would have had such a successful termination.

Regarding the Red front, which the Letts have been able to reinforce and which they now hold strongly, the same applies with greater force, especially if the future be considered.

Do the Allies like to contemplate the idea of Bolshevist rule from Moscow to the sea, or do they still wish to maintain a barrier of non-Bolshevist States, whether as a basis for "peaceful penetration" to bring about a better state of affairs in Russia, or as a jumping off place for anti-Bolshevist operations should they agree to conduct them in any form whatsoever?

Matters are not yet critical, but no time should be lost. It must be remembered that the Red propaganda is both clever and ceaselessly active.

If the Bolsheviki attacked the front today they would be repulsed, but they are too wise for that. They prefer to let general hunger fight their battles for them.

It is easy to say that the Baltic provinces are chiefly England's business, and that if food is needed England should supply it. England has done much, but at present she is physically and financially unable to stand the strain. Only America is in a position to give the help needed. To America the people of Latvia address the appeal:

"We are fighting your battle and the battle of the world against anarchy and disorder. It is in your power to aid us. Will you not do so?"

Cannot Meet Demand for Autos.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 1.—The demand for automobiles in the provinces is so great that American factories will be unable to meet the demand for 1920 cars, according to local dealers today. It is estimated that Canada will spend $75,000,000 for automobiles during the year.

FRENCH VIEW 1919 AS A YEAR LOST

Comment on the Idleness and Waste and the Folly of the Reaction to Years of War.

HIGH HOPES FOR 1920

Brieux Predicts Unparalleled Prosperity When the People Get Down to Productive Work Again.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—"The year 1919 was a year lost." It is in this sense that all the Paris editors today write their thoughts on the year that has died. They have little good to say of 1919, "the year of human folly." They think it has brought little enough to France, to Europe or to the world. The war has been won but peace is not gained. The economic situation, bad enough, has grown worse. National hopes and sorrows are as scrambled at its end as at its beginning.

But France is ever hopeful and her publicists see in 1920 an opportunity of realizing the hopes that failed in 1919. M. Brieux of the French Academy says in the Petit Journal:

"The year which begins today is the first year of the new régime. Last year was a year thrown away. In the joy of having escaped a catastrophe we lost our true conceptions of things. We got ourselves out of focus. We got all stirred up. We frisked about like dancers. We threw out of the window the banknotes easily gained.

"As after the great torment of 1793, we threw ourselves into a frenzy of rejoicing and our women exhibited themselves as little clothed as possible. We stopped working. We embraced certain political theories from which we drew idleness under the name of strike.

"Without understanding what we were doing we followed the nonproduction of four years of war with voluntary laziness. To the destructions of war we added other destructions. The banknote has become simply a permit to destroy, for all our luxury, all our useless money spending, is destruction—destruction of work which superfluous luxury entails, destruction of value represented by the banknote which we could use to pay our foreign debt.

"Humanity had just passed through a crisis of folly which ended when the war stopped. Then, after this madness had piled up our ruins, after barbarism had killed millions and millions of men, at a time when work and economy were indispensable, we decided to reduce our labors and started in on a régime of frolic and prodigality. Before our wrecked house, which we should have rebuilt, we decided to work only eight hours. After a loss of men and treasure unparalleled we threw to the four winds banknotes of illusory value, which had to be replaced by real values.

"The year 1919 was the last year of this business. The year 1920 must be a return to normal life, bearing the fruits of labor joyously performed.

"For four years all activity was consecrated to war. For one year all activity has been sacrifice to feasting. It is time to take a new path.

"After the wars of other times the conqueror got hold of the property of the conquered and could trust to prosperity in repose. Today the conqueror is stripped and ruined and the conquered is unable to pay at once the tribute we are entitled to exact from him. In waiting we, the conquerors, must depend upon ourselves.

"A period begins today which will not contain only days of joyous tranquility. We must make enormous sacrifices and enormous efforts. It is up to us to reduce this period to the minimum. When we have passed it, France will have an era of prosperity such as she has never known. Coal, iron and potash, which the treaty of peace assures us, will permit an incalculable development of our industry and greater production of fields better cultivated. But these new riches will do us no good if everyone does not get to work. Fortunately, we can see, after the night of feasting, in the new dawn consoling signs which justify fond hopes for the morrow."

PARIS CELEBRATION CHECKED.

Restaurants Closed at 11:30 o'Clock on New Year's Eve.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—After the wild scenes of Reveillon Night (Christmas Eve) the Paris celebration of New Year's was indeed a tame affair. The Government decided that the celebration was overdone on Christmas, and put the lid on last night at 11:30 o'clock. Hundreds of extra police were detailed to force all restaurants to close thirty minutes before the crucial hour. The crowds did not remain on the streets as they did on Christmas Eve, and at midnight the boulevards presented only the normal appearance.

Many people left the restaurants after dinner and went to the suburb resorts where they could frolic after midnight, but this number was as nothing compared to the hosts which would have feasted all night had not Premier Clemenceau refused flatly to permit another all-night orgy. A number of Montmartre restaurants turned the clock ahead four hours at 8 o'clock and allowed their patrons to imagine they were roistering until 3:30 in the morning.

Paris overdid the Christmas party and, like a naughty child, had to pay the penalty of not having a New Year's party.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Parisians who wished to meet the New Year boldly, knife and fork in hand, migrated in automobiles across the borders of the neighboring departments of Versailles and Fontainebleau to escape restrictions imposed upon hotels and restaurants here. There was little ceremony in the hostelries of this city during the evening, and attempts of restaurants to make dinners into suppers so as to keep within the Prefect's ruling were given little support.

Newspapers bear lightly on the opening of the New Year, but critics of the administration are overcast with gloom, pointing out that 1920 threatens to bring heavy new taxation and still higher prices for food.

FOREIGN GREETINGS REACH THE PRESIDENT

Many Messages Received—He Spends Two Hours in Wheel Chair on Portico.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—New Year's greetings from the heads of foreign Governments were received today by President Wilson. Messages came from England, Belgium, Luxemburg, Sweden, Italy and other European countries and from most of the South American republics.

The President spent more than two hours in his wheel chair on the south portico of the White House and ate a moderate meal in his room.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 1.—Azevedo Marques, the Foreign Minister, sends through The Associated Press the following New Year's greetings to the people of the United States:

"The Minister of State for Foreign Relations of Brazil greets most cordially the Government of the United States of America in the person of her illustrious President, Mr. Wilson, and sends good wishes to the American people, wishing them every happiness in the new year."

CUT FARES FOR FAMILIES.

Proposed French Measure Encourages Children and Railroads.

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Parents having four or more children will enjoy privileges under the Railroad bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies today. Those traveling third class will be given reductions in rates amounting to 30 per cent. to families of four children, 40 per cent. to those having five, and 50 per cent. to those having six or more.

Albert Claveille, Minister of Public Works, said in introducing the bill the increases provided for were 85 per cent. above the pre-war average for passengers, 144 per cent. for necessities, and 152 for merchandise. He added that they would increase the cost of living only 2 per cent.

The Minister pledged himself to present within three months the proposed Railroad Rorganization bill, and urged the passage of the measure introduced today as a means of ending the transportation crisis.

"Give the companies freedom from worry," he said, "and enable them to borrow on reasonable terms for work which is necessary to put their lines in condition."

M. Sergent, Undersecretary of Finance, said it was necessary to establish confidence in France abroad in order that railroads might borrow money.

PLEADS FOR WAR CAPTIVES.

Pope Urges the Repatriation of 200,000 Still in Siberia.

ROME, Jan. 1.—Pope Benedict recently received a letter from the International Committee of the Red Cross at Geneva, urging him to use all his influence to hasten the repatriation of the 200,000 prisoners still in Siberia, who are suffering the gravest privations. The letter was signed by Gustave Ador, former President of Switzerland and now President of the Red Cross Committee.

The Pontiff answered that he enthusiastically agreed with the sentiments expressed in the letter, and declared the hope that no Christian heart would be unresponsive. The Pope said he would ask the authorities concerned to co-operate for the repatriation of the prisoners.

The Japanese Emperor and Government have been approached by the Pope on the subject, since the only feasible way of repatriating the prisoners is to assemble them at Vladivostoc.

SEEK BRONX PYROMANIAC.

Three Simultaneous Fires in Block on Brook Avenue.

The police and fire departments are investigating a fire which occurred early yesterday morning at 871 Brook Avenue, the Bronx and which they believe to have been kindled by a pyromaniac. This is the sixth fire since June in the tenement and it was one of three fires occurring simultaneously on the same block. Assistant Fire Marshal Herman W. De Maligmon, of the Bronx, and Detective John Ryan of the Morrisania Station are conducting the investigation.

Yesterday's fire started in a baby carriage under the first floor stairway of the five-story tenement, and the quickly ascending flames cut off seventy-five persons living on the upper floors. They were all rescued however, by police of the Morrisania Station who climbed the fire escapes in the rear of the building.

While firemen were busy at 871 Brook Avenue a tenant at 873 rushed out with the announcement that there was a fire under the stairway in that house. Fireman Louis Savarese extinguished the blaze, without assistance, but not until most of the tenants were aroused.

Besides the fires in the adjoining houses yesterday, one occurred on the same block, at 837 Brook Avenue, which has been guarded until recently against incendiaries. The tenants were housed for the night in the police station.

More Pay for Policemen.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Jan. 1.—The City Commissioners today increased the salaries of all policemen $15 a month. The Chief now receives $125 a month and patrolmen $115. Salaries of the Assessor and Tax Collector were increased from $1,200 to $1,500 a year. Other officials were increased proportionately.

ITALY HAD SECRET TREATY WITH PARIS

Ambassador Barrere Reveals Agreement Made in 1902, Unknown to Central Powers.

NEUTRALITY PLEDGE GIVEN

Either Was to Keep Hands Off in Case of Aggressive War Against the Other.

ROME, Jan. 1.—A notable event of New Year's Day here was an address of Camille Barrère, the French Ambassador, during a reception to the French colony, at which he said that he had never practiced what is described as secret diplomacy. He hoped that he would never commit such a sin, he added.

"Diplomatists have been maltreated," M. Barrère continued. "They were accused of practicing the mortal sin of underground diplomacy while publicly claiming its suppression. But it is difficult to suppress what does not exist.

"Two things are confused which have nothing in common with secret diplomacy. If I followed directions contrary to those of my Government I would practice secret diplomacy, but when I keep silent on State affairs which I negotiate with the Government to which I am accredited I simply accomplish an elementary duty without which the nations would constantly be at each other's throats. Many unpleasant and delicate affairs are arranged which, if divulged, would deeply disturb the tranquility of the peoples.

"Proof of this has just been demonstrated in a striking manner. The Franco-Italian agreement of 1900, eliminating all causes of conflict in the Mediterranean and tracing reciprocal spheres of influence in Africa, was followed by an agreement in 1902 establishing that in case of an aggressive war either country would maintain strict neutrality, even in case one of them was obliged to declare war to defend her honor and safety. What the two Governments agreed contained nothing clandestine, nothing which could not be confessed. But if we recall the situation in Europe then it will be easily understood that knowledge of the agreements by those who had an interest in making them ineffective would have been a grave danger.

"France still wanted peace while the Central Powers prepared for war. If the Teuton powers had known the ties about to be established between the two great Latin peoples they would have done everything to break them off. Such an attempt would have put the peace of the world in danger, hastening the hour in which our adversaries determined to consolidate their hegemony by iron and gold. The French and Italian Governments were, therefore, wise to keep their agreements a secret, which was never violated."

The New Year was celebrated in Italy with almost the same ceremonies as Christmas, there being a general exchange of presents, with dinners and other social affairs. The King received the high dignitaries of state and members of Parliament at the Quirinal Palace. The Diplomatic Corps will be received by the King and the Queen tomorrow evening.

MANY FRENCH MILLS IN THE NORTH RESUME

About Half Are Operating—30,000 Were Crippled by Germans—Notable Textile Increase.

LILLE, Jan. 1.—Production has been resumed in about one-half the factories of Northern France, where the outbreak of the war paralyzed industry and where battles raged for four years. Of this number, however, about 18 per cent. have been at work only a month. Figures examined today by the correspondent of The Associated Press show that in this region 80,000 plants, employing 800,000 workers, were razed by gunfire, looted or badly disorganized.

Officials consider the work done during the last year as creditable, since the period between Nov. 11, when the armistice was signed, and the first of March, was occupied in getting ready for operations. It was necessary to begin at the bottom and build railways, houses and storage places for food and supplies, and to build roads capable of bearing motor vehicles before actual work on rehabilitating the country could begin.

It was necessary, in addition, to aid all the sufferers in the war zone at once instead of concentrating efforts in one district. Energetic manufacturers, however, frequently were able to obtain results by co-ordinating their efforts with those of the Government, their energy being an asset which enabled them to obtain advantages in the shipment of machinery and raw materials.

There has been a notable increase in the resumption of plants, especially those turning out textiles, during the past few weeks, but it is estimated it will take three years for the majority of the principal trades such as glass-making, woodworking and sugar refining to resume production on a normal scale. Large mechanical plants such as the locomotive works at Valenciennes and the coal mines about Lens will be under a handicap for a longer time, and it is believed ten years must elapse before full speed ahead will be possible.

Machinery and equipment weighing about 250,000 tons have been returned from Germany, and the French Government has advanced to industrial firms credits totalling approximately 6,000,000,000 francs. This sum will be applied against damages estimated in the Chamber of Deputies to amount to 50,000,000,000 francs.

It is generally admitted the industries receiving immediate aid have been those most essential to the rehabilitation of France, houses being constructed or repaired to shelter factory workers before ordinary dwellings received attention. In the matter of public utilities, individuals have fared best. Factories have been forced to close because of lack of gas or electricity but private houses have been supplied.

AGREE ON CARDINALSHIP.

Papal Nuncio and Berlin Government Also Discuss New Relations.

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—The negotiations of the Papal Nuncio with the Government yesterday concerned the clearing up of two important questions—regulation of formal diplomatic relations between the Government and the Vatican and reoccupation of the Cologne Cardinalship.

It is officially reported that an agreement was reached on the latter question.

BRITISH REPULSE INDIAN TRIBESMEN

Severe Fighting Took Place with the Mahsuds and Waziri Dec. 18, 19, and 20.

BRITISH FORCED TO RETIRE

But Later Inflicted Heavy Casualties and Recaptured Their Abandoned Positions.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Dispatches received here from British India under date of Dec. 18 and Dec. 20 show that there has been considerable fighting between the British Expeditionary Forces and the revolting tribesmen. Severe losses were inflicted on the tribesmen, although the British were apparently put to a hard test in defeating them.

A dispatch from Mandannakach, dated Dec. 18, says the British column, fighting against 2,000 Mahsuds and another force composed of Waziri and Mahsuds, who occupied the hills westward of Jandola, captured the Sarkai Ridge, driving the tribesmen from their positions, upon which the British later pitched their camp. Airplanes followed the enemy, harassing them and causing numbers of casualties. In the encounter the British losses are described as having been light.

A further dispatch, dated Dec. 20 shows that on Dec. 19 the tribesmen counterattacked and the British were compelled to retire owing to heavy casualties from Sand Bag Hill, which they had previously taken after a stubborn resistance lasting several hours. Sand Bag Hill and the adjacent ridges form a strategic position essential to the safety of the British columns in their further progress.

The battle was continued on the 20th and the British in two hours recaptured the positions they were forced to abandon the previous day. The enemy casualties are reported to have been heavy.

$13,000,000,000 LOAN CALLED IDIOTIC FAKE

Glass, Polk, and Governor Harding of Federal Reserve System Deny the Story.

ITS IMPOSSIBILITY SHOWN

Viscount Grey Never Discussed Such a Thing with Anybody, Official or Otherwise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—"A ridiculous and idiotic fake" is what Secretary Glass tonight called the story printed in a New York newspaper this morning, stating that Viscount Grey, the British Ambassador, now in New York on his way back to England, had obtained from the Wilson Administration the promise of support of a $13,000,000,000 loan.

According to this story the real object of Viscount Grey's mission to the United States was to obtain the pledge of the Washington Government for such a loan, and it was stated that he had succeeded in obtaining that pledge.

Officials of the State as well as the Treasury Department denied that any such pledge or any promise for such a new loan to Great Britain had been given to Viscount Grey or that the matter had even been considered. These officials characterized the story as too preposterous to be considered seriously.

Mr. Glass said that Viscount Grey had not opened his lips to the Treasury Department regarding financial matters, that Congress was the only body in this country empowered to authorize foreign loans, and that it was idiotic for any one to assert that anybody connected with this Government had given Viscount Grey, or any one else, any such "pledge" of financial help.

"Absurd," Says Mr. Polk.

Frank L. Polk, Under Secretary of State, declared that the story was "absurd," and that the matter of a loan had not even been discussed with officials of the State Department.

William R. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, authorized THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to quote him as follows:

"It is all news to the Federal Reserve Board. The board never heard of the proposition."

No financial transaction of such importance could have been discussed without the Treasury Department or the Federal Reserve Board being consulted, and Secretary Glass's statement that Viscount Grey never opened his lips to the Treasury about such a thing or that it had ever been brought to the attention of the Treasury, as well as Under Secretary Polk's assurance that the matter had not been taken up with the State Department, and Governor Harding's statement that the Federal Reserve Board never even heard of it, are deemed ample evidence that Viscount Grey not only received no pledge, but that the making of such a promise was not even presented for consideration.

It was pointed out further that as the President has never taken up the question with the responsible financial officials of the Government, and has no right to act without the authority of Congress, and never even saw Viscount Grey during the latter's stay in Washington, it was impossible that the President could have given such a promise to the Ambassador.

President Wilson and the executive branch of the Government have no power to lend more than $10,000,000,000 to the allied powers, and that up to date a little more than $9,000,000,000 had been loaned to them.

According to the story printed in New York, the alleged pledge by the Wilson Administration of support of a "gigantic international loan" of $13,000,000,000 contemplated that this loan would be handled through the Federal Reserve Bank, and was meant to take up the outstanding loans to Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and other Allies with unpaid interest to date. Its purpose was to "relieve Great Britain and her allies of the present tremendous pressure," and it was planned that the loan should run for fifty years.

Barrier of Law in Way of Loan.

Treasury officials dwelt upon how ridiculous it was to assert that anybody could pledge this country to a new loan, in advance of action by Congress, much less promise any loan for fifty years to be handled through the Federal Reserve bank. In the first place, a high Treasury official said the banking laws strictly defined the eligibility of paper upon which the banks could make loans. The Federal Reserve system is not permitted by law to make loans on British or other foreign bonds, American Government bonds and notes being the only investment security recognized by the Reserve Board and banks. Moreover, the law does not authorize Reserve banks to make loans for longer than ninety days.

Any arrangement for a loan of $13,000,000,000 to the allied powers, even if it were to include a refunding and taking up of old credits granted by this Government to the Allies, would involve the granting of $3,000,000,000 above what Congress has already permitted to be loaned, and no one could be found who believed that Congress would agree to such a proposition.

The fact was it was said, that responsible leaders in the executive and administrative branches of the Government were bending every effort toward cutting down Federal expenditures in an effort to lighten the burden of taxation at a time when the high cost of living was held to be one of the most important issues before the Government.

It was recalled that in his recent annual report Secretary Glass made this statement:

"The power which at present exists in the Government or governmental agencies to assist in meeting Europe's financial needs is considerable. This power must, of course, be exercised with extreme caution and with the most careful regard for the urgent needs of our own people for an ample supply of foodstuffs and other necessities of life at reasonable prices.

"The Treasury is considering with representatives of the Governments of the Allies the funding of the demand obligations which the United States holds into long-term obligations, and at the same time the funding during the reconstruction period, say for a period of two or three years, of the interest on the obligations of foreign Governments acquired by the United States under the Liberty Loan acts.

"The Treasury believes that the need of Europe for financial assistance, very great and very real though it is, has been exaggerated both here and abroad."

The general policy of the Treasury concerning foreign financing may be summarized as follows:

First—Since the armistice the United States had advanced to the Governments of the Allies, as of the close of business Oct. 21, 1919, $2,329,257,138.55, and there remained on that date an unexpended balance of $393,628,111.45 from total loans of $10,000,000,000 authorized.

Second—The Treasury asked and obtained power for the War Finance Corporation to make advances up to the amount of $1,000,000,000 for non-war purposes, and the War Finance Corporation has been prepared to make such advances.

Third—Under the act of Sept. 17, 1919, the Federal Reserve Board is authorized to permit until Jan. 1, 1921, national banks to invest to a limited extent in the stock of American corporations principally engaged in such phases of international or foreign financial operations as may be necessary to facilitate exports.

Fourth—The Secretary of War is authorized to sell surplus army stores on credit.

Fifth—The United States Wheat Director has been authorized to sell wheat to Europe on credit.

Relative to the statement made by Sir George Paish on his arrival in New York from England yesterday, that a huge loan from the United States would be necessary if Europe were to be placed on its feet again, it is emphasized that he is not a British Government official and has come here in a private capacity.

Denial by Sir William Tyrrell.

Sir William Tyrrell, secretary of Viscount Grey, was quoted yesterday as saying that the $13,000,000,000 loan story had not the slightest basis of truth.

"Lord Grey," said Sir William, "came here on an entirely different mission. Negotiating a loan was no part of it at all and the Ambassador never discussed the question in any way, shape or manner with anybody whatsoever, official or nonofficial."

Sir George Paish, it is understood, is here in an unofficial capacity. So far as is known, he does not represent the British Government, and in whatever conferences he may have had with American bankers, it is believed that he will be acting solely as an interested individual.

In British circles yesterday the statement credited to him on his arrival from England on Wednesday that dire calamity threatened Great Britain and Continental Europe unless a loan of unprecedented proportions were made to them by the United States was severely criticised. Such assertions, it was said, were not calculated to facilitate the task of raising a huge loan in this country if such a thing was contemplated.

WOULD HELP EUROPE WITH $3,000,000,000

American Exporters Could Extend Credit Under New Law, Says Senator Edge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, father of the new export trading bill, maintains that under this law it will be possible for American business interests to finance Europe for more than $3,000,000,000 without straining their resources and with profit to themselves, and the upbuilding of American foreign trade.

The financing of impoverished foreign purchasers of American goods, Mr. Edge asserts, will open the world markets which the United States must have to maintain production.

"Europe must have credit," said Senator Edge today, "and the American vendor must have cash to keep American industry working; and the Export Finance act is designed to provide this credit and transmute it into real money. During the war the United States Government extended to Europe approximately nine or ten billion dollars in credit and today we cannot get even the interest on it. Some persons want us to waive this interest. I am not one of that class, but I do believe we should help Europe and not sidestep our responsibilities in peace any more than we did in time of war, and especially as now we can meet them without hardship, but rather with real profit to our own people.

"Instead of the worse than eleemosynary procedure of lending Europe more money, let American business men and financiers help the foreigners reconstruct their devastated factories and reclaim their devastated fields and mines by converting their credit into cash; then, in time, they can pay the interest on their debt to us and gradually pay off the principal. Selfishly, the new act is an 'America first' measure; but also we must remember that the hope of the world turns with confidence to the constructive genius of the United States, and we must not disappoint it."

While the new law would be especially advantageous to the banking business, there was no reason why individuals and concerns in industrial or export lines should not take equal advantage of it, said the Senator. Fundamentally the new law was an industrial measure. Under it any number of industrial concerns could form an export finance corporation.

"From impoverished purchasers an export finance corporation accepts collateral satisfactory to the Federal Reserve Board and against this issue debentures for sale to investors, the money so raised going to the American producers or exporters," explained the Senator. "Under the Federal Reserve act banks may not rediscount paper of more than ninety days' maturity; under the Edge act paper is not rediscounted but is held as collateral for the debentures. The money involved in all transactions is kept in the United States and not a penny goes abroad. Finally through Government supervision exercised by the Federal Reserve Board the safety of all transactions is assured, as far as is humanly possible; the vendors are paid real cash, so run no risk, and the stockholders of the corporations and the purchasers of the debentures are safeguarded by the Federal Reserve Board."

COURT HOLDS TENANT TO TERMS OF LEASE

Landlord May Evict Without Reason, on Five Days' Notice, if So Stipulated.

CASE MAY BE APPEALED

Decision Affects Thousands of Dispossess Suits Held in Abeyance Pending Test Action.

Tenants who sign leases giving their landlords power to terminate them in five days on the ground that the tenants are objectionable, and making the landlord the sole judge as to wether the tenant is objectionable, but not requiring that the reason for such decision be stated, are at the mercy of the landlord unless a decision just handed down by the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court is reversed.

The decision affects thousands of dispossess cases brought in the Municipal Courts of the city in which the decision has been held in abeyance following the appeal by the landlord in the test case from a ruling by the trial Justice dismissing the proceeding, and in the belief of those who have studied it the decision may be used by unscrupulous landlords for the purpose of ousting tenants whose sole offense in the way of becoming objectionable is that they do not pay as much rent as could be obtained from new tenants.

The case before the court was brought by the Waitt Construction Company against Jeanne Loraine to dispossess her from a west side apartment because she refused to obey the order to vacate within five days after the landlord had served notice on her that she was "objectionable" within the terms of the lease. It is expected that the Appellate Division will be asked to review the decision because of the rights of the thousands of tenants involved in pending cases and many thousands more against whom such proceedings may be brought.

Justice Lehman, who wrote the opinion, concurred in by the other members of the court, states that one of the clauses of the Waitt Construction Company lease is that, "if the landlord shall at any time deem objectionable or improper or undesirable the conduct of the tenant or any occupant the landlord may at his option terminate the lease by giving the tenant written notice of five days of an intention to terminate the same. In this event the right of possession will expire five days after giving notice, and the tenant agrees to give peaceable possession."

The most vital clause in the lease in its effect on the rights of tenants is the following:

"It is further agreed that any part of the clause shall be interpreted to mean that the character of the tendency is to be decided entirely by the landlord and that it shall not be necessary for the landlord to prove in what way a tenant's conduct shall have become objectionable or improper or undesirable, the same to be a matter to be decided by the landlord and upon the landlord's decision to be binding."

The opinion of Justice Lehman states that the trial Justice in the Municipal Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the clause in the lease gives no right to a dispossess proceeding and that the clause creates a condition and not a limitation. The trial Justice took the view that the Court of Appeals had decided that a dispossess proceeding "cannot be brought because of a breach of a condition of the lease."

The defendant also contended that the landlord had failed to set forth in what way her tenancy had become undesirable. Justice Lehman says the landlord apparently failed to do so because he relied on the provision in the clause that it was to be decided entirely by him. The Appellate Term decides that the complaint was sufficient in this respect.

The Appellate Term rules that decisions by the Court of Appeals permit dispossess proceedings in cases such as the one before the court and states that the most serious defect in the complaint against the tenant is that the landlord fails to state that he deems the tenant undesirable. The court says:

"It may well be that the landlord need not show in fact that the tenancy was undesirable or that he had any reasonable grounds for deeming it undesirable and yet, since his option to terminate the lease arises only if he deems the tenancy undesirable, the petition should allege this."

The court decides that this defect is not sufficient to sustain the dismissal of the complaint "based on erroneous grounds," and a new trial is ordered. If the complaint is amended to remedy the defect pointed out by the Appellate Term there will be nothing for the trial court to do but issue a dispossess decree

WANTED
A Business Manager

A new and exceptionally strongly backed business organization, furnishing a high-class service to the public, has need of a business manager. The man wanted for this place must be

1. An experienced executive, capable of co-operating with men who are experts in their own lines, but who are under his business direction—perhaps a former executive of a manufacturing corporation, or large hotel.

2. A man capable of organizing the economical purchase of supplies—perhaps formerly a purchasing agent for a chain store or similar organization.

3. A man of sufficient business training and initiative to take over the aggressive management and operation of a large service organization. In short, a business manager, with the qualities which that title implies.

This opportunity will be attractive to a man of real ability because it will offer —connection with a twenty million dollar organization, nationwide in scope;

—the unusual opportunity offered by an established, successful enterprise which is entering into extensive new development;
—compensation fully commensurate with the ability of the man, and an unlimited future;
—headquarters in New York and an attractive nearby city.

Your reply will be considered entirely confidential. Address Mr. Douglas, P 759 Times Downtown.

TO CARRY AMNESTY PLEA TO PRESIDENT

People's Freedom Union Plans Demonstration at Capital for Pardon of 'Political Prisoners'

ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Thousands Expected to Line Up on White House Lawn—Martens Here for Holiday.

Plans to carry to the White House the agitation to have "political prisoners" released from Federal penitentiaries, were announced yesterday by the People's Freedom Union of 138 West Thirteenth Street, the organization that organized the "amnesty walk," which was broken up by the police in Fifth Avenue on Christmas Day.

By agreement with organizations throughout the country, the union expects thousands to be lined up on President Wilson's lawn on Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday. The band will carry banners telling about the eighteen English Bishops who helped get a flock of conscientious objectors out of the cages of the British penal system. And there may be a group of manacled lads, in baggy convict gray, as a picturesque addition to the scenario of the undertaking.

The union expects to have placarded pickets standing on the doorsteps of as many Washington officials as there are pickets enough to go around.

Ludwig Christian August Karl Martens, "Ambassador" of Soviet Russia to the United States, came into town yesterday. According to the Soviet Bureau at 110 West Fortieth Street, Martens came up from Washington to spend the holiday with his wife and two daughters. Charles Recht, his counsel, said that Martens would be in Washington on Monday in connection with the first public hearing of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. The Soviet emissary departed about two weeks ago just as the Lusk Committee obtained an order on him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of the committee in refusing to answer some of its questions. Recht was asked if the order had been served.

"The Lusk Committee ceased to exist on Wednesday night at midnight," he replied, "and furthermore a Federal subpoena to attend the United States Senate inquiry takes precedence over everything else. Mr. Martens is going to Washington to assist the committee."

Mr. Recht added that Santeri Nuorteva, Secretary of the Soviet Bureau, and a companion in the Lusk Committee's projected court appearance of the two Russian missionaries, was still in Washington.

Victor L. Berger, recently re-elected to Congress from Wisconsin, will speak at a meeting on Sunday at 2 o'clock in the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street. Others scheduled to talk are Assemblyman Louis Waldman, Alderman Abraham Beckerman and Algernon Lee.

Harry Norman, who sailed from Baltimore several weeks ago on the freighter Lake Fabyan, arrived here yesterday on the Ward liner Mexico, having been deported from Cuba under the decree of President Menocal designed to free the country from radicals. Norman is 23 years old and hails from Danville, Ill. Norman said he was an I. W. W. but denied that he was a Bolshevik or that he had talked Bolshevism, for which he was deported.

A meeting of a small group was held in the New York Labor Temple, 243 East Eighteth Street yesterday afternoon and last night in sympathy with the Positivist Festival of Humanity, held all over the world New Year's Day by the followers of Auguste Comte, a French philosopher.

Denunciation of England's administration of India and Ireland, protests against the Russian blockade and the detention of "political" prisoners in this country were made by the speakers, who included Edward King, Miss Leonora O'Reilly of the Women's Trade Union League, Dr. N. S. Hardiker, managing editor of Young India, and Isaac Spectorsky.

MIDDIE KILLS CLASSMATE.

M. G. Thompson Accidentally Shoots Carroll Joy of Keokuk.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 1.—Midshipman Carroll Joy, of Keokuk, Iowa, a member of the second class at the Naval Academy, died today from the effects of a bullet wound accidentally inflicted by M. G. Thompson, a classmate, while target shooting in the woods near here last Tuesday. A third midshipman was in the party.

Thompson had fired at the target, and while attempting to adjust the safety catch of his revolver the weapon was discharged.

MALONE SAYS LEGION CAN'T BUY HIS FAITH

Former Port Official Declares Any Attempt Thus to Control Opinion Will Strengthen Fight.

DENIES RADICAL VIEWS

States That He Never Advocated Even Peaceful and Orderly Change in Government's Form.

Dudley Field Malone, who was rejected for membership in the Croton Post of the American Legion by the Westchester County Committee, denied last night that he had made application to join the Croton or any other particular Legion post in the county. The former Collector of the Port of New York, who is now counsel for the unrecognized Russian Soviet "Embassy," was barred by the Westchester committee on the ground that his attitude "did not place him in accord with the ideals of Americanism adopted by the American Legion."

"I filled out a postal card application for membership in the Legion at the solicitation of a friend of mine," said Mr. Malone, "and I assumed that I would be assigned to some naval officers' post in New York County. Since that time I have heard nothing regarding my application. I do not understand why I was assigned to the Croton Post unless it was because I lived in Croton last Summer."

When the action of the Westchester County Committee was brought to Mr. Malone's attention yesterday afternoon upon his arrival from Chicago, he issued a statement in which he declared that membership in the Legion could not buy his convictions, and that any attempt by the Legion to control opinion through social ostracism will only "strengthen the fight for political and industrial change."

The statement follows:

"My membership in the American Legion was solicited by a naval officer and filed at least six months ago. I thought then that members of the legion were organizing to restore that spirit of liberty and tolerance in America for which so many of their comrades died abroad.

"My opinions are objected to as radical. I have never advocated even a peaceful and orderly change in the form of our Government. But I have advocated and shall continue to advocate a return to the Constitution as it was written, and not as it is constantly perverted by officials and courts.

"Our country entered the war not only to destroy German imperialism, but for the self-determination of all people. And I have urged and shall continue to urge the right of people of Ireland, India, Egypt, and Russia to choose any form of government that seems to them more suited to their needs.

"A constant study of Webster, Lincoln, and Wendell Phillips convinces me that this is the only attitude of vision and understanding worthy of American traditions.

"This is my simple creed. Membership in the American Legion could not buy it from me. And any attempt by the American Legion to control opinion by social ostracism will only strengthen the fight for political and industrial change."

REPORTED PLUNKETT DEAD.

London Published False Message—He Is in Battle Creek.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A report received from the United States that Sir Horace Plunkett was dead was published in the newspapers today, together with long and eulogistic obituaries.

The secretary of Sir Horace posted a notice on the door of Sir Horace's home in Dublin during the day, saying that the report of his death was not credited. It added that Sir Horace had cabled Saturday, declaring that his health was much better.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 1.—Sir Horace Plunkett arrived here today and will stay a week or two at a local sanitarium.

A report had preceded him that he was dead somewhere between New York and Battle Creek. "I can only quote Mark Twain, and say that the report of my death is 'greatly exaggerated,'" he said with a healthy smile, as he alighted from the train.

HOG ISLAND BREAKS RECORD

74 Vessels, 615,050 Deadweight Tons, Launched Since August, 1918.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—Seventy-four vessels, aggregating 615,050 deadweight tons, have been launched at Hog Island since Aug. 5, 1918.

Figures made public by the shipyard officials today show that sixty-four vessels have been delivered. All records for ship construction and delivery have been broken at Hog Island. The last ship launched was the City of Flint, Dec. 27. The Cliffwood was the sixty-fourth delivered.

The total tonnage is slightly more than one-fourteenth of the total steel tonnage launched for the Emergency Fleet Corporation by all shipyards in the country from November, 1917, to Dec. 27, 1919.

THE WAYFARER

December 29th, 1919.

To The Interchurch World Movement.

Gentlemen:

Allow me to express to your great organization my admiration of the high purpose that has prompted your fine production of "The Wayfarer" at Madison Square Garden. Aside from its undoubted success as a dramatic spectacle, with its artistically devised scenes, and its beautifully handled story of The Messiah, I was especially impressed by the note of earnestness and sincerity which seemed to inspire its throngs upon the stage that even a matter-of-fact New York audience was held in a spell of reverence, as if realizing for the first time the true import of the greatest of all human dramas, enacted in Palestine over nineteen centuries ago.

It is a presentation not merely for one creed or one faith. It may be seen and enjoyed by Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant; for, after all, its lesson is for humanity, and its dramatic appeal is as sure as human sympathy itself.

That the Interchurch World Movement should have undertaken to present this great story in its present form, and to do it in so masterly a fashion, is the most hopeful sign of the universal good that can come if henceforth church and stage will only work in friendly alliance.

Let me thank you for a wonderful evening!

Faithfully,

David Belasco

Guardian of the Helpless

YOUR membership in the U. C. T. enables you to render a service to needy widows and orphaned children of men who, when living, followed your profession.

It is a fact that nearly twenty per cent of the dependents of commercial travelers who have "passed on" are left helpless and without means of support.

To provide for such dependents of the U. C. T. a widows' and orphans' fund has been created. Since 1888, when the order was founded, the disbursements from this unique benevolent fund have amounted to $757,908.26.

CURRAN SWORN IN, LAGUARDIA ALSO

Borough President and Head of Aldermen Silent on Public Issues.

TWO RESIGNATIONS ASKED

Curran Pays Tribute to the Late Frank L. Dowling—Says Fairer Man Never Lived.

Two Republican officials, Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, and F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, who were elected in November, and who will have six votes in an otherwise Democratic Board of Estimate and Apportionment, formally took up their new duties yesterday, holding receptions in their offices and receiving the congratulations of many friends. Major Curran announced several new appointments, while Major LaGuardia requested the resignations of two employes who had served previous Aldermanic Presidents. Neither official would indicate his attitude on the traffic situation nor other issues of importance to be decided by the city administration.

At his office in the Municipal Building the oath of office was administered to Borough President Curran and his appointees by Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook. The office was filled with flowers from friends, one of the gifts being from Corporal Edward McCorrey of the 302d Ammunition Train, who was Major Curran's driver while in France. The retiring President, Michael F. Laughman, who succeeded the late Frank J. Dowling, except for a brief period when Edward J. Boyle held the office, welcomed the new President, and said it was a pleasure to turn the office over to Major Curran. In the course of his welcome he remarked:

"The administration of the late Frank L. Dowling needs no explanation. It was one of sympathy and efficiency." In reply President Curran said:

"It is a strange turn of the political cards that I should succeed one of my nearest and dearest personal friends, Frank Dowling. A fairer, squarer man than he never lived. It is indeed an honor to succeed him. My department will work as a team to guarantee efficiency, and the one object of my administration will be to serve the people of the City of New York."

President Curran announced the appointment of William Goldstecker as secretary to the Superintendent of Buildings at a salary of $3,000 a year. Goldstecker lives at 15 West 103d Street and was an Assistant Corporation Counsel in the Mitchel administration, in charge of tax litigation. William J. Lyons of 319 West Forty-second Street, was appointed confidential inspector at $3,000 a year. He is a brother of John J. Lyons, Republican leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District, and was manager of President Curran's campaign. Harry J. Stanton of 501 West 135th Street was appointed stenographer to the Commissioner of Public Works at $1,800 a year.

The reception to President-elect LaGuardia was held in the offices of the President of the Board of Aldermen at the east end of the corridor in the City Hall. It also was filled with floral gifts and for several hours Major LaGuardia and his wife received the congratulations of friends. The floral gifts came from Hoboken, from the Italian Campaign Committee, the Progressive Republican Club, the Uniformed Firemen's Association of New York and from personal friends. Most of the floral pieces bore a red banner with the word "Success" inscribed in gilt letters. Charles S. Devoy of Brooklyn, who was appointed assistant to the President, was remembered with flowers from friends in the Seventh Assembly District of Brooklyn and the Republican Club of the same district.

Justice McCook was at the President's office shortly before noon and administered the oath to both the President and his assistant, as well as to Miss Charlotte Delafield, Secretary to the President, and Marie M. Fisher, confidential stenographer. Miss Fisher was Mr. LaGuardia's Secretary when he was in the House of Representatives.

President LaGuardia requested the resignations of William J. Farrell, messenger, at $1,400 a year, and Mrs. Anna C. Donner, who has been confidential stenographer to every Aldermanic President since the time of President Fornes, in the first McClellan administration. Farrell has been in office since 1902. Mrs. Donner's resignation will take effect Jan. 20. In the meantime the President has granted her a vacation. Lieutenant John McGinity, who was the police officer to the President, has been transferred to the Public Service Commissioner. Commissioner Enright has not yet made an assignment in his place.

The flowers received by the President and Borough President Curran were sent to the various hospitals.

Before he left his office for the day Mayor Hylan and Mrs. Hylan, his Secretary, John F. Sinnott, and Mrs. Sinnott, who was Miss Virginia Hylan, and Commissioner and Mrs. Whalen called on President LaGuardia and wished him a happy New Year. Later President and Mrs. LaGuardia called upon the Mayor, as did Borough President and Mrs. Curran, Charles S. Devoy and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Fay.

FOLEY TAKES OFFICE.

New Surrogate Greeted by Jurists and Other Office Holders.

Surrogate James A. Foley was inducted into office yesterday in the trial room of the Surrogate's Court. There were many floral tributes. Judges and ex-Judges of many courts, office holders, past and present, and a number of women, including the Surrogate's mother, were present. The incumbent was escorted to the bench by Surrogate John P. Cohalan after a brief reception and a greeting from Robert Ludlow Fowler, the retiring surrogate. Addresses were made by Surrogate Cohalan, Judge Abram I. Elkus, of the Court of Appeals; State Senator James J. Walker; former Assemblyman James Hoey and Assistant District Attorney James M. Donahue.

BROOKLYN MEN INDUCTED.

County Judge Haskell and Other Republicans Sworn In.

County Judge Reuben L. Haskell, elected as a "wet" candidate; Sheriff John Drescher, Register Edward T. Maddox and Supreme Court Justice Arnon L. Squiers, the four Republicans elected in Brooklyn at the last election, were inducted into office yesterday. Judge Haskell assumed office in Part 1 of the County Court. The ceremonies were attended by many representative citizens of Brooklyn and several women, including members of Judge Haskell's family. The oath of office was administered by County Clerk William E. Kelly, and speeches were made by United States Senator William M. Calder and others.

At the office of Sheriff Drescher the newly appointed officials were sworn in, including ex-Judge William Schnitzler, Republican leader of the Twentieth Assembly District, as Under Sheriff; Henry F. Whalen, chief clerk; James H. Van Duzer, deputy clerk; Richard Wright, warden of the jail; Charles S. Francisco, deputy warden, and Miss Marie Frugone, secretary. Eight deputies were appointed at a salary of $2,250 a year each; eight assistants at salaries of $1,500 to $2,000 each; eight keepers, three matrons and three cleaners. Register Maddox was sworn in Wednesday, but his deputies were sworn in yesterday by County Clerk Kelly. Jacob Bartscherer, Republican leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District, was appointed Deputy Register; John V. Dunn, Assistant Deputy; George W. Criss, cashier, and Thomas H. Livingston, secretary. The new Register postponed the naming of counsel for a week.

O'SHEEL OUT FOR CONGRESS

Wants to Succeed LaGuardia on Declaration of Independence Platform.

Shaemas O'Sheel, a writer of 70 Perry Street, announced himself as a candidate yesterday for the Republican nomination for Representative in the Fourteenth Congressional District, to succeed Major F. H. LaGuardia. There are now nine or ten other candidates in the field, but Mr. O'Sheel is the first to make known his platform as a preliminary to his campaign.

"I am a candidate because I am a Republican," he said, "a native and a resident of the Fourteenth District, and because I wish to urge policies which I believe will meet the thoughts of the people. My platform is the Declaration of Independence, within which will be found the cure for every problem facing the nation today."

He says he will stand for the Republican policy of protective tariff, development of the merchant marine, and for improvements of the Port of New York, and is opposed to the League of Nations, prohibition, socialism, and radicals, who, he asserts, are made not by agitators but by "25-cent sugar and 20-cent milk."

The other Republican candidates include Arthur Egan, Assemblyman Robert Marsh, Harry Andrews, Parker Nevins, ex-Justice Hartmann of the Municipal Court, ex-Assemblyman Nathaniel Perlman, Harry Kopp, Matthew Phillips, and John N. Boyle. Mr. O'Sheel says his Democratic rivals are Charles W. Culkin, ex-Mayor George B. McClellan, Charles Curtin, and Jeremiah Lawlor. When LaGuardia retired he suggested Major Michael A. Kelly of the Bronx as a candidate. Mr. O'Sheel says Major Kelly has declined, and that furthermore the voters of the district would not give support to any candidate living outside of the district.

HYLAN DENOUNCES ALL WHO 'POKE IN'

men in the financial, political, and business worlds seek to control public officials in order to have them serve their particular purposes with no regard for the rights of the masses.

"In New York, because of its size and great concentration of wealth, these cliques, rings, and combinations composed of men from all over the world and in all walks of life, have been developed to a high state of cunning and crafty efficiency for the particular business or cause they espouse. In many instances they have grown more powerful than the Government itself because of their control of public officials whose duty it is to administer the affairs of government.

"In the Mayor's office there are two roads to travel. One is to serve the people and the other is to serve the special interests. You cannot serve two masters. The public official in the Mayor's office who endeavors to serve the people will experience trouble and will be subjected to the most malicious criticism by the special privilege-seeking interests, who control many of the newspapers and other avenues of publication, which they use in an attempt to poison the minds of the people.

Charges Profit Seeking.

Many prominent and presumably respectable men of the city who are held in high esteem because of their great wealth must invest their millions in some profitable and safe enterprise. It is their business to keep the city in such financial straits that the city must necessarily borrow a great deal of money to finance its activities. These same men are prepared to lend substantial sums to the municipality at a good rate of interest, thereby reaping great profits, which must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

"If public officials in the past had not frittered away the city's valuable franchises and privileges the income derived therefrom would go far toward reducing the great burden of taxation and providing sufficient funds to build schools, subways, docks, rapid transit tubes, and other great public improvements without placing greater burdens on the backs of the people.

"Of course, this policy would not be profitable to the municipal bond buyer and other money lenders. These prominent public 'benefactors' are usually connected with and contribute to organizations like the City Club, Chambers of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Citizens' Union and the like. If a public official is not subservient to these wealthy and powerful men then the wrath of these so-called reform organizations is turned loose upon the public official in an effort to destroy him.

Gratuitous Advice Not Wanted.

"Just as we have divorced this administration from the baneful influences I have mentioned, we have also found that the municipal machinery can function satisfactorily in the interests of all the people without the gratuitous suggestions of such organizations as the City Club, the Bureau of Municipal Research, Merchants' Association, Chambers of Commerce, Citizens' Union, Committee of Fourteen and similar self-constituted bodies which can thrive only by fastening themselves on the municipality."

The Mayor referred to the charges recently brought against District Attorney Swann by the City Club and paid this compliment to the Merchants' Association:

"The Merchants' Association, whose President is a man named Morgan, appointed a committee, headed by Charles E. Hughes, of Carson-Martin higher fare and higher gas rate repute, called the 'Citizen's Traction Committee,' evidently with the intention to force public officials to favor an increased fare. This committee has been more appropriately named 'The Interborough and B. R. T. Traction Committee.'"

No Need for Interference.

After taking a slap at the Citizens' Union and the Committee of Fourteen, the Mayor said that if the city administration runs its affairs honestly, as it is going at present, there will be no need for interference on the part of "so-called reformers whose specialty is to hurl criticism at public officials who are opposed to invisible government and refuse to do their bidding."

The Mayor also referred at length to the fight he is making on Superintendent Ettinger of the public schools, and said that "powerful outside educational influences" are endeavoring to control the Board of Education." Influences, "equally as pernicious," he said, are endeavoring to control the inferior courts, the Health, the Dock, the Charities, and other departments in the city.

The Mayor then ordered his Commissioners and deputies to make a thorough survey of the activities of their departments, in order to become familiar with conditions.

GIVE BEETHOVEN PROGRAM.

Symphony Society, with Fritz Kreisler, Fills Carnegie Hall.

Beginning the year with Beethoven, the audience of the Symphony Society in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon was also one of the largest of its current season, and one that found evident pleasure in a program of simple dignity and beauty. Walter Damrosch conducted the "Eroica" symphony and this was followed by Beethoven's violin concerto, with Fritz Kreisler.

There was great applause after both, and in the solo number, where Mr. Kreisler used the cadenzas introduced by him some years ago, playing "in pairs" with the composer's themes in contrapuntal style, the effect was electrifying indeed. The concert will be repeated entire on Saturday night.

Catalina Forteza, Pianist, Appears.

Catalina Forteza, a Cuban pianist, appeared last evening in Aeolian Hall, taking her compatriots here, unawares, since few of them heard her, although she had official introduction from Havana. In music of Schumann, Chopin, and Debussy, the newcomer was unconventional, luxuriating in sustained tone with too-constantly held pedal, yet bringing through this curious fog of sound a sense of form sculpturesque, modeled with bold, full-arm strokes. She gave later two Spanish novelties, "Adois al Alhambra," by Monasterio Monge, and "Rapsodia Espanola," by del Valle.

BORDEN SHAKES UP DOMINION CABINET

Premier, on Eve of Vacation, Makes Many Changes in Ministries.

MAJ. GEN. MEWBURN RESIGNS

Sir George Foster to be Acting Premier—Arthur Sifton Becomes Secretary of State.

OTTAWA, Jan. 1.—A shake-up was made in the Dominion Cabinet today by Premier Borden prior to leaving the Capital tomorrow for a prolonged stay which is described as a vacation.

The resignation of Major. Gen. Mewburn as Minister of Militia and Defense, to take effect Jan. 15, led to interchanges in several other portfolios. Two vacancies will be filled on the Premier's return.

Sir George Foster, senior member of the Privy Council, will act as Premier during Mr. Borden's absence. The Premier's departure at the same time that Viscount Grey is leaving the United States for England has led to renewed discussion of the probability of the Premier being appointed Ambassador to the United States.

Arthur Sifton retired as Minister of Public Works and became Secretary of State in place of Martin Burrell, who was appointed Minister of Customs.

Pending the appointment of a successor to General Mewburn, J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, will be acting Minister of Militia and Defense. Dr. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways, will also act as Minister of Public Works until a permanent appointment is made.

Premier Borden wrote to General Mewburn today expressing regret at his retirement and thanking him for "splendid and conspicuous service." He entered the Cabinet in October, 1917. When the Premier returns it is believed he will consolidate a number of departments.

LAMBERT MURPHY SINGS.

Tenor Gives an Enjoyable Matinee in Aeolian Hall.

Lambert Murphy gave the first 1920 recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall, where his matinee of tenor songs was a pleasure to hear; he sang well, in the free, natural way that marked his former work in opera and oratorio, and there were enough persons who remembered him then to fill the house on this holiday. Mr. Murphy sang two of the old Francis Hopkinson pieces better than they have been done before, because unaffectedly and sincerely. He showed good diction in a French group, and ringing top notes in recent airs by Hammond, Chadwick, Mrs. Beach, Branscombe and Treharne.

There was a new note of humor in his Irish folk songs—as if the fact that his name was Murphy had just dawned on his friends—and a return to the earlier, serious style in "There Is No Death," by Geoffrey O'Hara. The singer was assisted at the piano by C. A. Baker.

'Aida' and 'L'Amore del Tre Re' Sung

There was a new King in Egypt at yesterday's holiday opera, a matinée "Aida" enlisting Mr. Ananian instead of Mr. d'Angelo, who was named in the bill; Destinn, Besanzoni, Crimi, Zanelli, and Martino reappeared, and Moranzoni conducted. The evening opera was "L'Amore del Tre Re," with the same leader, and with familiar singers, Muzio, Martinelli, Amato, and Didur. It was a good day for romance and Italy on the stage, and both operas were well attended.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

George M. Cohan's first production as an individual manager will be a farce entitled "The Celebrated Chums," based on "Madeleine and the Movies," by Patterson Gibbs. Mr. Cohan has taken offices at 226 West Forty-second Street.

Ibanez's novel "Blood and Sand" is now being dramatized and will be produced by John D. Williams. It will be acted by Lionel Barrymore after "The Letter of the Law" has been played.

Maeterlinck's "Seven Princesses" will be presented at the Hotel Plaza by the Drama Forum on the afternoon of Jan. 8.

"Tilly of Bloomsbury," by Ian Hay, was produced in Stamford last night by A. H. Woods. In the cast were O. P. Heggie, Eva Le Gallienne, Lawrence Grant, Nellie Hodson, Blythe Daly, Frank Hector, Gypsy O'Brien, and others. The play will be presented in New York in about two weeks.

"The Sweetheart Shop" will have its first performance in Baltimore on Jan. 12. Edgar J. McGregor, its producer, will follow it with "Self-Defense," a melodrama by Myron B. Fagan.

Herman Timberg's revue, "Tick Tack Toe," will have its first performance in Stamford on Jan. 8.

EFFORTS FOR A SENATE AGREEMENT.

Senator LODGE has good warrant for his opinion that an agreement for the ratification of the Treaty will be best and soonest reached by "informal conferences" between Senators. Many Senators on both sides of the Chamber are engaged in this work, conferences are held every day, Washington dispatches indicate that the outlook is hopeful; real progress has been made already. But in all candor, it seems to us that it is chiefly on the Republican side, among Republican Senators, that the work of persuasion and conversion must be diligently carried on. The Democratic Senators, with two or three exceptions, have been at all times and are now ready to vote for the ratification of the Treaty. The obstructionists, almost all of them, are to be found among the Republicans. There is that group of fourteen Republican Senators known as the "Battalion of Death." They are irreconcilable foes of the Treaty, of the League covenant. No appeal to reason, to patriotism, to charity and mercy for suffering humanity will move them. The impression appears to be growing in Washington — it is certainly growing elsewhere—that to this number of irreconcilables who desire not the ratification but the defeat of the Treaty Mr. LODGE himself must be added. His course from the beginning gives support to the belief that if he favors ratification at all it is only with reservations that amount to rejection.

Fortunately, Mr. LODGE'S opinions and the attitude he chooses to assume toward the Treaty are not binding upon other Republican Senators. They are certainly not binding upon the members of his party outside of the Senate. Leading Republicans everywhere are at work for ratification. Ex-President TAFT has been untiring in his efforts, and other Republicans of prominence, like President LOWELL and Mr. WICKERSHAM, have many times raised their voices for the acceptance of the Treaty and the covenant. It is reported in Washington that Mr. ROOT has lent the great authority of his name to the work undertaken by those who are trying to bring about an agreement in the Senate. Surely, it should not have been forgotten that in May last twenty-eight prominent New York Republicans, many of them active in the city or State organization of the party, addressed to the Senators from this State an appeal for the prompt ratification of the Treaty containing the peace covenant "without attempting to embarrass it by amendment, thus delaying the conclusion of peace and the establishment of the great agency for its future preservation." These Republicans urged "that political partisanship should have no place in the consideration on its merits of the constitution of the proposed League of Nations"; they pointed out that the Republican Party "cannot justly be placed in an attitude of hostility to the project adopted by the Conference of Versailles" for the purpose of averting all preventable wars. Whether justly or unjustly, it is a fact that under the leadership of Senator LODGE the Republican Party, so far as it is represented in the Senate, has been placed "in an attitude of hostility to the project."

The public is not without evidence to support the opinion that the views and the hopes expressed by these New York Republicans are entertained by great numbers of their party the country over. Expressions of organized bodies and of individuals have made that plain. It is for this reason that we feel that an agreement for ratification is in the main a Republican problem. It is there that missionary work must be done. That work is in progress; it has been undertaken by a few influential and high-minded Senators of that party, who have risen above what Chairman HAYS calls petty considerations, who are every day seeking with zeal and in good faith to bring both parties of the Senate upon the ground of compromise and agreement. There is still some talk, though less than at an earlier date, about a statement from the President. It is surprising that that point should have been raised at all. The President secured the negotiation of the Treaty, he submitted it to the Senate for its advice and consent. When the Senate returns the Treaty to him it will be his prerogative and his duty to act in the matter. He cannot with safety, prudence, or propriety indicate in advance what reservations he will accept. Such an overture would be taken advantage of instantly by the uncompromising enemies of the Treaty; it would be notice to them how far they may go to make the Treaty unacceptable. Mr. HITCHCOCK brought into view with all possible distinctness the path to agreement. The Democrats will assent to any program of reservations that does not defeat the Treaty by nullifying its position. They are ready to accept reservations that clearly define our position in respect to articles of the covenant that some have come to believe, quite without good ground, would possibly be in conflict with our constitutional practice. All that the Democrats will concede. What more can be asked save by those who desire not the ratification but the defeat of the Treaty?

BACK TO THE CHIMES.

The most hilarious citizens of Manhattan during the early hours of 1920 were apparently those diurnal chroniclers who proclaimed that the infant new year was being christened in a deluge of drink. The most woebegone were certainly those who, at fabulous expense, had secured restaurant tables, incited thereto by the widely circulated forecast of libations from plethoric cellars. Their only revenge was in contemplating the vigilant revenue agent who perchance was at their elbow, clad in an official air and evening clothes. Little of joyous import was done on either side.

The sidewalks about Times Square were jammed to the curb with expectant sightseers; but their expectations, too, were dashed. Strain as they would to catch the infection of mirth, they did so in vain. A blight had fallen upon the hitherto blatant tin horn. The faint echo of the once exultant noise-making machines suggested at best King Alcohol's death rattle.

A few citizens gathered mutely beneath the spire of Trinity to welcome the new year under the inspiration of hymn tunes chimed from the belfry. That was the soberer custom of the City Fathers of old, and it seems destined to be honored no longer in the breach but in the observance. As for the subsequent supper, future hosts may well paraphrase the invitation once sent out to his friends by JOHN MILTON. It would read something like this: "Today deep thoughts resolve with me to drench in mirth, that after no repentance draws. What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice, of 'anti' taste, sans wine, whence we may rise to hear the chimes ring out? To measure life learn thou betimes, and know toward solid good what leads the nearest way. He who of those delights can judge, and spare to interpose them oft, is not unwise."

In the original version, to be sure, the poet invited his convivials to a feast "of Attic taste, with wine," while the musical diversion was "to hear the lute well touched, or artful voice warble immortal notes and Tuscan air." But Manhattan is just out of feasts of Attic taste and has long been lacking in lute and Tuscan air. By and large, its New Year's Eve of the future seems destined, and wisely so, to be quite in key with the revels of JOHN MILTON.

THE THIRD TERM.

If there are any Democratic candidates for the Presidential nomination who feel that they are hampered by President WILSON'S neglect to declare that he will not be a candidate, they must be few and easily worried. It ought to be plain to everybody, without any declaration by the President on the subject, that he does not desire and would not accept a third nomination.

A third term, after such illustrious service, could be nothing less than an anti-climax. From the point of view of his own personal fame, therefore, if we credit the President with being anything less than a supernatural being above the considerations which move mortal men, he could not afford it. Nothing could make greater his place in history; many things might occur which would lessen it. It is quite conceivable that if LINCOLN had lived through four years of contests with Congress and factional fights over relatively small things, or even such great things as reconstruction—and this would surely have been the case, for the party leaders were preparing for it up to the very time of his death—something of his greatness would have been lost to us. We cannot suppose the President to be indifferent to such considerations. He has written his name high in the history of the greatest war the world has ever known. He cannot write it any higher in the world's history or in this nation's. It is a consideration not alone personal to him, but in a real sense one that affects his country.

The President's health alone would forbid him to brave the great fatigues and the tremendous exertions that cannot be evaded in these days by any Presidential candidate. He may be, as all Americans hope he will be, recovered from his illness before the convention meets, but the steps of that recovery will be slow, and when they are over he could not prudently enter on such a furious battle as the campaign of 1920 will be. The discharge of his Presidential duties alone will tax to the full his strength.

Finally, though a third term is not prohibited by law or by the Constitution, it is prohibited to Democrats by numberless party pledges. Over and again the national platforms of their party have solemnly declared against such an innovation. It is the historic policy and principle of the Democratic Party that no President, however eminent, should have more than two terms in the White House. President WILSON knows this as well as anybody, and there is not the slightest reason for supposing that, even if there were no other consideration in the case, he would disregard these pronouncements, reverse the historic policy, and abandon the historic principle of the party to which he belongs.

DISPOSING OF THE SULTAN.

London and Paris are talking of the imminent decision of the fate of Constantinople and the Turkish Government. Le Temps presents a long argument, which quite possibly represents the views of an influential group of professional diplomats, for the retention of the Sultan on the Golden Horn—the Sultan with all his trappings and authority, political and spiritual, but under control by some outside Power. The London Daily Chronicle, on the other hand, seems confident that "the Sultan as Caliph, or supreme head of the Mohammedan faith, will be left in Constantinople, while his Government is transferred to the other side of the Strait, and all his temporal influence with it. Every care will be taken not to lessen in any way the dignity of the Sultan or to detract from his religious authority."

Here is a self-evident absurdity. This tenderness for the Sultan is ostensibly, and to a large degree actually, due to fear of what the Moslem French subjects in Africa and Moslem British subjects in India and elsewhere may think. If an Ottoman Government is set up in Brusa, nominally headed by an absentee Sultan who lives in Constantinople under the political jurisdiction of some other Power or group of Powers, the Sultan's dignity in the eyes of Orientals will be materially lessened, and the diminution cannot be covered up by showers of scented phrases. So far as this purpose is concerned it would be better attained if the Sultan, in his bodily person and his spiritual capacity, should retire into Asia with his Government.

The proposed solution would solve nothing, but would bring some new troubles with it. If the Sultan and his holy men stayed in Constantinople while his Government went to Brusa or Konieh, there would at once be set up a double current of intrigue, one set of forces trying to send the Sultan and the holy men into Asia, the other to bring the Government back to Constantinople.

The Temps, representing a point of view of men always in possession of all the detailed facts of a political situation, however much they may be blind to some of the movements behind the scenes, quite accurately calls this "a fanciful solution," adding that "the Sultan possesses his religious power only because of his political power." This is entirely true, and should mitigate some of the expected Moslem protests. A great part of the Sultan's territory has been torn away by the revolt of the Arabs, the original Moslems, whose respect for a race which seized the Caliphate by force has not been notably evident of late. The final overthrow of the Sultan's armies was brought about largely by Mohammedan troops from India; in the Russian armies which defeated the Turks in Armenia there were many Mohammedans who did their best to help the Christian Czar take away territory from the Moslem Caliph. It is hard to see why Mohammedans should acquiesce in the loss of Turkish territory wanted by England, or France, or Russia, and raise their protest only when it is a question of a city in which each Power is afraid some other Power may get the upper hand.

The Temps frankly wants the Sultan left in Constantinople, political authority and all. But it offers some curious reasons. France's "traditional friendship toward Islam," which does not necessarily imply friendship toward the Turk, is one; the fact that "the official language of the Turkish Government is French" is another. The substitution of French for Italian as the diplomatic idiom of Constantinople corresponded with a similar change in political influence, so the argument is not so purely bellettristic as it seems; nevertheless, one may have the highest admiration for the French language without admitting that its supremacy in Constantinople is worth the continuation of political corruption and oppression of progressive and Christian races which the retention of the Sultan's power would make certain.

If the Sultan is moved away from Constantinople, says the Temps, it will mean the loss of "the only military forces to be found on the spot for defending the Strait should need arise." The dead who lie at Gallipoli could give the answer to that; but the Temps hopefully reminds us that Germany knew how to control the Turks so as to remain mistress of the Dardanelles, the inference being that France could do as well. Certainly the French would not acquiesce in periodic massacres of Christian populations as the price of their influence. The Strait, the Temps asserts, must be defended "against a coup de main of the Bulgarians or the offensive action of the Turks themselves," so leave the Turks there or else they may come back and recapture the city by force.

But in the next paragraph comes out the real argument. The Allies would protect the Strait, if the Sultan were thrown out, but would protect it by sea; and "all the Allies are not equally strong on the sea." In other words, the French Foreign Office thinks that with the Sultan put out an internationalized Constantinople would be controlled by Great Britain. Therefore keep the Sultan in, no matter how much corruption and crime, how great political difficulties for France herself in the future, his retention might mean.

The Turk has been on the Strait for four and a half centuries; and in all that time the country that he occupies has been exactly where it was when he arrived. The Turk has always and everywhere stopped the clock of progress; and he has done it by the repression of progressive nations which would have gone forward if left to themselves. There could be no greater crime against civilization than to leave the Sultan on the Golden Horn.

AN UNFORTUNATE CONTROVERSY.

It is sometimes said that the morale of the navy has suffered of late because officers with families cannot live comfortably and keep up appearances upon the pay of the period before the war. But is inadequate pay the only cause of the unrest? A disquieting expression of it is the controversy between officers of various grades and Secretary DANIELS about awards of the Distinguished Service Medal and the Navy Cross. In their letters to the Secretary the Admirals who object to the conclusions of the Board of Awards and to his decisions have in some cases personal grievances, but it may be assumed that they speak for a rank and file which have their grievances and are dissatisfied with many of the awards.

The Admirals and other officers who file statements use the language of restraint, but in wardrooms and in quarters and clubs ashore the language used is not always that of restraint. The whole service is speaking its mind with extraordinary freedom, and it may be supposed that the head of the department is not spared. This does not make for discipline and efficiency.

After the war with Spain there was the Sampson-Schley controversy, which raged with virulence and estranged old friends. The service could not agree about it and the country was divided. It was deplorable as a spectacle of strife, and it did the navy no good. The present row about decorations, which may become a wrangle if not checked in time, seems a small matter in comparison with the Sampson-Schley controversy, but it is a blight upon the spirit of the navy. Our allies must wonder why the Secretary and the Admirals are at odds about the awards, and why Mr. DANIELS is called upon to defend himself after a war in which the fleet was never engaged and in which encounters with the enemy at sea were on a minor scale. The opinion of our friends abroad must be that differences should be settled in the quiet of a department tribunal of some kind.

In the present state of the controversy there is a tendency toward an inquiry by Congress which might be partisan in its nature. Secretary DANIELS has critics in the service who speak harshly about him, and they would try to put him on the defensive. Are the things in dispute of enough importance to call for the intervention of Congress? An investigation would probably be long drawn out, tempers would be frayed, and reputations would suffer. It would certainly be better for the discipline of the service if there were a settlement "out of court," that is to say by the reconvened Board of Awards, the Secretary assisting in a spirit of compromise and not insisting upon his prerogative to make his own awards to combatants at the expense of officers in responsible positions who equally deserve recognition, often deserve it more.

After all there was little sea fighting and it is hardly worth while laying much stress upon it. Secretary DANIELS should do his share in pouring oil upon the troubled waters of discussion. His remarks about the Decker case, in the course of which he exalted "the men who endeavored to combat the enemy" over Admirals BENSON, SIMS, WILSON, NIBLACK, and GLEAVES, must have rubbed the fur the wrong way. It is rather a time for speaking the soft word and showing a desire for peace with fair play to all. In the fleet there was enough glory in the war to go around, and unless the principle is recognized and made the basis for an equitable distribution of honors the morale of the navy will continue to decline.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Women Who Want to be Jurors.

A bold Commissioner of Jurors over in Kings County is resisting an attempt making there to compel him to include women among those whom he calls to service of the State in court. A woman lawyer has insisted that the law permits this—which, in her opinion, imposes on the Commissioner an obligation to do it—and she has applied for a writ of mandamus addressed to him and the Board of Assessors, while he has filed an opposing brief, in which he gives the reasons why he thinks the writ should not issue.

There the matter stands at present, but the question raised is a difficult as well as an interesting one, and there will be some impatience for its settlement—an impatience apprehensive or hopeful according to the wishes of those who feel it.

Without endeavoring either to forecast or to influence the court's decision, it is possible to enumerate some of the considerations that must be taken into account as a basis of action. The Commissioner holds, it seems, that the selection of women for jury duty is of doubtful legality. He must mean doubtful in this State, for in other States women have been sitting on juries for some time, and verdicts reached by them, or with their help, have not been set aside or even impugned. And where women have been put on complete political equality with men, as to both privileges and duties, the objections, if any, to their admission to the jury box are apparently other than in the letter of the law.

Whether or not it is desirable for women to be jurors—whether or not they are fitted, temperamentally, for the drawing of conclusions from evidence presented and from nothing else, and, physically, for enduring what frequently are the severe strains imposed on jurors—those are entirely different questions; but if the law is what the woman lawyer believes, consideration of them is somewhat belated.

A Heavy Honor to Carry.

It is probable that most of the women who were eager to gain the electoral franchise will be inclined to resent the exclusion of their sex from the jury box, and the feeling on their part against such a discrimination is neither incomprehensible nor reprehensible. Still, it is impossible—for a man, or for most men—to wonder why any group of citizens should expend time and energy in seeking to bring about the placing on its members of a task which is honorable and important, indeed, but very far from being held by those who now perform it as anything except a burden heavy, troublesome, and expensive to carry.

At least ninety-nine men out of a hundred escape jury duty when they can. In seeking exemption from it they avail themselves of all the good excuses they can think up, and not infrequently, alas! of bad ones. If they happen to be in a class from which this service is not demanded they count themselves lucky, and though some of the exempt classes are exempted for reasons either frivolous or absurd, protests against such exemptions are made only by the envious members of classes not thus favored.

The women are strangely mistaken if they think there is either pleasure or profit in serving on juries, and those of them that have a fair share of selfish wisdom, while they may dislike to be discriminated against as women, must know in their hearts that the removal of the discrimination will be a triumph of the kind that fills victors with regret after they win it. Anyhow, it is a safe assumption that, the right to serve as jurors once gained, the women would be at least as ingenious in eluding service as men are.

Somebody Does the Raising.

At least one observer of current events has become wearied—and more than a little irritated—by the way in which, invariably or next to it, reference is made to changes in prices. He reads and hears constantly that when supplies are scarce and demand strong prices rise. That they do he knows only too well, but what he resents is the constant implication that the raising is something that does itself, by a law of nature, as it were, and in obedience to a force as irresistible as is the force that causes the daily differences of level in the ocean.

As he sees the matter, prices do not rise in times like these—they are raised. And the elevating, he feels sure, is done by somebody. Why not say so—why not say, not that the price of this, that, or the other thing advanced so many cents or dollars yesterday, but that it was advanced that much by the dealers in it? The dealers who did so may have been well justified—it even may have been necessary—but the abandonment of the impersonal form of expression would substitute fact for fiction, and in time it might weaken or destroy the delusion that prices rise and fall of themselves, or because of weather, war, and like accepted "causes." Those things are not causes of high prices; they provide opportunities for charging high prices. If that were once realized and recognized, instead of the present acceptance of all high prices as inevitable misfortunes—"acts of Providence," to use a phrase now less often heard than formerly—there would be a greater number of energetic and intelligent efforts to find out just who has raised each particular price and just why he did it.

Divorce Rate Doubled.

There will be a renewal of familiar lamentations as a result of the announcement that divorces in the year just ended were twice as numerous in this city as they were in the year before. And of course this is not good news. What would be good news would be the announcement that all our marriages have been happy ones and that nobody is discontented with the tie that binds. Expectation of hearing anything like that, however, is entertained only by idealists—while fast asleep and dreaming.

If it is right that there should be any divorces at all, and if the divorce laws are wisely drawn, then the fact that divorces have been numerous should be taken, or at any rate can be taken, as proving only that a lot of sad mistakes have been remedied as much as mistakes of this particular kind can be remedied. And that should cause rejoicing rather than grief.

The wrongness ascribed to divorce lies somewhere else and further back, and it well may be that the marriage laws are in more need of reform than the divorce laws.

SIR WILLIAM OSLER.

His Services to Society as Physician and Humanist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Sir William Osler was so widely and so affectionately known in America that his death ought not to pass without more than the conventional notice. Besides, it touches the hearts of many to remember just now that during the war Osler was continually offering hospitality and help to Americans. Please let me say a few inadequate words.

Sir William Osler was altogether the best known and best loved physician that this or any country has produced. His influence and achievement are not to be measured by the books he wrote, the students he taught or the scientific observations he made. Through the influence of his ideas, his personality and the mellowing activities of his career, he enriched the medical profession and greatly helped to raise its art to a point which now compels for it the esteem of society in general. For Osler was not only a proponent of science and progress, but of amenity, friendship and the humanities. His ideals were high but also human and attainable. He was most skilful and learned in medicine, but he was also a bookman and a scholar of wide and accurate knowledge. He wrote with charm, learning and distinction, and what he did seemed easy and wise for others to appreciate or themselves also to attempt.

He introduced new methods and infused new enthusiasm into medical education, and was a main factor in setting and compelling high standards and wise methods for medical schools in America and England.

He loved his fellow men and gave himself to their service, but he loved also books and libraries with a grand passion. He made the study of historical medicine not only interesting, but showed it to be necessary to broad vision and genuine culture.

He had a joyous humor and a genius for friendship, so that the circle of friends was an ever widening one. To these friends he was lavishly unselfish of service.

When it was proposed a year ago to publish in his honor a volume made up of articles written by his friends and pupils, the project was nearly wrecked by the flood of contributions which poured in upon the editors. These anniversary volumes in celebration of his seventieth birthday, now completed, form a final memorial of things accomplished through the inspiration of his personality, and through the recognition of an incomparably lovable character and an enduringly helpful career.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the death of Dr. Osler the world is poorer. He, indeed, was a great physician and a great and good man.

Never failing to any one in timely great courtesy and kind acts, he was ever true to highest duty to his noble profession, which he adorned by every possible grace of knowledge and culture. I remember him well, and always with feelings of warmest admiration and friendship. Spiritually, he is well shown in the following words, taken from "Science and Immortality," his address at Harvard University in 1904: He it is "who had rather be mistaken with Plato than be in the right with those who deny altogether the life after death; and this is my own confessio fidei."

The Anti-Strike Clause.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Objection to the anti-strike clause of the Cummins bill, so far as I can discover, is confined to the labor leaders. Most of the rank and file I know not only do not oppose the provision but rather look to it as a protection against danger of interruption in their work at the word of the leaders.

These leaders, however, see in the provision a vital blow at the dignity and power they have maintained. Adoption of this feature of the bill will leave them shorn of their greatest prerogative—the right to hold the strike club constantly over the heads of employers.

At the present time the leaders insist on having a strike vote in their vest pockets for ready use. President Johnson of the machinists recently protested that he would not think of using a threat of this sort in any effort to coerce the Government. Nevertheless, the strike vote apparently is regarded as an important part of the leaders' equipment when pleading their cases at Washington.

The whole problem now, as I see it, is with the leaders. The rank and file are not worried, but the labor barons who have lorded it over the Washington politicians see their soft snaps in danger.

OLD RAILROADER.

New York, Dec. 31, 1919.

Irish Plan Worth Trying.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Sir Edward Carson (a few years ago a "potential rebel") doesn't like Lloyd George's new plan for home rule.

Neither does the so-called President of the Irish Republic (a "carpet-bagger" in Erin), Eamon De Valera.

Therefore it must be a plan well worth trying.

I am not the only Irish-born American who wants to see his native land happy and harmonious that hopes Lloyd George will succeed in putting his Irish bill through Parliament and force the Irish in Ireland to settle their quarrels among themselves.

Meanwhile, why doesn't some one invite Ireland's really great statesman—a man of broad, far-seeing views—who knows the strength and weakness of his fellow Irishmen at home and who despises petty politics and blatant politicanders, to tell us what he thinks of the case?

I refer to Sir Horace Plunkett, who at present is our guest.

A WINTER EVENING.

At night outside my window is a rush and whir of wings,
As if the trees and hedges and all insensate things
Were struggling in their slumber to reach the time that brings
The glamour and the wonder and the gladness of new Springs.

The mystic sounds of night-time, the creak of homeward carts,
The whistling of a drover, the beat of hidden hearts,
The birth-cry of a babe who on life's journey starts—
The sobs of lonely mourners as some loved soul departs.

The warmth and glow of night-time,
with doors and windows tight,
In dressing gown and slippers, the old dog well in sight,
The favorite book, the fireside—oh, comfort and delight!
Indeed, what is more peaceful than a shut-in Winter night?

And yet outside my window seems to come a whir of wings,
As if to stir my being with desire for other things—
With yearning for the promise that pulsing morrow brings,
The enchantment and the rapture, the fulfillment of new Springs!

FINDS STRAIN WITH JAPAN.

Consul Yada Quoted as Saying Relations Are 'In Considerable Danger.'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — Chenosuke Yada, Japanese Consul General at New York, who is in Japan on a leave of absence, has given to the Tokio newspaper, Asayi an interview in which he is quoted as having declared that the relationship between Japan and the United States "is in considerable danger and it is urgently necessary that the relations between the two countries be placed on a more sound, friendly basis than is the case at present."

This statement does not tally with assertions that have been made here by State Department officials and members of the Japanese Embassy, who have asserted informally that the relations between this country and Japan were on a very sound and friendly basis at this time.

These extracts from the Yada interview have been cabled to Washington from Tokio:

"The Shantung amendment, as propounded by the Republicans, is no doubt intended for the purpose of vexing the President, but primarily it must have originated with their disgust with Japan's policy toward China. America has been watching Japan's attitude toward China with suspicion, and her suspicion has increased since the conclusion of the Chino-Japanese agreement of 1915.

"America has always suspected Japan's territorial ambitions in China and, although Japan's paramountcy in China is recognized by European countries, this has never been recognized by America. It is true that America was induced to recognize Japan's special interests in China, but a clear definition of 'special interests' still remains to be given.

"Frankly speaking, the relationship between Japan and America is in considerable danger and it is urgently necessary that the relations between the two countries be placed on a more sound, friendly basis than is the case at present. Apart from the vaporings of the yellow papers, there can be no manner of doubt that the feeling of Americans and Japanese is greatly strained, and in order to reach a mutual understanding nothing would be more important for the two peoples than to meet in a friendly way and to discuss the situation in a full and frank manner.

"Intelligent Americans are convinced of the necessity of such a method so that friendlier relations might be brought about between both countries. This is work that should not be left to ambassadors and other officials but politicians, business men, and other public men should unite for the attainment of a common object.

"A proposal is now afoot to organize a committee, consisting of politicians, business men, and representatives of other classes, and the committee will be dispatched to America charged with a mission of restoring friendly relations between America and Japan by means of speeches and interviews."

PLANS TO OPPOSE PALMER.

Bryan League Secretary Suggests Alliance with Gerard.

According to Harry W. Walker, friend of Colonel William Jennings Bryan, who is at present touring the State with a view of reviving interest in the Bryan League, which was instrumental in bringing about Colonel Bryan's nomination for President in 1908, friends of Mr. Bryan in this State may invoke the aid of William R. Hearst with a view to preventing the New York delegates to the Democratic National Convention from being pledged to United States Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer.

According to Frank H. Warder, Secretary of the Bryan League, Mr. Walker, in a letter from Syracuse, had urged an offensive and defensive alliance between the Bryan forces in this State and the friends of James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany, who also is out for the Presidential nomination, to prevent Attorney General Palmer's friends from making inroads in this State. Mr. Walker wrote that the time was ripe for a combination, a real friendship between Mr. Hearst and Mr. Gerard, in the opinion of the Bryan supporters, would make it possible to obtain the backing of Mr. Hearst for such a movement against Attorney General Palmer, although the editor was outspokenly hostile to Colonel Bryan when the latter sought the Presidency for the third time.

Mr. Gerard said yesterday that he had no comment to make regarding the suggestion or on a report that he might speak with Colonel Bryan at a dinner which may be arranged in Washington by the latter's friend while the Democratic National Committee is there.

WOMEN PLAN CAMPAIGN.

Republican Conferences to be Held to Knit Organizations More Closely.

Regional conferences for the purpose of knitting more closely the organizations of Republican women created in the several States for co-operation with the Republican National Committee in next year's Presidential campaign and co-ordinating their activities will begin in Chicago on Monday.

Three of these conferences will be held during the next two weeks. The conference in Chicago will be attended by Republican women from fourteen States in the Middle West. A similar conference embracing the Intermountain States will be held in Denver on Thursday and Friday. Republican women from the Pacific Coast States will confer in San Francisco on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 12 and 13.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, will attend all three conferences. The Republican National Committeemen and the Republican State Chairmen have also been invited.

A dinner will be held in connection with the Chicago conference on Monday evening.

Republican leaders from many States will be in Chicago at the time of the conference there, as Chairman Hays of the National Committee has called a meeting of the sub-committee appointed to make arrangements for the Republican national convention.

NOT INTERESTED IN BRYAN.

Daughters of Nebraska Show Little Enthusiasm for Commoner.

The New York Daughters of Nebraska yesterday, at a reception in the home of the President, Mrs. Dexter D. Ashley, 346 Lexington Avenue, expressed themselves as not being interested in any future political move taken by William Jennings Bryan. The President of the society said that she "did not wish to talk about Mr. Bryan at all."

Dr. William J. Taylor, who at one time lived across the street from Mr. Bryan in Lincoln, said that he no longer considered him as a Nebraskan, and believed that was the general attitude of most persons from that Western State. When one of the women was asked if the Nebraska society planned to give Mr. Bryan a reception when he comes to New York, she answered: "I have not heard that he is coming, and I hope that I don't."

$125,884 IN GERMAN FUND.

Contributions for Relief of Children Continue—$8,798 for Austria.

The American Relief Committee for German Children, through its Treasurer, James Speyer, announced yesterday that already $125,884 had been contributed toward the fund. He also reported a total of $8,798 for the Austrian children.

The largest donations were from Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Achells, who gave $7,000 for the German children and $4,000 for the Austrians. Another large gift was that of $1,500 from Conrad Buhler. Some of the other contributors were George Whelan, $1,000; George Foster Peabody, $100; Henry W. Taft, $100, and Mr. and Mrs. Oswald G. Villard, $100.

UCHIDA SAYS JAPAN WILL KEEP FAITH

Foreign Minister Asks America to Trust the Promise That Shantung Will Be Returned.

SAYS SUSPICION IS UNFAIR

Japanese Statesman Insists That China Will Get the Province Back In Good Time.

In an article called "The Plain Facts on Shantung," in The Independent today, Viscount Y. Uchida, Japan's Minister of Foreign Affairs, calls the Japanese desire to live in peace and amity with the world "a cold statement of fact which cannot be controverted truthfully," reiterates Japan's intentions to act in good faith in restoring Shantung to China, and declares that:

"If the people of America would consider this question in its true light; if they would delete the specious argument of the active propagandist in America, they should have no difficulty in finding safe ground for assurance that for every reason Japan must keep the faith with her friends, and that in fact China will benefit by the decision with regard to Shantung as reached by the conferees in Paris."

Viscount Uchida reviews briefly the present status of world affairs, defends Japan's recent wars, saying none of them was a war of aggression, declares Japan threw in her lot with the Allies of the West "because of loyalty to her obligations and because an enemy had a stronghold in the East," asserts her desire to maintain peace, and asks:

"Will not our allies of the West accept this as a simple statement of policy and fact, here as elsewhere?

Resents Suspicion.

"Before the ink was dry upon the signatures of the representatives of the Emperor of Japan to the treaty of peace the cry was raised against the Shantung award in that treaty. A widespread and suspicious propaganda was built upon the hypothesis that Japan entered the war without a scintilla of the better or higher motives of her allies, solely for the purpose of self-aggrandizement, and that finally the representatives of the Emperor of Japan signed the treaty with their tongues in their cheeks, intending to carry out their part in letter, perhaps, but not in spirit. In other words, the logical conclusion would be that the Japanese Government was a treacherous conspirator against the peace of the world at the very moment she signed and ratified the treaty of peace.

"Impossible! The assertion is false; it is dangerous. It is being urged by press agents for an ulterior purpose, but there can be but one fair conclusion, based upon all the facts. That conclusion was reached by the conference in Paris, namely, that Japan as one of the five main powers signatory will keep the faith and abide by the treaty as she always has kept the faith with other nations."

After repeating the exact terms of the treaty as regards Shantung the writer argues that America must have been familiar with the intentions of Japan when she entered the war, reasoning thus:

"Early in the year 1917 the Japanese Government frankly communicated to all the allied belligerent Governments the full intentions of Japan on the occasion of a peace conference 'to demand from the German Government the cession of the territorial rights and special interests which Germany possessed before the war in the Province of Shantung and the islands situated north of the Equator.'

"The Governments of Great Britain, France, Italy, and the Government of Russia then existent, promptly and willingly acknowledged the justice of Japan's claims and intentions and agreed to support them at a conference. It is true that the details were not officially made public.

"At that time America was not officially at war with Germany, but shortly afterward the United States associated itself with Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and Russia in the war."

Promises to China.

The Viscount quotes the text of Japan's ultimatum to Germany, says both the Premier of Japan and the Foreign Minister, since the Paris conferences, have given categorical assurances to Japan's determination to return the leased territory of Kiao-Chau to China, and have pledged the nation's faith that she will not seek to violate the sovereignty of China anywhere, and adds:

"All Japan asks is to be allowed the time and opportunity to demonstrate to the limit of possible demonstration her desire for friendship and good neighborliness with China.

"The development of the resources of Shantung with equal opportunity in that development must be of immense advantage to all concerned and more especially to the millions of Chinese now living in the province. These millions Japan does not seek to 'enslave' or 'exploit,' as is so untruthfully charged against her, but to benefit and assist in the achievement of their ambitions and their hopes.

"It was a bitter day for the Germans in the Far East and in Germany when Tsing-tao was taken over by the Japanese in trust pending the decision of the conference. It is almost certain that had the Paris Conference decided otherwise or had the amendment proposed in the Senate of the United States to substitute 'China' for 'Japan' as the recipient of Tsing-tao and the concessions of Shantung been passed and accepted, it would have been many years before China got back her rights and her sovereignty in that province. Everything would have depended on the good faith of Germany, the strength of China, or the power of the League of Nations to enforce the terms of the treaty. Otherwise beyond question the peace of the Far East must have been constantly menaced. Now, the situation for China and for all the rest of the world depends upon the good faith of Japan.

Will Retain Economic Privileges.

"Japan is determined to restore Tsing-tao to China in full sovereignty. What Japan intends to retain are only the economic privileges granted to Germany, which she will share with China, and she has no intention to hold or demand any right whatsoever which is likely to affect China's territorial sovereignty.

"Japan is ready and will not hesitate to enter upon negotiations with the Government of China as to arrangements for the restitution of Tsing-tao as soon as possible after the Treaty of Versailles comes into force."

DUBLIN PAPER STILL BANNED

Suspension Order Against The Freeman's Journal Not Yet Revoked.

DUBLIN, Jan. 1.—The suppression of The Freeman's Journal, which was ordered suspended for publication of an article adjudged contrary to police discipline, is still maintained, having lasted more than a fortnight. This is the longest period any newspaper has been penalized, even during the war.

Inquiries at Dublin Castle have failed to elicit any information as to when the newspaper is likely to be allowed to resume publication.

ASSAILS NE

MRS. SIEMS WEDS RUSHTON PEABODY

Her Little Daughters Flower Girls at Her Marriage at Park Avenue Home.

REV. SEDGWICK OFFICIATES

Bridegroom's Elder Son His Best Man—Bride Is a Descendant of Several Noted Governors.

The wedding of Rushton Peabody of this city and Mrs. Vernon Marguerite Magoffin Siems, widow of Chester P. Siems, took place at 9 o'clock last evening at the bride's residence, 563 Park Avenue, the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick of the Calvary Episcopal Church officiating in the presence of the families only.

The bride, in flesh-colored satin, wore a tiara and necklace of old family pearls and was attended by her sister Letitia Magoffin, and Eugenia Peabody, daughter of the bridegroom, in orchid and blue, respectively, as bridesmaids, and by two flower girls, her daughters, the little Misses Vernon Marguerite Magoffin Siems and Dorothy Shelby Siems, in white and blue, and by Rushton Peabody, Jr. son of the bridegroom as a page. Her brother, Colonel Samuel Shelby Magoffin of Canada, gave her in marriage. Mr. Peabody's best man was his elder son, Charles A. Peabody, 2d. There were no ushers.

The bride is a descendant of several noted Governors of States, including Beriah Magoffin, War Governor of Kentucky, who was her grandfather. Isaac Shelby, first Governor of that State, was her great-great-grandfather, and on her mother's side Thomas Dudley, Colonial Governor of Massachusetts, was a great-great-great-grandfather, as was also Luke Barber, Colonial Governor of Maryland, and she is also related to the Clays of Kentucky and the Rogerses of Massachusetts.

Mr. Peabody is a member of the old Peabody family of Boston and New York. He was a widower and has two sons and a daughter, and the bride has two daughters and a son.

MISS AMY SPARKS ENGAGED.

Daughter of Sir Ashley and Lady Sparks to Wed Van Duzer Burton.

Sir Ashley Sparks and Lady Sparks of 130 East Sixty-seventh Street, this city, and Syosset, L. I., announced last evening the engagement of their daughter, a débutante of this season, Miss Amy Sparks, to Van Duzer Burton, a son of Frank V. Burton of 23 East Fifty-sixth Street, and Newburg, N. Y. Miss Sparks was educated at the Brearley School and Halcyon Hall, and was a member of this year's Junior League.

Mr. Burton has recently returned from three years' service as a Lieutenant in the French Artillery, and received the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire. He was a student at St. Mark's School. Both Miss Sparks and her fiancé are expert riders and are well known at the horse shows and in the Long Island hunting sets. Sir Ashley Sparks is the managing director of the Cunard Line, and in March last King George created him a Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire, with the title of Sir in recognition of his loyalty and services.

DERBYS WARM NEW HOME.

500 Oyster Bay Neighbors Greet Them on New Year's.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, Jan. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derby gave a housewarming to the neighbors this afternoon. More than five hundred residents of the village went to the new home and wished the youngest daughter of the late Theodore Roosevelt and her husband a happy New Year.

Since her marriage Mrs. Derby, when in Oyster Bay lived at Sagamore Hill. Following his return home from the war Dr. Derby purchased a residence near the village, and last week the family moved in. Scores of schoolmates of Mrs. Derby, who attended the little Cove School, where her father annually played the part of Santa Claus, came to give greetings today, and the Quentin Roosevelt Post of the American Legion appeared in a body. The town Board of Supervisors, which held its first meeting today, adjourned to attend the housewarming.

Mrs. Derby was assisted in receiving by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lloyd Derby, and Mrs. William Loeb, Jr., whose husband was secretary to the late President during his political life.

MISS KAHN MAKES DEBUT.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn Give a Dance for Daughter.

There were a number of New Year parties yesterday, the largest probably being the dance for the début of Miss Margaret Kahn, which took place in the evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, 1,100 Fifth Avenue. It was preceded by a large dinner that Mrs. Kahn gave. There were about 300 guests, chiefly débutantes and college men, and they were received by Mrs. Kahn and the Misses Maude and Margaret Kahn, and the supper was served after midnight.

Mrs. Frederick P. Solley of 114 East Sixtieth Street gave a dance in the Rose Room of the Plaza for her daughter, Miss Margaret Solley, and her sons. There were about 200 guests. Mrs. Solley, Mrs. John B. Solley, and Miss Margaret Solley received the guests.

Mrs. Norman E. Dittman gave a dinner for Miss Grace Helen Talbot, and after it the guests went to the dance for Miss Margaret Kahn.

At the Baltusrol Golf Club, Baltusrol, N. J., there was a luncheon, followed by dancing, at the clubhouse. Many who are spending the holidays at their country place near by attended the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Sasha Votichenko gave a reception yesterday at the Hotel des Artistes in honor of the Countess Festetics. Baroness Alexandra de Markoff, the pianist, and Mme. Vera Smirnova appeared in a musical program, the latter singing Russian gypsy songs.

Miss Allen to Wed Tomorrow.

The marriage of Miss Marion Ferris Allen, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Brown Allen of Weehawken, N. J., and Lansing Edwin Van Allen, will take place tomorrow at 4 o'clock, at the Clifton Chapel, Weehawken, of which the bride's father is minister. Mr. Allen went overseas with the Illinois 1st Artillery.

Pierson-Brower Engagement.

The engagement was announced New Year's Eve of Miss Helen Pierson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Pierson of Madison, N. J., to Bailey Brower of New York. The announcement was at a dinner and dance which Miss Madeleine Green gave at her Madison home.

Dance for Miss Gant, Debutante.

Mrs. Samuel Goodwin Gant of 471 Park Avenue will entertain with a dance for her débutante daughter, Miss Lucy Barret Gant, this evening at the St. Regis.

MUMMERS' PARADE REVIVED

Philadelphia Awards $15,000 in Prizes for Pageantry.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—The Mummer's Parade, the big feature of Philadelphia's New Year's celebration, was held on Broad Street today after a lapse of a year due to the war and was witnessed by hundreds of thousands of persons.

Many young men who served in France or on warships last year passed in review and contested for prizes amounting to $15,000 awarded by the city as part of Philadelphia's official celebration. Heading the parade were the fancy dress New Year clubs with their members arrayed for the occasion. There were kings and queens and princes in costumes that took from two to fifty pages to carry the trains or the long capes.

REPUBLICANS AT RECEPTION

Oppenheim Host at Reception to Prominent Men.

Robert Oppenheim, Republican leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, gave a reception to prominent Republicans yesterday at the Liberty Republican Club, 83 West 113th Street. More than 200 men and their wives attended. Speeches were taboo. A musical program was given.

Among those present were Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan; F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen; Supreme Court Justice Philip H. McCook, Municipal Court Justices John R. Davies, S. Clinton Crane, and Samson Friedlander, Sam Koenig, New York County Republican Chairman; Congressmen Isaac Siegel and Walter M. Chandler, ex-State Senator Schuyler M. Meyer, and Helen Varick, New York County Chairman of the Woman's Division of the Republican Party; Aldermen Samuel K. Morris and Charles Novello, and ex-City Court Justice Samuel Strasbourger.

O'RYAN UNVEILS HONOR ROLL

Y. M. C. A. Service Men's Service Commemorated in the Bronx.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, former commander of the 27th Division, unveiled an honor roll bearing the names of 950 members of the Bronx Union Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association who were in the service, in the branch building at Washington Avenue and 161st Street, yesterday afternoon. Gold stars marked the names of seventy-five.

After the unveiling, General O'Ryan told of the wonderful conduct of the American soldier while in France. The guard of honor consisted of Corporal A. Southwell of the Black Devils of the 8th Canadian Infantry; Sergeant Henry Schnirring of the 3d Ambulance Company of the New York National Guard; Lieutenant George Curry, formerly with the Motor Transport Corps, and Ensign Theodore Schad. Captain James M. Howards who was Chaplain of the 77th Division, offered prayer.

ALFRED HALLAM DEAD.

Former Conductor of People's Choral Union Was Long Ill.

Alfred Hallam, widely known in the East as a musical director, died yesterday in Roosevelt Hospital after a lingering illness. He was born in Rugby, England, sixty years ago and came here in 1893. For nearly twenty years he was in charge of the music in the schools of Mt. Vernon, and while there compiled several books of hymns and choral songs. In 1913 he went to Saratoga as music director of the Skidmore Conservatory of Arts, later holding the same position with the Chautauqua institution.

For two seasons he conducted the chorus of the Labor Temple and the People's Choral Union of this city and then, until his illness, he was song leader of the War Camp Community Service in Boston. Many representatives of musical societies will attend the services at the Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Brig. Gen. Alfred H. Stead.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 1.—Brig. Gen. Alfred H. Stead, retired, died suddenly tonight of acute indigestion. He served during the civil war in the Twenty-seventh Ohio Regiment, and was the first Commander of Reno Post, 64, G. A. R. He was the first Colonel of the Twelfth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, and served as such from 1874, when the regiment was organized, until 1888. He was an Alderman in Williamsport for forty years.

John Herbert Snelling.

John Herbert Snelling, President of the Marine Manufacturing and Supply Company of 158 South Street, died yesterday in his seventieth year at his home, 87 North Eighteenth Street, East Orange. He was an expert electrical and marine engineer who produced many devices used by submarine chasers and destroyers during the war. He was long associated with Lewis Nixon in the Crescent Shipyards, and also directed the alterations made on the Shamrock III.

HUNGRY HORSES GET NEW YEAR'S DINNER

Oats, Alfalfa, Hay and Apples the Menu Served to 400 Equine Guests.

HORSE AID SOCIETY'S GIFT

Women Tour Trucking Sections, Buy Wornout Animals and Help Poor Drivers.

A feed line extending from Broadway to Seventh Avenue on Thirty-eighth Street was formed yesterday where a New Year's dinner was served in buckets and boxes to 400 poor but worthy horses. Seven of the animals were purchased the day before from their owners and are to be killed to save them from suffering from incurable maladies.

Among the horses which had seen better days were four in particular that posed for the motion picture cameras: King Kilvert, a former high stepper and show horse, now attached to a fish vendor's cart; Elsie, a once-upon-a-time fire horse from the West Thirtieth Street Station; Peibell, a former police saddle horse, and a little black polo pony with X. I. T. branded on his flank, which was taken from the shafts of a ragman's iron wagon.

A New Year party was held under the auspices of the Horse Aid Society of New York at their free animal clinic, 149 West Thirty-eighth Street. The full meal, consisting of oats, alfalfa, hay, and apples, was the gift of Mrs. Jacob M. Ehrlich, President of the society; Miss Flora Finch, and other friends of dumb animals. It is intended to continue the horse feed line until the feed now on hand, enough for about two hundred square meals, is used up.

Mrs. Ehrlich explained that it costs on an average of $8 a week to feed a horse properly. She said that three reputable veterinaries had recently tabulated the results of a horse census, which showed that over 50 per cent. of the horses in this city were hungry and some of them worked two days at a time without food. She said that a bushel of oats today cost $2.45.

Mrs. Ehrlich said that she and other women were daily in their motor cars through the trucking districts of the city and after singling out horses that are "beyond the need of treatment," they encouraged the driver and owner to permit them to relieve the horse from further endurance of hardship by buying him on the spot and having the animal killed.

"We do not seek the benefit of fines imposed by Magistrates," she continued. "Rather we discourage the summoning of drivers to court and prefer to help the man by taking off his hands the subject of the alleged cruel and inhuman treatment."

If a peddler or other poor horse owner buys an animal that is not sound, the Horse Aid Society gives him the price he paid for the steed and in addition advances to him without charge sufficient money to enable him to obtain a warranted horse. The society feels that with a strong horse the owner can make a livelihood, and from his earnings the society collects the full price advanced at the rate of a dollar a week.

Some of those interested in this movement, in addition to those mentioned, are Mrs. Isaac Guggenheimer, Mrs. Julia E. Rogers, Miss Louise Castree, Dean W. Horace Hoskins, Mrs. Reginald Pelham Bolton, Mrs. William Orr Barclay, and the Directors and officers of the society.

I. Thess. 4 13-18.
But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.
For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.
For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep.
For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first.
Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord.
Wherefore comfort one another with these words:

Where the Saints in glory thronging,
Where they feed on life's blest tree—
There is stilled each earnest longing,
Satisfied our souls shall be.

Safety—where no foe approaches;
Rest—where toil shall be no more;
Joy—whereon no grief encroaches;
Peace—where strife shall all be o'er.

SCHACKNE—In loving and never to be forgotten memory of our dear brother, Benjamin J. Schackne, who departed this life Jan. 2, 1917.

NEW YEAR'S HANDICAP WON BY KORBLY ON OPENING DAY AT FAIR GROUNDS TRACK

KORBLY, AT 10 TO 1, STARTS YEAR WELL

Shield's Entry Wins Feature Handicap at Opening of New Orleans Fair Grounds.

ARNOLD SETS NEW RECORD

Takes Inaugural Dash, at Six Furlongs, in 1:11 4-5—Eye Opener Captures Debut of Youngsters.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 1.—Favored by ideal racing weather and an excellent card, a great crowd turned out today for the opening of the forty-one day meeting at the Fair Grounds course, and among other things received a surprise when M. Shield's Korbly ran off with the $5,000 New Year's Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, which ushered in the sport here. Korbly romped home in front of a field of eleven starters at 10 to 1, defeating Slippery Elm by two lengths, with Sands of Pleasure third.

From all indications the meeting at the Fair Grounds should be a highly prosperous one. This meeting usually marks the beginning of the big time racing, and conditions have never before been so favorable. Not only is interest in the sport at a high pitch, as was indicated by the attendance today, which taxed the capacity of the plant, but there are many high-class horses here and others due to arrive from day to day as the meeting progresses. There will also be a relief from the numerous sprinting events, as the management has arranged to have more distance races at a mile and over than were seen at Jefferson Park.

So many improvements have been made at the Fair Grounds plant that veteran patrons hardly recognized the place. A new stand has been built at the end of the one which was moved over from City Park, and a drainage system has been installed which insures a fast track and vastly better racing than in past seasons. Owing to the narrowness of the course, the fields will be limited so as to avoid bumping and jamming.

Interest centred today in the running of the New Year's Handicap, which is the first real valuable purse to be contested for in the year and marks the beginning of better purses. Slippery Elm was made the favorite although he was quoted at 3 to 1, while Jack Hare, Jr., which had been assigned the top weight of 127 pounds, was the second choice in the betting at 4 to 1. Korbly was an outsider at all times at 10 to 1 and had few supporters when he went to the post.

Jack Hare, Jr., Has a Rough Trip.

There was some disappointment for the crowd when Jack Hare, Jr., got into difficulties shortly after the start and was pushed back and forced to go wide at the turns. Altogether it was a rough trip for Jack Hare, and after gamely trying to make up for the disadvantage finally tired in the stretch and finished back among the trailers.

Korbly was away with a jump and went to the lead at once. Thurber was able to save ground all the way. For the first three-quarters of a mile Korbly was closely pursued by Tacola, which was never more than half a length away. The winner was obliged to do his best all the way to the finish line, for first one and then another of the contenders rushed up and challenged him so that he got no respite. After Tacola had vainly tried to overtake him Slippery Elm, which had been slow to get under way, made his bid at the head of the stretch just when it seemed that Korbly had disposed of his most dangerous rivals.

Slippery Elm had been far back for the first half of the race and O'Brien rode him hard in order to close the big gap. Slippery Elm responded courageously and once straightened out in the long stretch began to move up. By this time Korbly was free from the others and was still running strongly. Slippery Elm made one final dash at the leader as he neared the finish line, shook off Sands of Pleasure, and then tired suddenly from his efforts. With this Korbly raced away easily to win by two lengths. Slippery Elm beat Sands of Pleasure nearly two lengths for the place, and Tacola dropped back to fourth in the last few strides. A surprise was the rather poor showing of Ormonda, which raced well for three-quarters of a mile and then dropped out of the contest to finish next to last.

Arnold Lowers Track Record.

The Inaugural Dash, at six furlongs, which was next in importance to the feature event, fell easy prey to C. A. Applegate's Arnold, which with 111 pounds up just cantered through the final furlong to win by four lengths after setting the pace all the way from the barrier. Arnold set a track record of 1:11 4-5.

Arnold was at his best, and under a clever ride by Butwell was the best of this field of four from the start. He raced into the lead at once and drew away from Mahony until he was two lengths in front. Bon Tromp and Jorice were well out of the contest through the back stretch, but Bon Tromp saved ground at the turn and made a game finish, moving into second place. Arnold was so far out in front that Butwell sat still and looked back at the others as he neared the wire. Mahony took third. Arnold was one of the best played favorites of the day, and went to the post at 9 to 10.

The first race on the card marked the début of eleven juveniles which have just become eligible for racing. They had the trial in a three-furlong sprint and the victory went to the Nosreme Stable's Eye Opener, which won by six lengths from Charles A. Byrne. Many of these youngsters ran greenly, but Eye Opener showed the advantage of good schooling and ran a courageous race. Troxler got this son of Fitzherbert away from the post quickly, but he was quickly crowded to the outside and forced to go wide the entire trip. The colt showed gameness and under a hard drive moved up, disposed of his field, and, once headed for home, drew away easily. Charles A. Byrne gave a clever performance and indicated he would improve. Joe Mancinni was also forced to go wide and made a good impression in the manner in which he finished. The Moor was left at the post, refusing to break with the others.

Sweet Liberty Wins by a Nose.

The first of the three-year-old events brought out a field of sprinters which have just graduated from the juvenile class, and Sweet Liberty captured the event over the five-and a half furlong route from Rapid Traveler in a close finish, with Mingo third. Sweet Liberty was in front all the way, but had to be hard ridden to last, as Rapid Traveler gained rapidly after meeting with interference at the first turn. The winner had an advantage of a nose at the end. Rapid Traveler had been made an even money choice and appeared to be the best in the race.

Wadsworth's Last proved to be the best in the one mile and a quarter race which closed the card. Gaining the lead shortly after the start he opened up a gap of six lengths and easily held Jack Reeves safe. The latter took the place from Captain Hodge.

WALNUT HALL SETS RECORD AT HAVANA

Lowers Time for Mile and Three-Sixteenths in New Year's Handicap.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 1.—Walnut Hall, running in the colors of the Armola stable, won the New Year's Handicap at one mile and three-sixteenths, at Oriental Park today, and in doing so stepped the distance in the fast time of 1:57 4-5, which is a track record. Walnut Hall was 6 to 1 in the betting. Legal was installed the favorite at 6 to 5. Orestes was again held at a short price at 2 to 1 but as in previous starts he failed to land in the money. Hank O'Day went out to make the pace and lead his field to the stretch where he was challenged by Legal. The favorite went into the lead at the furlong pole and looked a winner but Carmody brought Walnut Hall up with a rush and won by half a length. Hank O'Day third, three lengths back. The New Year's Handicap carried a net value of $1,630.

CORBETT IS WINNER AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Captures High Scratch Prize Against Large Field in Annual Holiday Shoot.

George J. Corbett, Chairman of the Shooting Committee of the New York Athletic Club, led a field that numbered fifty-six gunners in the annual New Year's Day shoot of the organization over the Travers Island traps of the club yesterday. The winner took the high scratch open prize with a total of 93 out of a possible 100 targets. The other open scratch prizes were won by T. H. Lawrence and N. Webb in the order named.

HARVARD ELEVEN DEFEATS OREGON

bar. Huntington and Brandenberg, between them, ran eight yards. Steers punted over the goal line and Harvard took the ball on her 20-yard line. Casey got sixteen yards and A. Horween made five. Huntington recovered when R. Horween fumbled near midfield.

Steers made six yards, after two of his team mates had failed to puncture Harvard's line. Steers then punched centre for first down on Harvard's 43-yard line and added three yards on his next assault.

Oregon's Fumbles Help Crimson.

Arnold Horween recovered an Oregon fumble on the Crimson's 40-yard line, and his brother promptly punted to the opposing 40-yard line where Jacobberger fumbled and Captain Murray made his presence felt by pouncing on the ball. Here was Harvard's first real break. Captain Bill called on R. Horween for two yards and Eddie Casey turned over three more. Murray's pass to Casey went wide. R. Horween's drop kick from his 45-yard line was blocked by Williams and Anderson recovered for Oregon.

In trying to get the ball Ralph Horween's chipped collar bone was thrown out of place and Freddy Church replaced him at fullback. Jacobberger made ten yards and carried the ball to Harvard's 37-yard line. Three rushes with Bill Steers carrying the ball just yielded the Oregonians another first down.

On the second rush Steers crashed off left tackle for five, and added two more around Steele. Huntington made it first down on Harvard's 18-yard line. A forward pass, Steers to Huntington, went for naught because an Oregonian was offside, but the ball was still in possession of the Westerners on Harvard's 15-yard line as the first period ended.

Steers Kicks Goal from Field.

At the very outset of the second quarter, after one play had failed, Steers dropped back and kicked a field goal from the 25-yard line for the first score of the contest.

Steers carried A. Horween's kickoff back to Oregon's 22-yard line. Two rushes yielded five yards, and then Steers decided to punt, Captain Murray running the ball five yards to his forty-yard line. Casey walked through Bartlett for three yards, but Church nullified this gain by running outside for a three-yard loss.

A forward pass from Captain Murray to Casey earned twenty-five yards, carrying Harvard to Oregon's 38-yard line. Arnie Horween made five and Casey caught another pass from Murray for fifteen yards. Oregon was offside on the next play, and Harvard had the pigskin on the opposing team's 15-yard line. Aided by fine interference, Church circled Bartlett for fifteen yards and a touchdown, placing the ball directly behind the uprights. Arnold Horween kicked an easy goal, sending Harvard four points into the lead, with the score Harvard, 7; Oregon, 3.

Oregon's Plunges Are Stopped.

Huntington brought A. Horween's kickoff out to Oregon's 30-yard line. Steers was thrown without making an inch and Huntington met a like fate. Steers, forced to punt, lifted one for Harvard's captain at the Crimson's 33-yard line.

Church on the very first play kicked behind Oregon's goal, giving the latter team the ball on their 20-yard line. Steers made 18 yards around Steele's end.

Time was called for bad Bill Steers, who appeared much battered up. The Oregon stands got rough and admonished their team to beat up the opposition. Skeet Manerud, the 125-pound subquarter back, substituted for Steers as the latter was escorted off the field.

Jacobberger opened up with five yards and on the next play the ball went outside, being brought to the centre of Harvard's 45-yard line. Brandenberg's drop kick was blocked but he jumped and recovered the ball. Manerud lost five yards.

Arnold Horween's fine tackling was sending the Oregon backs to the turf like a triphammer. Captain Brandenberg asked for time and got a two yards penalty for taking too much time.

Punts Are Exchanged.

With fourth down and ten to go Manerud punted to Harvard's 18-yard line. Church, on the second play, punted 50 yards to Oregon's 40-yard line, with Manerud gaining 5 on the way back. After two efforts had failed to gain, Brandenberg smashed off 8 yards and Harvard was penalized to its 44-yard line for holding. Huntington brushed by right guard to Harvard's 14-yard line, and 2 more yards were added for extra time out.

Jacobberger and Huntington made only a yard, but Oregon was caught holding and lost 15 yards. A forward pass failed, but little Mancrud, the Oregon quarter back, came to the fore on the fourth down, dropkicking a goal from the 32-yard line. It was neatly done and brought the Oregonians to within one point of their Crimson opponents.

Brandenberg ran A. Horween's kickoff 20 yards back to his 30-yard line. On the next play Manerud skirted right end for 17 yards. The half ended with the score—Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.

Brown Goes In at Tackle.

Jacobberger ran back A. Horween's kickoff 20 yards as the third period opened. Manerud was forced to punt, as his backs failed him, and Captain Murray was thrown in his tracks on Harvard's 22-yard line. Casey and Church, between them, made 10 yards. Bartlett caught Church trying to circle Mort Howard. Church's 40-yard punt to Huntington landed on Oregon's 27-yard line. Brandenberg was thrown for a 5-yard loss and Coach Fisher substituted Brown, a guard, for Kane, at right tackle.

Manerud tried one play and then punted to Harvard's 40-yard line, where Church returned the peg to Oregon's 30-yard line. Murray caught a short line drive punt and made five yards. Here Babe Felton, who did wonderful work in the Princeton and Yale games, relieved the Harvard leader.

Casey was sent through Mautz for four yards, and on the next play Harvard was penalized for offside. Felton to Casey, via the forward pass, made fifteen yards, and brought the ball to Oregon's 20-yard line.

A pass to Church went wide. Howard of Oregon recovered on Oregon's 28-yard line as Church fumbled. As his team was unable to rush the ball, Sid Leslie punted to Felton on Harvard's 37-yard line. Church got five on a fake play, but failed the next time. He then punted forty yards to Oregon's 22-yard line. In five rushes Oregon went twenty yards, with Brandenberg making most of the gains. Steele of Harvard retired in favor of Phinney.

Manerud's Drop Kick Goes Wild.

Another first down was made by the Oregonians, and Huntington broke loose just afterward and scampered to Harvard's 34-yard line. Casey threw Hunt for a loss. Skeet Manerud tried to duplicate his drop kick goal of the previous period, but the ball sailed to one side.

Church punted at once to Oregon's 43-yard line. Jacobberger lost a yard and a fumble by the same man was recovered by one of his teammates on his 40-yard line as the third period ended with Harvard still holding its razor-edge lead.

Steers started the final period, replacing Jacobberger. After one play he punted to the rear of Harvard's goal line, the ball being brought to the 20-yard line. Casey slipped after traveling three yards and Church's punt fell into Manerud's hands on his 40-yard line. Brandenberg made ten yards in a whirling rush, but Oregon soon lost five yards of this on holding. On the next play Harvard drew a 15-yard penalty, giving Oregon first down on Harvard's 40-yard line.

Steers ran five yards to Harvard's 35-yard line. His next attempt, a drop kick from the 30-yard line, went wide. Casey managed to squeeze through centre for five yards. Church's punt was blocked, covering only fifteen yards, Manerud recovering on Harvard's 30-yard line.

Oregon Makes Strong Bid.

Three rushes brought Oregon first down on Harvard's 21-yard line. With Steers and Hunt carrying the ball eight yards more were added. Steers's drop kick was blocked, but Huntington saved the ball for his team by recovering on Harvard's 18-yard line.

Hunt gained five yards and Steers rushed to Harvard's 12-yard line with three to go for first down. Manerud's attempt for goal from the 20-yard line traveled wide.

Arnie Horween took two rushes for seven yards and then made first down on his 30-yard line. Again the Chicago plunger made six and added the same number again for a first down on Harvard's 45-yard line. Chapman replaced Brandenberg.

Horween, in two rushes, made five and Church added four, giving Horween the chance for first down on Oregon's 40-yard line. Casey took Felton's pass on the next play for first down. The thoroughly used up Hubbard of Harvard was replaced by Faxon.

A. Horween rushed the ball 20-yards to Oregon's 5-yard line. Oregon held twice without budging, but Church, on the third play, made four yards and on the next play Oregon took the ball away on its half-yard line as the game ended with the final score: Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.

JOY AT HARVARD CLUB.

Old Grads "See" Game Through Irwin's Scoreboard.

Harvard's football victory in Pasadena yesterday aroused unusual interest in New York, and the telephone wires of THE NEW YORK TIMES last night were kept busy with inquiries about the game. Not only were Harvard men interested, but also the football enthusiasts of other colleges who joined with the Crimson alumni in the hope that Eastern football would triumph over the coast game as played by Oregon.

There was an enthusiastic gathering of Harvard men at the Harvard Club, where the game was reproduced play by play on Arthur Irwin's scoreboard. Harvard Hall was filled with former Crimson athletes and prominent alumni. Percy Haughton, the former Harvard coach, was there and followed every play closely. The cheering lasted several minutes when it was announced that Church had crossed the Oregon goal line, and every time Eddie Casey and Arnold Horween reeled off gains, the place was in an uproar.

Among those in the gathering were Thomas W. Slocum, Vice President of the club; Jabish Holmes, '79; Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Charles W. Wetmore. At the end of the game Langdon P. Marvin '98, led the cheering for the victorious eleven. Former Crimson football players in the gathering included Vic Kennard, Hugo Francke, Stump Willard, Joe Nourse, and C. C. Bull.

CHANEY OUTPOINTS BROWN.

Provides Fast Bout at Philadelphia —Smith Scores Knockout.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—In the final at the National Sporting Club today Jeff Smith scored a technical knockout over a person known as Art Magirl in the third round. He was called that and other things by the audience.

George Chaney slammed Frankie Brown all over the scenery in the semi-final. The Baltimorean has been trying to come back for some time past. A couple of weeks ago he lost to Benny Valger. Today he won in a clean cut manner.

In the fifth and sixth rounds Brown received an awful beating. George shoved enough southpaw slams into Brown's stomach to stop any ordinary man but Frankie took the beating gamely.

Eddie Moy earned a draw with Mickey Donley in the fourth bout. Moy forced the fighting throughout but Mickey was too clever for him.

Bobby Dyson, New England bantamweight champion, handed Max Williamson a neat trimming in the third bout. Dyson landed an awful left hook to the stomach in the first round that almost put Maxie out of the running. Williamson weathered the round, however, and fought hard during the rest of the bout.

K. O. Laughlin won from Billy Kramer in the second contest. Kramer was outclassed, but he put up a game battle. He stung Laughlin several times with hard right hooks to the jaw. Billy visited the mat twice, once in the third round and again in the final session.

Joe Nelson gave Joe Mendell a lacing in the opener. Mendell was floored in the first round for the count of one.

HIS NIBS WINS TWO RACES.

Takes Five-and-a-Half-Furlong and Mile Events at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 1.—Summer weather and an exceptionally good program attracted the largest crowd of the season to the Pinehurst Jockey Club's New Year's race meeting this afternoon. His Nibbs, entered by J. A. Trotter of Baltimore and ridden by Archibald, achieved the unusual by winning twice in the course of the day's proceedings.

His Nibbs started by taking the five and a half furlong flat race. The next running event, a six-furlong affair, was won in 1:15 4-5 by Uncle Sand, owned by Hayden Stevens of Providence and ridden by Welts. Then His Nibbs got busy again in the one-mile flat race, took the lead at the start, and won by a full length in 1:49 1-5, with Wassen, entered by H. B. Swoope of Madera, Pa., second.

Robert Taylor's Algardi, splendidly handled by Call, carried off the mile steeplechase event. A large number of youthful amateurs took part in an exciting potato race. The contest was won by Miss Nancy Cope of Philadelphia.

REMSEN WINS AT TRAPS.

Takes Scratch Prize In Annual Shoot at Bergen Beach Gun Club.

G. S. K. Remsen won the high scratch prize in the annual New Year's Day shoot over the Jamaica Bay traps of the Bergen Beach Gun Club yesterday. He took the prize with a card of 94 out of a possible 100 targets. The second high scratch prize was a cup offered by Miss Alice Doerkin. It was won by F. Von Boeckman.

In addition to the scratch prizes there were the usual number of the handicap gunners. The first was won by H. S. K. Munsie. Then came Al Evans, L. Schortmeyer, and R. Metz, in the order named.

For the past three months the Bergen Beach gunners have been shooting for four cups. The shoot held yesterday was the final one of the series. When the last "bird" was trapped it was found that R. C. Williams had won the Voorhies Cup. H. W. Voorhies was the winner of the Dweyer Cup. A. Delbon was the best in the shoot for the Wilber Trophy, and the Club Cup was taken by Dr. Hunter.

The scores follow:

BRITTON GETS VERDICT.

Welterweight Champion Defeats Gill in Ten-Round Bout.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 1.—Jack Britton, welterweight champion of the world, was awarded the newspaper decision at Steelton in a ten-round bout with Johnny Gill of that place today. Gill fought bravely against the champion's onslaughts the first round, but his weakness in the second continued during the fight.

JEWTRAW CAPTURES THREE EASTERN CHAMPIONSHIP TITLES IN SKATING RACES AT NEWBURGH

HONORS IN SKATING FALL TO JEWTRAW

Lake Placid Speed Marvel Wins Three Eastern Titles and Five-Mile Handicap.

ICE IN POOR CONDITION

Weather Impedes Contestants In Championships at Newburgh—World's Tandem Record Broken.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Charles Jewtraw, the phenomenal speed merchant of the Lake Placid Club, again demonstrated that he is one of the foremost skaters of the country by winning four events at the Eastern skating championships, held at Newburgh yesterday afternoon. Jewtraw was not defeated once during the entire course of the contests, finishing in front in every one of his qualifying heats and final events. The races that the Lake Placid boy won were the quarter, half and one mile championships, and the five mile handicap.

The contests were skated over a track measuring eight laps to the mile, and several records might have been shattered had the ice been in good condition. As it was, the races were marred by falls, which put some of the leading contestants out of the running.

In the quarter-mile race, William Murphy, Ice Palace Team, got off to an excellent start, and led for half the distance. On the backstretch of the final lap, Jewtraw sprinted by with a fine burst of speed, followed by Pickering, of Verona Lake, Murphy and Walker, Saranac Lake. Jewtraw won by about four yards, with Pickering second. Walker took third position when Murphy fell just before crossing the line. Joe Moore, Metropolitan champion, fell in his qualifying heat and did not enter the final.

The final heat of the half-mile championship gave Jewtraw another opportunity to display his superiority. He uncorked another of his wonderful sprints and led home his team mate, Ray Bryant, by two yards. Bryant in turn beat Pickering by four yards. Joe Moore had another fall in this event just previous to the sprint. He would probably have been placed if he had remained on his feet.

In the one-mile championship, Moore, Lake Placid Club, forced Jewtraw to the limit. On the sixth lap, when Russel Wheeler, Montreal A. A. A., jumped the field, Moore and Jewtraw set out in pursuit. They both went by Wheeler, and Jewtraw, outsprinting Moore, took first place, with Moore second and Wheeler third.

The best race of the afternoon was the five-mile handicap. The low mark men quickly caught the field and went along at a great rate. Jewtraw and Bryant did most of the pacing, with Moore riding in a forward position all the way. The sprint did not come until the final lap. Jewtraw shot out from the field with Moore at his heels. Down the backstretch they raced, stride for stride. On the last turn it seemed as if Moore would win, but Jewtraw did not allow him to pass, and beat him by a bare yard. Ray Bryant beat Leslie Boyd, Tremont S. C., for third place.

One of the surprises of the day was the shattering of the world's tandem skating record by Miss Elsie Mueller and Billy Taylor, N. Y. A. C. This pair skated a quarter of a mile in 0:49 4-5, beating the old mark by 2 4-5 seconds.

Several other events were on the program, including an exhibition of hurdle racing by Edward Horton of Saranac Lake, the champion hurdler, and a speed exhibition by Mrs. Frank MacMillan. Because of the poor condition of the ice there were many falls, and the time for the races was slow, but every contest was closely fought.

The summaries:

QUARTER-MILE CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; G. Pickering, Verona Lake, second; J. Walker, Saranac Lake, third. Time—0:43 1-5.

HALF-MILE CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; Ray Bryant, Lake Placid, second; G. Pickering, third. Time—1:30.

ONE-MILE CHAMPINSHIP — Won by Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid; Joe Moore, Lake Placid, second; R. Wheeler, Montreal, third. Time—3:13 1-5.

ONE-MILE NOVICE—Won by E. W. Kleinart, Brooklyn; Arthur Flogy, Arlington, second; Harry Rose, Arlington, third. Time—3:43 3-5.

FIVE-MILE HANDICAP—Won by Charles Jewtraw (scratch); Joe Moore (25 yards), second; Ray Bryant (10 yards), third. Time—17:48.

QUARTER-MILE WOMEN'S RACE—Won by Elsie Mueller; Mena Wheeler, second; Miss Krapowicz, third. Time—0:56 3-5.

WALKER LANDS IN FINAL.

Intercollegiate Champion to Meet Danforth in Pinehurst Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 1.—Arthur L. Walker, Jr., of Richmond County and Frank S. Danforth of North Fork will meet in the final of the mid-Winter final golf tournament at Pinehurst tomorrow. Young Walker's victory over J. D. Chapman of Greenwich in today's semi-final round was more or less of a foregone conclusion. The intercollegiate champion was 5 up at the turn, at which he arrived in 38, and, although Chapman held his own coming in the match ended at the fourteenth, with Walker still 5 up.

Frank S. Danforth's defeat of Donald Parson of Youngstown, the medalist, was, on the other hand, a good deal of a surprise to the prophets. Danforth went out in 39, including a fine 2 at the blind eighth hole and was 3 up at the turn. Coming in Parson won four holes and Danforth three, the match ending at the seventeenth with a 2 and 1 win for the North Fork golfer.

It is generally assumed here that Walker will win the President's Trophy tomorrow, but if Danforth plays as steadily as he has for two days, it should be at least a close and interesting match. Danforth negotiated six successive holes in 21 in his match with F. T. Keating of Spring Lake yesterday.

The summaries:

First Sixteen.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND—A. L. Walker, Jr., Richmond County, defeated J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, 5 and 4; F. S. Danforth, North Fork, defeated Donald Parson, Youngstown, 2 and 1.

BEATEN EIGHT—C. H. Banes, Merion, won from T. A. Kelly, Southern Pines, by default; M. L. Fearrick, Garden City, defeated Frederick Snare, Havana, 4 and 3.

Second Sixteen.

J. V. Jenks, Harbor Beach, defeated J. P. Hotchkiss, New Haven, 2 up; H. G. Phillips, Moore County, defeated T. J. Bray, Youngstown, 2 up.

BEATEN EIGHT—E. T. Manson, Framingham, defeated G. W. Mead, Glen Ridge, 1 up; C. L. Becker, E. Kwanok, defeated G. T. Dunlap, Canoe Brook, 2 and 1.

Toledo Eleven Ties Everett, 7 to 7.

EVERETT, Wash., Jan. 1.—The football elevens of Everett High School and Scott High School of Toledo, Ohio, played a 7 to 7 tie game today, contesting for the national preparatory school championship. A crowd of 8,000 witnessed the game. The Everett team played the Easterners off their feet in the first period. Toledo retaliated in the second period.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 1.—The Seventh Cavalry football team defeated the Fifth Cavalry from Marfa today, 8 to 0. The Seventh now claims the Southern Department Army championship for teams playing as regimental organizations.

NEED OF "GYM" TEACHERS.

National Council Discusses Inefficiency of Educational System.

Winding up the holiday sessions of America's athletic and recreational directors, the National Council of the American Physical Education Association met at the Hotel Astor yesterday, with Dr. William Burdick of Baltimore, presiding. The eighteen executives present included Dr. Thomas A. Story, Washington, Vice President; Dr. J. H. McCurdy, Springfield, Secretary-Treasurer; Mrs. Persis B. McCurdy, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer; Laurence S. Hill, Albany; Carl L. Schrader, Dr. E. H. Arnold, New Haven, Conn.; Dr. C. E. Ehinger, West Chester, Pa.; Dr. George J. Fisher, Y. M. C. A.; Martin I. Foss, Y. M. C. A. College, Chicago; Dr. George L. Meylan, Columbia University; Dr. R. Tate McKenzie, University of Pennsylvania; Miss Ethel Perrin, Detroit; Harry E. Stewart, New Haven, and Grace J. Waterman, Troy, N. Y.

Dr. McCurdy presented two important reports to the meeting, the first a statement of the finances of the organization, which are in better shape than ever before, and the second a detailed study of the exact needs for teachers of physical training on a national scale. He said that the present system of education does not bring physical efficiency, and cited rejections in the army and losses in the industries through illness as proof.

The speaker then gave figures, computed on a pre war basis, showing the difference between the need and the actual supply of instructors in pisical training in this country, as follows:

Summary of teachers needed for pupils, 6 to 20 years old, including both men and women: 43,737 total number of teachers needed; 5,500 total number available teachers; 38,237 total number additional teachers needed; 1,000 trained men teachers demanded; 200 trained men teachers available; 1,500 trained women teachers demanded; 800 trained women teachers available.

Martin I. Foss of Chicago reported for the Program Committee of the convention of the association, which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria from April

Officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: President, Dr. Dudley B. Reed, Chicago; Vice President, Miss Ethel Perrin, Director of Physical Education in the Public Schools of Detroit; Secretary-Treasurer and Editor of The Review, Dr. J. H. McCurdy, Springfield (re-elected for his fourteenth year of continuous service); Assistant Editor and Secretary, Mrs. Persis McCurdy (also re-elected); members of the Executive Committee, Dr. William Burdick, Director of Physical Education for the State of Maryland and of the Public School Athletic League of Baltimore; Carl Schrader, Sargent Normal School, Cambridge, Mass., and Emil Rath, President of the North American Gymnastic Union Normal School, Indianapolis.

MATES RIVAL IN 8 MOVES.

Isaacson Scores Speedy Victory in College Chess Tourney.

C. B. Isaacson, '21, E, Captain of the Columbia chess team, which won the intercollegiate championship in 1918, was the first to score his game last night in the opening round of the twenty-seventh annual tournament with Harvard, Yale, and Princeton at the rooms of the Brooklyn Chess Club, where Columbia was pitted against Princeton at four boards and Harvard against Yale at the remaining four boards.

The Blue and White representative notched the point for his team in record time, forcing checkmate in eight moves. It was the shortest game ever contested between any of the players of these four colleges forming the "C. H. Y. P." Chess League. Isaacson's opponent was Edward G. Miles, Princeton, '20, a member of the Tiger team of 1917, generally regarded as among the steadiest in the list of Princeton's chess players.

Miles, who hails from Asheville, N. C., was cited for the Croix de Guerre for conspicuous and repeated bravery while engaged in ambulance service in France.

Miles was off form last night and made a hasty exchange of pawns in a dangerous variation of the Scotch gambit, which gave Isaacson an opportunity to threaten checkmate, which could only be averted by the sacrifice of a piece. Miles sought to escape with his king in the middle of the board, but subjected himself to a mate in two moves.

The moves of the game ran as follows: Scotch Gambit—Isaacson, Columbia (white) vs. Miles, Princeton (black): 1 P-K4, P-K4; 2 P-Q4, PxP; 3 Kt-KB3, Kt-QB3; 4 Castles, B-K2; 5 P-B3, PxP; 6 Q-Q5, P-Q3, and Isaacson announced mate in two moves.

M. A. Schapiro, '23, Philip Wolfson, '22, and W. R. Thompson, '23, the other members of the Columbia quartet, all did good work on their respective boards, making headway gradually. At a late hour, a Columbia victory was forecast.

In the Harvard-Yale match one game was scored by L. Hall, '21, of Harvard, by default, in consequence of the decision of the Yale team to play one man short rather than put in a substitute for Reginald Malsin, '21, who had not arrived, but who will play in the second and third rounds.

H. C. Jackson, '22, Secretary of the Yale Chess Club, was on hand, but, had he stepped in, he would have been obliged to play right through under the rules of the tournament. The Yale men put their heads together and decided that they would be the gainers by keeping the place open for Malsin.

Later on in the evening things began to happen in the Harvard-Yale match. K. Mott-Smith, R. Johnson and A. R. Freye outplayed Yale opponents finely and placed their games in the Crimson column. Harvard, therefore, won the match by four games to none.

ALLEY IS BEST GUNNER.

Makes High Scratch and Handicap Scores at Larchmont Club.

A. B. Alley was both high scratch and high handicap gunner at the traps of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday. His score was 90—16—100. As it was impossible for him to win both prizes, he took the high scratch trophy. The high handicap prize went to J. A. Anderson, the only other gunner to have a full card of 100 targets. The day was not particularly good and as a result the scores were only fair.

HARVARD VETERANS VICTORS AT HOCKEY

Former Crimson Stars Defeat Princeton 'Varsity Skaters by 5 to 4 at Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 1.—The Harvard Club of Boston Hockey Team, made up of players who some years ago were members of the Harvard 'Varsity team and several of whom played on Boston's amateur league championship sevens, beat the Princeton 'Varsity team 5 to 4 tonight. The game was the first played in the new indoor rink, which, although much smaller than the old arena, provided some fine sport. The teams started playing with six men on a side, trying out seven men each in the second half, but with fourteen men on the ice a traffic cop was really needed as much as a referee.

The Harvard veterans made a good start, Baldwin scoring two goals in short order and combining with Hicks for another. After that, however, the older players began to slow up. The Tigers made two goals in each half and were playing the faster game when the time expired. Percy, former Harvard strong man, made the Crimson's last two goals, one of them in the second period being from a short pass back by Hicks. This proved to be the winning point. Percy's other goal was on a fifty-foot drive from the side boards. Haight made two very pretty wing shots for goal for the Tigers, and it was from one of his passes that Ehret made his goal. The last point scored by Princeton was on a pass from Ehret to Cook.

In the second half White entered the game for Harvard, and Cook, who had been replaced by Ehret in the earlier period, took a place on the Jersey forward line.

The summary:

HARVARD CLUB OF BOSTON.		PRINCETON.
Webb	G.	Maxwell

BROOKLYN ELEVEN WINS.

Robins Dry Dock Soccer Team Defeats All Stars by Score of 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—Displaying a slight but satisfactory superiority in nearly every department of the game, the Robins Drydock eleven of Brooklyn, defeated the team of all-stars picked from the St. Louis Crew Company, the Scullin Steel and the Innesfalls in the first of a three-game intersectional exhibition series with teams of the St. Louis Soccer League at Cardinal Field today, by a score of 3 to 1.

RAMSEY WINS ROAD RACE.

Legion A. A. Athlete Takes Eighth Annual Quaker City Run.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—George Ramsey of the Legion A. A. captured the eighth annual New Year's Day run of the South Street Business Men's Association today from a field of fifty-three starters.

The soldier-athlete, who formerly carried the colors of the Marquette Catholic Club, took the lead shortly after the first mile had been completed and held it for the remaining four miles. He covered the course in 32 minutes 26 seconds, being 32 seconds ahead of J. E. Williams of the Meadowbrook Club. E. Silverstein of the Glencoe A. C. of New York finished third, 40 seconds after Ramsey.

For the fourth successive year the Meadowbrook Club captured the team honors with a total of 43 points. The Glencoe A. C. team finished second, with 51 points, and also won the prize for the visiting team scoring the highest number of points.

John Gray, Middle Atlantic A. A. U. junior cross-country champion, won the time prize when he covered the course in 29 minutes 59 seconds, and beat A. Hisler, Jr., of the Meadowbrook Club, and the senior title by three seconds. John Morris of Meadowbrook won third time prize, being 10 seconds behind Hisler.

LINDAU LEADS CYCLISTS.

Captures 3-and-a-Half-Mile Race in Bronx in Close Finish.

Paul Lindau, riding under the auspices of the Acme Wheelmen, led a field of thirty-one starters over the finish in the three-and-one-half-mile bicycle race conducted yesterday morning on Mosholu Parkway, the Bronx, by the Unione Sportiva Italiana. Lindau was helped considerably by the handicap allowance of 1.30 and was only slightly in the lead of J. Nichols of the U. S. I.

Honors for fast time went to an unattached rider, F. Laux, who finished in eighth place after having started at scratch behind a field which had handicaps ranging up to 1:45. Almost at his rear tire was the only other scratch rider, E. Bendi, of the U. S. I. Laux's actual time was 9:56.

The first five finished as follows: F. Lindau, Acme Wheelman (1:30), 11:00; J. Nichols, Acme Wheelman (1:30), 11:11; E. Schneider, U. S. I. (1:30), 11:11 1-5; L. Benazzati, U. S. I. (1:00), 10:41 2-5; F. Lauria, Acme Wheelman (1:45), 11:26 3-5.

Levinsky Defeats Kenney In Bout.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 1.—Battling Levinsky was awarded the decision over Wild Bert Kenney in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here today. Both men are light heavyweights of New York. Kenney broke a bone in his right wrist in the eighth round and was unable to continue.

YALE VANQUISHES BROCKVILLE ON ICE

Elis Defeat Canadian Team at Hockey, 7 to 4, in Fast and Hard-Fought Match.

Special to The New York Times.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 1.—Yale University's hockey team won its first game on Canadian soil tonight, defeating Brockville, 7 goals to 4. Two thousand spectators were present at the arena, the capacity of which was nearly taxed to its limit. It was a clean, fast match and was really won in the first period, when Yale took the lead by 3 goals and maintained it throughout the period, which ended 4 to 1.

In the second period each side tallied 3, and in the final neither scored.

At the close the visiting college men showed no bad effects from their three games in as many nights in Canada, and Manager Saunders stated that they would be in the pink of condition to meet St. Michael's in Toronto tomorrow night. Brockville showed lack of condition, having had only a few days' practice, not one man who started the game remaining to the finish.

"Big Bill" Simon, Brockville's star, who had not been on skates in two years, jumped in in the second period and proved a tower of strength. For the visitors, Ingalls and Carson were the stars, while Walker at goal saved of periods—Twenty minutes.

the situation for his teammates on many occasions. The puck was faced off by Mayor Lewis, who extended a welcome to Brockville to the visitors.

The lineup:

YALE (7).		BROCKVILLE (4).
Walker	G.	Munro
Smith	P.	Simon
Wilson	C. P.	Cossitt
Lawrence	L. W.	Higgins
Carson	R. W.	O'Reilly
Ingalls	C.	Birks

Substitutions—W. Simon, Frego, Laing, O'Neil.

Referee—W. R. Bannerman. Umpires—G. C. Powison and W. J. Amer.

PRINCETON FIVE WINS.

Tigers Defeat Geneva at Basket Ball by Score of 28 to 16.

Special to The New York Times.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 1.—The Princeton basket ball team swamped the Geneva five here tonight by a score of 28 to 16, in a game conspicuous for the splendid team work of the visitors and the shooting of Netts and Hynson. The locals scored first and had six points before the Princeton lads got busy, which they did with a vengeance, sweeping their opponents off their feet, so that by the end of the first half the score was 16 to 8 in favor of the Tigers.

The lineup:

PRINCETON (28).		GENEVA (16).
Hynson	R. F.	Stanton
Netts	L. F.	Thomas
Dickson	C.	Barr
Opie	R. G.	Loeffler
Wilson	L. G.	Patterson

Field goals—Stanton, Thomas, Loeffler (2), Hynson (4), Netts (2), Dickson (3), Opie (2). Goals from fouls—Stanton (4), Allison (4), Netts (6).

Substitutions—Princeton: Morgetts for Wittman, King for Hynson, Winfield for Dickson; Geneva: Atwell for Patterson, Allison for Stanton.

Referee—Mr. Bolster of Pittsburgh. Time—Twenty minutes.

YALE BEATS W. AND J. IN BASKET BALL

Elis Score Winning Goal in Extra Period and Make Final Count 35 to 33.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 1.—Captain Vanslyck of Yale ran wild in an extra five-minute period in the game with Washington and Jefferson here tonight, caging three field goals and enabling the Elis to win by 35 to 33.

When the whistle blew for the end of the second period, after one of the most exciting games in the history of the sport here, the score stood at 20-all. At the start of the extra five-minute period Carroll, for W. and J. shot a goal from the floor. Then Vanslyck caged a long shot, making the tall even. Carroll garnered two more points from the foul line, as the Yale captain shot another basket, and, with but a few seconds to play, there was every reason to believe that the extra period would end in another tie. However, as the timer was preparing to blow his whistle, Vanslyck sent the ball into the basket from a difficult angle and won the game for his team.

W. and J. had a chance to stow away the contest long before its finish, but inaccurate shooting from frequent opportunities fiddled away a victory. Carroll kept W. and J. in the running in the first half, however, by his remarkable foul shooting, the half ending in Yale's favor by a score of 16 to 15.

The second half saw both teams playing brilliantly and desperately, with neither more than two points behind. Yale had the advantage by this margin with but a half minute to play, when Henry caged on from the floor and evened the game at the end of the regular period. Then came the extra period and the Elis victory.

The game opened W. and J.'s home season and was played before the largest crowd on record here. In the second half and in the extra period the crowd was in a frenzy of excitement, practically every spectator being on his feet as the lead fluctuated back and forth. Carroll was the outstanding star for the Presidents, although Captain Henry also put up a brilliant game. Captain Vanslyck was a whirlwind for Yale, with Hamill also shining.

The lineup:

YALE (35).		W. AND J. (33).
Vanslyck	R. F.	Carroll
Crane	L. F.	McKelvey
Hamill	C.	Ramsey
Flynn	R. G.	Hess
Cohen	L. G.	Kabel

Goals from field—Yale: Vanslyck (5), Hamill (4), Cohen (2), Crane, Flynn; W. and J.: Carroll (4), Henry (3), McKelvey, McCandless, C. Cohn.

Goals from foul—Vanslyck (13), Carroll (13).

Substitutions—W. and J.: McCandless for McKelvey; C. Conn for McCandless, Elelsen for Ramsey.

Thorpe Outpoints Stevenson.

DETROIT, Jan. 1.—Harvey Thorpe of Kansas City easily outpointed Mel Stevenson of Pittsburgh in ten rounds here tonight. Stevenson was down for a count of five in the fifth round and took considerable punishment throughout the remainder of the bout. The men weighed in at 140 pounds.

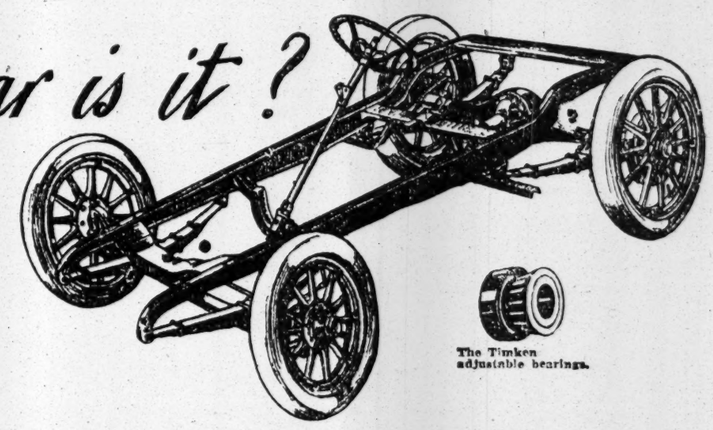
What car is it?



Feature No 3.
What car has wheels and steering gear like this?
—four 12-spoke artillery type wheels on Timken adjustable bearings; steering gear of the worm sector type, irreversible and adjustable.

The Timken adjustable bearings.

THIS is the third of six advertisements appearing in this paper that will assemble an automobile before your eyes. Upon each successive appearance of the advertisement there will be added one of Five Distinctive Features in high class motor car construction—the first and second being the features previously described and now listed below, the third the double feature included in the assembly to-day. To test the knowledge of the public and its appreciation of the vital points of automobile design, a prize will be awarded to the writer of the letter which, in the opinion of the judges, most convincingly and tersely describes the advantages of these Five Distinctive Features.

What the letter must contain

In last Sunday's paper the assembly started with the first of these Five Distinctive Features—a pressed steel frame tapering in a straight line from the greater width at the rear to the narrower front. The letter will start with a presentation of the advantages inherent in this particular design of frame. The advantages of the Second and Third Features in turn will be described in your letter. When all Five Features have appeared your letter may be completed. As there is but one car that contains all Five of these Features, your letter will naturally establish the make and name of the car.

The Prize is the Car Itself

Touring Model

The American public justly prides itself on its knowledge of and ability to classify the various makes of automobiles. Almost every American citizen is a potential car owner. And he wants to understand the important points of high class motor car construction, so that when he does buy he will know exactly what he is getting for his money. The car referred to in this contest contains, among many other items of excellence, ALL FIVE of the quality features enumerated in this series of advertisements. So far as we know, it is the only car containing ALL FIVE of these distinctive features.

Five Distinctive Points of Excellence

In illustrating, one at a time, the Five well-known Distinctive Features, the name of the car will not be mentioned or suggested in any way. The illustrations and descriptive matter in each case will be general, but the features can be recognized, both by those familiar with motor car construction and by prospective car owners who give the matter careful study.

The Features Previously Described

No. 1—A pressed steel frame tapering in a straight line from the greater width at the rear.

No. 2—Semi-elliptic springs both front and rear, of high carbon and chrome vanadium steel with bronze bushed eyes; front axle, a drop-forged I-beam with chrome nickel steel spindles; a floating rear axle with spiral bevel gears.

Conditions of the Great Automobile Prize Contest

1. All persons directly connected with the manufacture or sale of automobiles, or concerned in the production and publication of this series of advertisements, are barred from entry. The Judges reserve the right to withhold the award from anyone shown to be so connected or concerned and in that case to award the prize to the writer of the letter judged next in merit.

2. Only one letter allowed to each person, but several members of a family may send a separate letter for each individual.

3. The writer of the letter which most convincingly and tersely describes the advantages of the Five Distinctive Features, thus establishing the make of the car containing them, will be presented with one of these great American cars (latest Touring Model) absolutely free.

4. Letters must be in the hands of the Judges not later than midnight of the 5th day of January, which is 3 days after the opening of the Automobile Show.

THE JUDGES

C. F. CLARKSON, General Manager Society of Automobile Engineers.

A. G. BATCHELDER, Executive Chairman American Automobile Association.

ALFRED REEVES, General Manager, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

H. C. BROKAW, Technical Director West Side Y. M. C. A.

ALEXANDER JOHNSTON Editor "Motor."

How to Enter the Contest

Jot down the names and prices of all the cars you can think of which have a pressed steel frame, springs and axles of the types described above, four 12-spoke artillery type wheels with Timken bearings, and the worm sector steering gear, irreversible and adjustable. Reason out in your own mind just why each of these features has certain advantages, and make notes from which you can write the first part of your letter. Then you will be ready to consider the 4th point of Excellence, which will be published in this paper Tomorrow.

As you add each item the field will narrow down. When you have all five points before you and finally see a picture of the body of the car—and the car itself, if you visit the Automobile Show—you probably will have little difficulty in establishing what car it is that has ALL THE FIVE POINTS OF EXCELLENCE BUILT INTO IT. After that it is merely a matter of completing and mailing your letter.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF WINNER

The car itself, which can be seen on the streets of New York in ever increasing numbers, will be one of those on exhibition at the National Automobile Show at the Grand Central Palace, from January 3rd to January 10th, where the announcement of the winner will be made on Wednesday evening and the car awarded.

Thursday's papers, January 8, will contain the name of the winner and all the news regarding the contest. Letters should be mailed to

CALLS 1920 CRITICAL YEAR TO THE NATION

American Exchange Bank Sees Advancing Prices as Most Vital National Issue.

PRODUCTION ONLY REMEDY

Says Labor Is Inadequate and Inefficient and Output Must Be Increased.

The problem of advancing prices is one of the most vital issues confronting the country, in the opinion of the American Exchange National Bank. "Before we undertake to help ourselves by helping Europe," says a statement by that institution, "it seems that we must find a solution of the problem." The labor supply is described as inadequate and inefficient, and to this is attributed the fact that we are getting less goods than formerly for twice the money. The only real cure, it is held, lies in increased production.

Discussing inflation, the bank says:

"Unless we solve the problem of advancing prices our efforts to help Europe would be checked before we were fairly started—that is, unless we wish to deprive every man, woman and child who saved a dollar before 1914 of substantially half their savings by permanently adopting the existing level of prices as a basis for future operations. In that case the salaried workers who have been struggling through the war years on practically pre-war salaries would be entitled to the increase needed to restore them to the economic status they occupied before the war.

"Public utility corporations would have to have more compensation for their services, freight rates would have to be increased and innumerable readjustments would have to be made. Even then justice could not be done short of the redemption of every dollar deposited in a savings bank, or every bond or other security issued prior to 1914 at a ratio sufficient to make up the disparity in purchasing power between a dollar in 1914 and in 1919.

"In 1913, the money in circulation in the United States amounted to $3,390,000,000, while bank deposits amounted to $12,678,000,000. Reliable estimates place the circulation in 1919 at $5,709,000,000 and the bank deposits at $25,731,000,000, an increase of 68 per cent. since 1913 in circulation and 103 in deposits.

"Estimates indicate that the physical volume of trade in 1919 will show an increase over than of 1913 of only 8 per cent. With almost double the amount of money and credit, we are producing at the rate of less than 10 per cent. more goods. As this can hardly be regarded as a normal increase, we are forced to conculde that production has actually fallen behind. In that case, and especially as we are exporting at a tremendous rate, it seems that our alleged prosperity is a myth. We are getting less goods for twice the money.

"The cause of current inflation was the war necessity for converting peace labor into war labor. There was not a sufficent surplus of labor to meet the demand, so the men entering war production were forced to bid against the employers in other lines. Once started the ball kept rolling.

"Employers complain that production has fallen off 25 per cent. because the men will not work. In a condition of a world shortage of goods and a plentiful supply of money, the situation naturally makes for higher and still higher prices. The only cure for high prices is increased production.

"Nineteen-twenty bids fair to be one of the most critical years in the history of the Republic. In spite of the vicissitudes through which we have passed since we became a nation there have been but few moments of doubt upon the point of the fulfillment of our destiny. We have no doubt now. Uncertainties have arisen as a result of the agitation of those who do not believe in our institutions, but there are no doubts. The same blood that founded this country will see it through regardless."

ECONOMY AS 1920 ISSUE.

Ex-Governor McCall Says Taxes Will Be Factor in Election.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 1.—Ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall declares that the great issue for 1920 is economical government. "I think that the great thing that must be done in this country," he says, "is to get back to some sort of economical government. The great factor in the present high cost of living is the enormous taxes, and especially the federal taxes. We want to force economy. We want to reduce taxes upon industry. In that way we shall reduce the cost of living and increase the purchasing power of the dollar."

When the former Governor was asked about Republican presidential candidates and the platform he said:

"The Republican party has some good men who have not been mentioned to any considerable extent. There are three mighty good men in that category. I regard Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin as a very able man, progressive, and yet entirely sane. Herbert C. Hoover, former National Food Administrator and now Vice Chairman of the President's industrial conference, would make a tremendous run. He would be certain of election on the Republican ticket, and might be elected on a Democratic ticket. I think that James R. Garfield of Ohio who was Secretary of the Interior in Roosevelt's cabinet from 1907 to 1909, would make a very taking candidate."

WARNS GERMAN EMIGRANTS.

Vorwaerts Doubts Report That Brazil Would Welcome Teuton Farmers.

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—German agricultural workers are advised by the Vorwaerts "to act cautiously," and confer with emigration authorities before deciding to go to Brazil. Reports throughout Germany are to the effect that Brazil is ready to receive 3,000 German agricultural workers and pay their steamer fares on Brazilian ships reaching Amsterdam each month. The newspaper declares this report is erroneous, and that Brazil has offered to advance the fare under the condition that it will be collected from the production and profits of Germans going to that country.

The newspaper says: "Germans, by this plan, would find themselves in debt in Brazil, which they would have to meet along with payments for land taken up there.

Complaint is made that the Brazilian Government does not state what section it plans for German colonists.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

STATE DEBT REDUCED BY $6,144,842 IN 1919

Controller Travis Reports Total Transactions at $79,833,633, Expenditure at $76,341,313.

ALBANY, Jan. 1.—Improvements in the State's finances during the past year are reflected in State Controller Travis's review made public tonight. Compared with the previous one, the Controller shows that the net State debt has been reduced $6,144,842 while the general revenue receipts increased $4,046,544, or $1,492,320 above expenditures, leaving a cash balance of $1,517,320 more than for the previous year.

Treasury transactions totaled $79,833,633, the principal gains coming from corporations to the amount of $5,022,748; inheritance taxes $1,900,182; direct property taxes, $1,854,872, and stock transfers, $1,677,284. Decreases are shown for excise taxes with $5,567,903; investments, $546,533, and miscellaneous, $136,945. The total cost of Government was $76,341,313, an increase of 7.11 per cent. Salaries of State employes in military service and their substitutes, with the 10 per cent. increase allowed certain employes, is largely responsible for a growth of 14.93 per cent. in the cost of personal services. Maintenance and operation were 4.03 per cent. greater, and fixed charges like schools, highways, pension moneys, &c., increased 6.62 per cent.; new construction and permanent betterments, 9.90 per cent.

For the year ending next June, the budget is $95,840,983 with expected revenues of $104,646,467. Tentative estimates for the year beginning July next aggregate $141,272,661. To meet these the estimated revenue aggregates $122,973,037.

38 Years Without Loss to Any Investor

ANOTHER year has been added to the record of S. W. Straus & Co., now thirty-eight years without loss to any investor, and with invarying prompt payment of both principal and interest in cash on the days due.

In this period of domestic unrest and international uncertainty, this record is an invaluable guide to safe investment.

Each successive year adds to the significance of this record, which has withstood two wars and four financial crises. Our record means cautious care in the selection of the securities we offer, thoroughness in safeguarding them, and an unvarying policy of protection of the interests of our clients.

How to Choose Safest 6% January Investments

Our January Investment Guide will be an invaluable aid in choosing the safest securities yielding the highest safe income—6% with 4% Federal income tax paid. It describes a well diversified variety of sound bonds, secured by the highest class of properties in many of the largest cities of the country, from New York to San Francisco.

Write for our January Investment Guide, together with our booklet, "Safety and 6%," which gives the definite reasons for our record. They will be sent you without charge or obligation if you specify

Speculative Possibilities of French Government Bonds

Although the newspapers have been running almost daily articles and editorials regarding foreign exchange rates, many Americans have overlooked the opportunities open to them to invest in foreign government securities at the most attractive prices ever known, because of the exchange rates.

For instance, the French Government 4% Loan of 1917 can be purchased by us at a price which would yield a profit of about 100% on the principal should exchange return to normal, and a profit of over 150% should the bonds sell at par and exchange be normal. Such a situation commands attention.

For further particulars write for our Circular Letter No. A-56.

French Bonds

Confidence in the rapid reconstruction of France is increased by the report that 1,200,000,000 francs have been deposited in French savings banks between January and October, 1919. The effort to save is national, for it is stated that there is one depositor for each two and a half of population.

5000 francs French 4s
Costs $340
5000 francs French 5s
Costs $420

BASRA-BAGDAD LINE SOON TO RUN TRAINS

Construction of Railway from Persian Gulf Going Ahead Rapidly Under British.

COVERS LINE OF OLD MARCH

New Section Is Added to the Famous Berlin-to-Bagdad Route, Bringing It to the Sea.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Train service between Basra (about sixty miles from the head of the Persian Gulf) and Bagdad will be established at an early date, it was announced today. Construction of the railroad is progressing at the rate of fourteen miles a day. (The distance from Basra to Bagdad is 270 miles.)

It is intended to run passenger trains daily which will cover the journey in twenty-eight hours, this time later being reduced to twelve hours. Freight trains will make the trip in forty-eight hours.

The opening of railway service between Basra and Bagdad in Mesopotamia, announced in the foregoing dispatch for the near future, marks another step in the construction of the German-planned "Berlin to Bagdad" railway, which gained prominence during the war by reason of accusations that Germany coveted the system as a means of realizing her dream of world dominion.

The new section of the road from Bagdad, the former projected eastern terminal, to Basra brings the end of the line within sixty miles of the north shore of the Persian Gulf. Basra can be reached by vessels which ply in the Shat-el-Arab River, the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates. Building of this stretch of track recalls the heroic deeds of British and allied soldiers and military engineers who, during the war, forced their way northward from the Persian Gulf and laid the track while under enemy shell fire and suffering the hardships of the Mesopotamian campaign.

Information from Cairo in April, 1919, said traffic had been resumed on the Bagdad railway and that the tunnel through the Taurus Mountains had been completed. This made it possible for trains to go from Haidar Pasha, just south of Scutari and across the Straits of Constantinople, to Nassibin, eighty-five miles northeast of Mosul and approximately 325 miles northeast of Bagdad.

The projected link to connect Nassibin with Bagdad, completing the Berlin-Bagdad line, has not been finished.

BROOKLYN SUBWAY FLOODED

Seventh Avenue Trains Delayed When Fulton Street Hydrant Breaks

The Brooklyn stem of the Seventh Avenue subway was tied up for a half hour yesterday at 1:30 P. M., when a water hydrant burst in front of 296 Fulton Street. Cellars in the vicinity were flooded with two feet of water and there was six inches of water in the subway. The Fire Department and crews from the Sewer and Water Supply Departments checked the flow and pumped out the water.

Traffic in Fulton Street, between the Brooklyn Bridge and Borough Hall, was also tied up for an hour and a half. It was turned off into Washington Street, through which it proceeded to Borough Hall.

COAT CUFFS TO BE DROPPED

Merchant Tailors Plan Radical "Reforms" in Men's Clothing.

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 1.—Radical changes, tending toward the conservative, may be made in men's clothing during the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors, which opens Jan. 22.

From advance information it is generally believed that trouser and coat cuffs will be taboo, and that the organization will bring about other "reforms" in men's dress, saving material and eliminating "flashy" attire for 1920.

SEEK SUGAR KLEPTOMANIAC

Patron of Resort Restaurants Pays for Meals, but Empties Bowls.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 1.—The sugar kleptomaniac is the latest form of thieving at this resort, and the police are expecting to make an arrest within a few hours. Restaurant owners recently had complained to the police that an elderly woman had resorted to a novel method of obtaining sugar.

It has been her custom to enter a restaurant, always carrying a good sized hand bag, order a small meal, and empty the contents of the sugar bowl into the bag she carried, paying for the meal, but not the sugar. The police have a good description of her.

Empire Steel and Iron Co. Raises Wages.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Jan. 1.—The Empire Steel and Iron Company of Oxford, N. J., announced that it had increased the wages of all employes in the mining department 50 cents a day. Machine runners receive $5.87½; helpers and laborers, $4.72½; locomotive engineers, $5.97½; stationary engineers, $4.42½; engineers at fire plants and electricians, $6.72½; carpenters, $4.72½.

Bank of United States to Expand.

The Bank of the United States stockholders will meet Jan. 13 to vote on a proposal of the Directors that the bank's capital stock be increased from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. The increase is made necessary, according to Vice President B. K. Marcus, by the rapid growth of the bank, whose deposits have increased in a single year from $7,000,000 to more than $33,000,000.

TRANSIT HEARINGS WILL START JAN. 20

Five Proposals to Improve Traffic Situation to be Considered.

NEW SUBWAY LOOP URGED

Commissioner Delaney Explains Moving Platform Suggested to Replace Shuttle.

Five suggestions for changes in subway routes designed to readjust, redistribute and divert rapid transit passenger traffic in the central section of Manhattan will be discussed in public hearings to begin before Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney on Jan. 20 at 2:30 P. M. The suggestions, referred to Mr. Delaney in the form of petitions, are:

The construction of the original route of the so-called Steinway tunnel under Forty-second Street to Times Square and Eighth Avenue.

The substitution of a route to divert the Steinway tunnel extension under Bryant Park to Forty-first Street at Sixth Avenue and under Forty-first Street to a point west of Seventh Avenue.

The construction of a moving platform under Forty-second Street from Third or Lexington Avenue to Times Square and Eighth Avenue as a substitute for the shuttle operating between Times Square and the Grand Central Station.

A subway loop providing for a one-way or two-way service by special trains on one or both local tracks of the Fourth or Seventh Avenue subway between Forty-second Street and Thirtieth or Thirty-first Street, one of two of the existing tracks under Forty-second Street and one or two tracks to be constructed under Thirtieth or Thirty-first Street from Fourth to Seventh Avenue.

New Express Route.

A through express service from the Interborough east side subway line at Fourteenth Street to the Interborough west side subway line at Seventy-second Street by way of a new tunnel under the present subway tracks, the service to be without stops at Times Square and the Grand Central Station.

Concerning the proposal for the construction of a moving platform between Times Square and the Grand Central Station, Mr. Delaney said:

"There would be three moving platforms in each trainway, side by side, having respective speeds of three, six, and nine miles per hour, and the seating capacity would be 31,680 passengers per hour. All moving platforms would be made up of sections having a length of twelve feet. Passengers would enter upon the moving platform from a stationary platform having a width of 2 feet 8 inches and built the entire length of the proposed line. The clear width of the three-mile moving platform and the six-mile moving platform would be 2 feet 6 inches each, and the width of the nine-mile platform would be 4 feet 3 inches."

Of the non-stop service between Fourteenth Street and Seventy-second Street Mr. Delaney says:

"The proposed route would be a two-track express line at a level lower than all existing subway structures. As outlined the proposed route is to be constructed under the present east side subway from Fourteenth Street to Forty-second Street, to turn at Forty-second Street to the west side and proceed north to Seventy-second Street on the west side. By following the existing subway routes it is contended that no new right of way would have to be acquired. There would be no stop either at the Grand Central Station or at Times Square. Free transfers to and from existing stations at Fourteenth and Seventy-second Streets are suggested."

New Express Stop.

Mr. Delaney refers to the suggestion for the relief of the congestion at the Grand Central terminal through changing the Thirty-third Street local station on the east side subway to an express station, as follows:

"It is pointed out that by the creation of a new stop for express trains in the central mercantile zone there would be a lessening of congestion at the Grand Central Terminal Station and a decentralization of traffic within that congested territory. It is maintained that there would be no loss of running time in the express service by the establishment of an express station at Thirty-third Street and Fourth Avenue. Passengers who now board local trains at Eighteenth, Twenty-third, Twenty-eighth, and Thirty-third Street stations and make a change to express service at Forty-second Street would, under the proposed arrangement, be able to make the change to express at Thirty-third Street and would relieve to a great extent the Forty-second Street express station for those desiring to use the Grand Central terminal facilities or whose business was in the immediate vicinity of Forty-second Street.

"It is asserted that this relief of the Grand Central Station express service would be so great as to lessen the time of stop at the Forty-second Street Station more than the equivalent of the time consumed by making an express stop at Thirty-third Street."

$5,500,000,000 WAR COST.

Internal Revenue Bureau Collected That Sum Last Year, Says Roper.

The Internal Revenue Bureau collected $5,500,000,000 for war expenditures last year, according to a communication received yesterday by Collector William B. Edwards from Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue. In the opinion of Commissioner Roper, this feat of America constitutes a record in world finance.

"That it was done," he added, "without destroying productive endeavor and business enterprise an without bringing chaos to the nation, is a great compliment to the taxpayers, an to the Internal Revenue Service. Many of us may differ as to the methods of financing the war or as ta the character, extent or duration of certain forms of taxes, but it is well to remember that as during the war so now we have more things in common than we have differences, and that our differences may be composed largely through the things that we have in common."

DU PONTS TO FILE DENIAL.

Will Answer to Trade Commission Charges of Unfair Competition.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 1.—The du Pont Company will file tomorrow with the Federal Trade Commission a denial of charges made recently against it, alleging unfair methods of competition and the use of "tying" contracts. The company will deny that it adopted the practice of giving gratuities to miners as an inducement to influence them to refuse to use competitors' powder. The company will also deny the allegation that it fomented strikes in mines where its powder was not used.

The reply will assert that contracts made by the company in the Springfield coal field were not made on condition that producers should not use powder manufactured by competitors, but were simply contracts to supply those producers with powder required for their needs.

Rand Mines, Ltd., one of the foremost gold mining companies in the world, operates in the Witwatersrand district of South Africa. The district at the present time supplies almost half of the world's total gold production as compared with about 18% supplied by the entire United States. Rand Mines, Ltd., is chiefly a holding company, but also owns extensive mining claims and other properties in South Africa. The shareholdings are distributed over some thirty companies, among them the most important mines operating on the Rand.

Dividends have been paid on the shares of Rand Mines, Ltd., without interruption since 1903. During the ten years ended December 31, 1918, distributions to shareholders aggregated £10,069,000, or an average per annum of 197% on the shares outstanding. The average distribution calculated at an exchange rate of $3.75 to the pound sterling is equivalent to a payment of $4.62 upon each American share (that is two and one-half English shares). Calculated at the mint ratio of $4.866 to the pound sterling it is equivalent to a return of $5.99 upon each American share.

During the five years preceding the war the price of Rand Mines, Ltd., shares in the London market ranged from £5 3/8 to £10 11-16. During the war the shares sold as low as £2¼, and while they have recovered since then they are still selling at about the lowest level reached during the 13 years prior to the war, i. e., ever since the shares have existed in their present par value.

Attention is directed to a letter addressed to us by Sir Lionel Phillips, Bart., directing head of the Administration of Rand Mines, Ltd., as well as of the closely affiliated Central Mining and Investment Corporation, Ltd. (successors to Wernher, Beit & Co.) giving a detailed description of the company and its prospects as well as a resumé of its history. Copies of this letter may be had on application.

The company informs us that it will in due course apply for the listing of the "American Shares" on the New York Stock Exchange.

Arrangements have been made contemplating the election of a director nominated by us.

Legal proceedings in connection with this issue will be subject to the approval of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell and Messrs. Reynolds, Richards & McCutcheon.

The Treasury Department of the United States has been informed of the purchase and proposed sale of these shares and has offered no objection thereto.

Price $40.00 per American share when, as and if issued, to carry all dividends declared after January 1, 1920

Five Points for Investors

The Financial Post, of Toronto, gives the essential features of sound pulp and paper securities:

1.—An ample supply of pulpwood which is capable of being delivered to the mill at a reasonable cost, which supply should insure operations of the mill for a period of from twenty to fifty years.
2.—Sufficient water power to supply continuously and economically the hydro-electric force for operating such a mill.
3.—Proper geographic location of the plant so that on the one hand raw materials such as pulpwood, coal and sulphur may be delivered at the mill cheaply, and on the other hand so that freight rates to consuming centers shall be favorable for the economic handling of outward traffic.
4.—Proper and experienced management.
5.—Sufficient working capital.

Our Pulp and Paper securities conform to the above requirements and bring attractive interest returns.

RAIL DEVELOPMENT AT THE LOWEST EBB

Mileage Abandoned Since 1916 Exceeds New Lines, Says Railway Age.

LOSS IN CONSTRUCTION

Smallest Number of Freight Cars Ordered Since 1901—Nearly All for Private Lines.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Statistics compiled by the Railway Age show that the year 1920 begins with the development of the railways of the United States nearer a complete standstill than at any time since the first rail was laid in America.

"In the year 1919," says the publication, "the total mileage of new lines built in the United States was 686 miles. This is the smallest figure which has ever been recorded by this paper. Furthermore, it does not represent a net increase in mileage. During the year 689 miles of main line railway were abandoned for operation. Prior to the year 1915 the mileage of the country was steadily increasing, although the rate at which it was increasing had been diminishing for some years and especially since 1910. The available statistics indicate that since 1916 the mileage of line abandoned has been substantially greater than the new mileage built.

"During the three years from 1916 to 1919 inclusive our statistics indicate that operation was abandoned on 3,319 miles of line, while in the same period only 2,386 miles of extensions, branch and other new lines were completed. Thus it appears that during the last three years there has been an actual decrease of 933 miles in the mileage of railways operated in the United States.

"The statistics regarding the number of locomotives and cars ordered make some striking new low records. Until this year the smallest number of freight cars ordered in any year for the railways of the United States since 1901 was 62,669, this being the number ordered in 1908. In the year 1919 the number of freight cars ordered was only 21,094 and nearly all these orders were placed by private car lines as is shown by the fact that 14,895 of the total orders were for tank cars.

"The number of freight cars built for use on the United States railways was much more satisfactory, being 100,416. The result, of course, of the number of freight cars built so far exceeding the number ordered was that at the end of the year the car builders had almost no orders for American railways left on their books.

"The number of locomotives ordered was 214 and most of these were ordered by industrial roads."

QUOTES OPERATORS' OFFER.

Green Asserts They Voted for Commission Similar to President's.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 1.—The bituminous coal operators were charged with inconsistency in their attitude toward President Wilson's coal commission, in a statement issued today by William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

Calling attention to the operators' statements that they had not been consulted about the agreement providing for the commission, Mr. Green quoted from a stenographic report of the last joint conference of the operators and miners, at which the operators voted for a resolution favoring the appointment of a tribunal to settle the differences with the miners.

The resolution, Mr. Green said, was offered by Phil H. Penna of Terre Haute, Ind., spokesman for the operators throughout the joint conferences, and proposed a body having an equal number of representatives of miners, operators and the public. All the operators voted for the proposal but the miners defeated it.

PHILADELPHIA PORT TIED UP

Several Hundred Tugboat Workers Walk Out.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—Shipping at this port was at a standstill today. Following a threat to strike last Friday unless their employers granted demands for more pay and shorter hours, several hundred men, including masters, mates, pilots, cooks, stewards, and deck hands employed on harbor and river tugs determined not to wait longer and walked out this morning.

The men are employed on tugboats used in towing merchant vessels to their docks. As a result of the walkout vessels arriving at the Delaware Breakwater today were forced to anchor, being unable to proceed up the Delaware River.

OPPOSES TRANSPORT BILL.

Steamship Owners Say Army Vessels Should Not Enter Trade.

The American Steamship Owners' Association, of which H. H. Raymond is President, has sent a letter to Secretary Baker remonstrating against a bill now before Congress authorizing the War Department to carry cargoes and civilian passengers on army transports across Atlantic. In protesting against further consideration of this measure the association takes the ground that conditions have greatly changed since the bill first passed the Senate, that there are now ample facilities for transportation of both passengers and cargoes on transatlantic routes, and that the War Department should not compete in the shipping business with the Shipping Board and privately owned American shipping.

"A large fleet of former German or American requisitioned liners has been released from the Government service and is re-entering trade," says the letter to Secretary Baker. "Tonnage has increased more rapidly than commerce. Some ships are going eastward without full freights. Many are returning empty.

"'Emergency conditions,' described in your letters of four or five months ago have passed, and there is no longer any need of or justification for the legislation which you then recommended. The bill puts the War Department into competition for general translantic cargo business with American vessels of the United State Shipping Board and of American shipowning companies. It is especially the new and untried lines which the War Department ships now threaten with serious discouragement if not destruction."

The letter points out that British, French and Italian passengers preferring to sail in ships of their own countries, the heaviest damage resulting from the passage of the measure now before Congress would be on the American merchant marine.

Increase for Electrical Workers.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 1.—Fear of a strike among electrical workers here, threatened for some time, was obviated today by the acceptance by most of the contractors of demands of the men. They will receive hereafter $1 an hour, an advance from 82 cents.

THE CALIBRE OF OUR STAFF

Fourth of a series of Messages on the preparedness of Albert Frank & Co. to meet the new advertising demands of Finance and Business.

TODAY the creator of successful advertising must indeed possess a rare mental makeup. While he must, of course, be thoroughly familiar with the technicalities of his profession, his knowledge of Finance and Industry should be broadest-gauged. Yet he is still wanting in wealth of resource if he lacks a comprehensive acquaintance with Life and Human Psychology.

And so, in selecting men worthy of places on our Service Staff we have necessarily been exacting. Not only do we require that they be entirely qualified and possess highest ideals, but we particularly demand that they work in closest cooperation with each client they serve. Capable business men, executives yet specialists, they constitute a worthy creative force for successful advertising.

There is no obligation in arranging a conference with any of these men—in your office or in ours.

NEWSPRINT SALES TOUCH RECORD POINT

Prices Also Reached a Maximum in the Last Quarter of 1919.

COST DOUBLED IN 4 YEARS

727 Publishers Used 161,602 Tons in November, 1919, Against 123,874 Tons in November, 1918.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Consumption of newsprint paper in the United States in the last three months reached a record-breaking point, along with prices, the Federal Trade Commission reported in a summary today. The average cost of newsprint paper at mills at the beginning of December was $3.90 a hundred, the commission reported, as against $3.75 a year ago. In 1916 the price was $1.88, the lowest in several years.

High prices failed to cut down consumption, however, and the commission estimated that in 1919 14 per cent. more newsprint was used than in 1918. During the fourth quarter of 1919 particularly newsprint consumption was running up, and the commission said that the increase then over the similar period in 1918 would be between 25 and 30 per cent.

December figures have not yet been tabulated. In November, 1918, the 727 publishers reporting to the commission used 161,602 tons of newsprint, compared with 123,874 tons in November, 1918.

SILENT ON POLICE SCANDAL.

Mrs. O'Grady Mute on Report That City Employe Balked Arrest.

Mrs. Ellen A. O'Grady, Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner, refused yesterday to comment on a published report that two policewomen of her staff had been checkmated by an employe of the Police Department when they attempted to make an arrest in connection with a serious charge made by a young girl against an unnamed wealthy man.

According to the report, which was said to have its origin at Police Headquarters, Commissioner O'Grady assigned two members of her Vice Squad to investigate a complaint made by the mother of the girl. It was said the girl alleged that two months ago she had been lured to a Riverside Drive apartment, and that while there she had been attacked.

It also was said the case was brought to the attention of Mrs. O'Grady through outside sources, and that she finally induced the girl's family to make a formal complaint, despite their dread of publicity.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo admitted yesterday that he issued a warrant last Friday for the arrest of a man described as being in business in the silk district. Up to last night the warrant had not been served.

According to the report, which Mrs. O'Grady declined to discuss, the women members of the Vice Squad went with the warrant to the accused man's office. In an outer room they encountered the employe of the department and a former uniformed member. The report had it that women officers were prevailed upon to permit the men to go into the office and find the man. After a time the men returned and said the man wanted wasn't in. Clerks said he had "left for the day."

The women, according to the report, suspected they had been hoodwinked and laid the case before Mrs. O'Grady. She immediately went to Mayor Hylan and told him what had happened, with the result that the Mayor directed the employe's connection with the Police Department be ended.

TO EASE HOUSING PROBLEM

Copenhagen Is Building Barracks to Accommodate 200 Families Each.

While the demand for materials and labor far war purposes produced a great shortage of living quarters in America and the allied countries, it was also responsible for a considerable shortage of houses in some of the neutral countries. The housing problem is so serious in some of them that Government measures are being taken to provide relief.

In Denmark there is a very serious shortage of housing facilities. To relieve this situation the City of Copenhagen is planning to spend about 2,300,000 crowns in building and equipping living quarters for workingmen. These will be built in the form of wooden barracks which will accommodate about two hundred families. The barracks will be erected in one of the suburbs of Copenhagen, where a group of similar houses are now under construction. They will be two stories high and constructed of wood. The sides will be covered with roofing paper and the roofs will be of tile.

TWO SCHOONERS WRECKED.

Both Go Ashore on Maine Coast—Their Crews Safe.

CAPE PORPOISE, Me., Jan. 1.—A rough sea tonight was pounding to pieces the three-masted schooners Charles H. Trickey and Mary E. Olys, which struck on the rocks near Goat Island early today when attempting to navigate the narrow harbor entrance in thick weather.

Holes were punctured in both vessels and officers of the cutter Ossippee, which responded to calls for assistance, found there was nothing they could do to aid the craft. Both will be total losses, it was said, although it is believed the cargoes can be salvaged. The crews were in no danger.

The Trickery was bound from Wiscasset for Lunn, Mass., with box boards. The Olys was bound from Stonington for Ossining, N. Y., with stone.

INDIA CELEBRATES PEACE.

Native States Join in Three-Day Ceremonies—Moslems Hold Aloof.

DELHI, India, Dec. 15.—Peace celebrations on an elaborate scale began on Dec. 13 and continued for three days throughout India.

The native States generally joined in the functions, but the Moslems and Hindus in several centres held aloof from them on account of the situation in Turkey.

New $5,000,000 Bank in Formosa.

A new Sino-Japanese banking institution, to be known as the China and Southern Bank, has been established in Formosa to finance enterprises in the Dutch East Indies and the South Pacific, and to conduct an ordinary banking business in Formosa. The bank is capitalized at $5,000,000, and the head office is at Taihoku. Branches have been opened in Canton, Samarang and Singapore. The bank aims to provide a financial medium for the development of commercial enterprises between China and the South Seas on one hand, and Formosa and Japan on the other.

GREET CARPATHO-RUSSIANS

Peace Conference Delegates Tell of Opposition to Polish Mandate.

The Carpatho-Russian delegates to the Peace Conference were honored at a mass meeting of the League for the Liberation of Carpatho-Russia in Carnegie Hall last evening. The speakers described the distress and want now facing their countrymen in Little Russia, and protested against the reported action of the Peace Conference in giving Poland a twenty-five-year mandate over that territory.

The head of the delegation, Dr. D. A. Markoff, told of his treatment at the hands of the Austrians at the beginning of the war. He was arrested five days before Austria's declaration of hostilities, he said, and was kept in prison throughout the war, on one occasion escaping execution only through the intervention of King Alfonso XIII. of Spain. Referring to the proposed Polish mandate, he said:

"Our territory is to be given over to Poland for a period of twenty-five years. It will be hard for us to live there, for Poland will act the same as Austria-Hungary did before the war."

Paul M. Dzwonshyk, who was sent to the Conference from this country, said he must admit that the work of the delegation was not crowned with success. Of the Polish mandate he said:

"This decision of the Peace Conference is very unjust. It is giving over 4,500,000 Russians to one of their historic enemies, and has created another Alsace-Lorraine in Europe."

Another delegate, Professor D. W. Vergun of the University of Irkutsk, announced a vote taken at the Third General Carpatho-Russian Congress, held in this city on Dec. 29, condemning the proposed Polish mandate, and demanding a plebescite similar to that granted to the Germans of Prussian and ex-Austrian Silesia.

Between the speeches subscriptions to aid the League for Carpatho-Russian Liberation in alleviating distress in that country were taken. Conditions there were described by Elias Tziorogh, a member of the Carpatho-Russian National Council. Other speakers were the Rev. Joseph Stephanko of the Russian Orthodox Church in Passaic; Professor M. L. Mupin, Serbian Consul General in this city, and the Rev. John Telep of Garfield, N. J.

NATIONAL FORESTS GAIN.

Congress Adds 1,116,000 Acres in Idaho to the Total Area.

Congress has set apart 1,116,000 acres of land in Idaho known as the Thunder Mountain region as national forest lands. This great tract, difficult of access and having not over 1 per cent. of its area suitable for agriculture, has for years been the scene of destructive fires and devastation due to overgrazing. It is now to be added to the Payette National Forest, which adjoins it on the south and west, and the Idaho National Forest, which adjoins it on the north and west.

The growth of public sentiment in favor of forest preservation in the United State has rapidly increased in the last few years, and interest in forestry is keener now then ever before. The present widespread interest in forestry was started by an offer made by the United States Department of Agriculture in 1898, to give advice and assistance in the management of forest lands.

The act of March 3, 1891, authorized the President to set aside public lands "wholy or in part covered with timber or undergrowth" as national forest reserves, now called National Forests. The first of these, the Yellowstone National Forest, with an area of 1,239,010 acres, was proclaimed by President Harrison, March 30, 1891, and fourteen additional national forests were created by him, the total area being 13,457,080 acres. Fourteen national forests were set aside by President Cleveland, with a total area of 25,891,200 acres. Twelve national forests, with a total area of 70,0 089 acres, were proclaimed by President McKinley, and timbered areas containing 148,340,924 acres were reserved by President Roosevelt.

A careful readjustment of the boundaries led President Taft to eliminate 11,680,578 acres and to add 4 333 847 acres. Up to July 1, 1916, President Wilson had added 445,363 acres and eliminated 6,302,000 acres.

Various States, as well as the general Government, have enacted laws recently for the preservation of forests providing for tree planting and better fire protection, but much more needs to be done in this direction. In 1909 about four-fifths of the total wooded area was in private holdings, and the timber was in more or less danger of immediate destruction. The national forests, embracing practically the rest of the woodlands, would supply the lumber requirements of the country for about ten years only.

Forestry received a great impetus from the action of President Roosevelt in calling a conference of the Governors of all the States in May, 1908, to discuss the conservation of the natural resources of the country. This conference resulted in the formation of the National Conservation Commission.

A NEW SUGAR SUBSTITUTE.

Malt Sugar Syrup Is Indorsed by the Bureau of Chemistry.

Malt sugar syrup is a brand-new sweet which has arrived on a commercial scale at the psychological moment to relieve the sugar shortage, say the specialists of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, who have investigated various substitutes for sugar. In addition to being a sweet, malt sugar syrup has a delicious flavor, somewhat resembling that of honey, which adds much to its palatability and value as a sugar substitute.

While malt sugar has long been known to chemists, its production on a commercial scale is only beginning. Two factors have stimulated its production recently. The shortage of sugar has developed a market for it and the recent prohibition law has made available both the raw material and the machinery needed for its manufacture. Malt sugar syrup is made from the same grains as beer, and may be made from corn or potatoes or any plant containing starch. Barley, which was used until recently in the manufacture of beer, can be used now to produce malt sugar syrup.

Breweries with very little change can be used and are now being used for its manufacture. Up to a certain point the process for making malt sugar syrup is the same as the process for making beer. Evaporating pans are the principal additional equipment required by breweries.

The product looks very much like maple syrup. It can be used for everything that cane sugar is used for. While its use on the table may not be quite as convenient as sugar, it is a most excellent substitute for table use when sugar is not to be had, as it not only provides sweetness but is equal to sugar in food value. For cooking and baking and for making candy it is not only equal to sugar in convenience and food value, but is superior for some uses because it will not so readily crystallize.

EXPECT KOREA REVOLT SOON

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 23 (Correspondence of Associated Press).—A widespread revolt against the Japanese is imminent in Korea, according to the Tokio correspondent of the Honolulu Commercial Advertiser. The Japanese chief of police of Seoul has declared he has documentary evidence to prove Christian missionaries are supporting preparations for the uprising, which has the warm approval of the Korean Prince, Yi Kang, now held virtually a prisoner by the Japanese, the dispatch adds.

All news regarding Korean unrest is strictly censored, the Tokio advices assert but enough is said to be leaking through to make it plain that the Koreans are preparing for a great uprising soon.

Prince Yi Kang, fifth son of the late Emperor, reported in recent Tokio dispatches to have been "kidnapped" by Korean revolutionists and later "rescued" by Japanese police, was a voluntary "victim of a pretended kidnapping plot," according to the Commercial Advertiser's correspondent. By this means, it is said, he sought to elude the Japanese guards who had him under surveillance.

SAY UNIONS MAY SEND CLOTHING UP

Manufacturers Warn Public of Big Increase in Prices if Strikers Succeed.

SEEK TO AVERT RISE

Issue Statement of Views of 350 Employers on Seriousness of Situation.

Emphasizing that forty-two strikes have been started in the garment industry in violation of a three-year contract between the employes and the employers, manufacturers last night asserted that if union tactics succeed there will be a big increase in the price of clothing.

The views of about 350 members of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association were presented in a statement issued by I. M. Gadsky and William Klein, executive committeeman and counsel, respectively. It follows:

"Notwithstanding the desire of the cloak and suit industry to have peace, the union with which it has been dealing has started a series of strikes which threaten the integrity of the contract made just six months ago, and which threaten to assume grave consequences in the possibility of forcing idleness upon 45,000 workers in the industry.

"In June, 1919, a new form of contract, was agreed upon between the union and the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, which was epoch-making. By virtue of this agreement the system of manufacture of cloaks and suits was changed from a piece work or haggling system to a week's work or definite system. Workers' hours were forty-nine a week; by this agreement they were reduced to forty-four hours a week. A minimum wage was set which granted fair living to the slowest worker and under the agreement efficiency was rewarded by greater wages. So at the present time operators in this industry frequently earn upwards of $75 a week, with finishers getting $50 a week and women workers from $35 to $45 a week.

More Increases Demanded.

"At the time the contract was made, bearing in mind all conditions that would happen in the future, a substantial increase was made to our workers based upon the then earnings, and it was hoped that we would have peace for three years. During the last season, or hardly was the ink dry on the contract, when, notwithstanding the very substantial increases granted, the unions kept demanding increase upon increase, which the individual manufacturers were compelled to grant under the pain of strike, as a result of which the even then high price of cloaks and suits was raised to a higher level to the consumer, because the cost of labor had made the cost of garments almost prohibitive.

"Several weeks ago the union again came with demands for a 30 per cent. increase. The demands were considered and refused, with potent reasons stated. Thereupon the union began calling individual shop strikes. By this is meant the entire shop is called out, not permitted to work, and the entire shop is demoralized. No work can be done. The condition became alarming, and the association thereupon sent a notification to the union demanding that the men in all shops be sent back to work. In such notice attention was directed to the fact that there were then twenty-eight shops in which the men were out on strike. The union's reply was a clear evasion.

Would Increase Prices.

"To increase the wages of our workers at the present time will add a very substantial increase in the cost of cloaks and suits to the consumer, and this is what we are extremely anxious to avoid. We have therefore determined to place the entire matter before the public, so that it may understand, if there should be a strike in the industry, and if there should be an increase in the cost of the garment to the consumer, it will be because the association feels that it is far better to oppose the unfair demand than saddle the public with a far greater cost in the purchase price of cloaks and suits."

An effort to obtain the union's side of the matter disclosed that Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was in Europe and that Secretary-Treasurer Abraham Barass was in Cleveland.

SING SING GREETS LAWES.

Inmates Cheer New Warden When He Takes Charge of Prison.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Jan. 1.—While the inmate band played "Auld Lang Syne" and 1,200 prisoners cheered wildly, Major Lewis E. Lawes, new reform warden of Sing Sing, walked into the mess hall while the convicts were at dinner today and formally took charge of the prison.

According to old-time keepers, no warden ever received such a demonstration of welcome as the former army officer and progressive prison man.

Major Lawes addressed the prisoners in short, snappy sentences. He brought laughter and cheering when he said to the prisoners: "If you want to get out of this place quickly you ought to come in as warden."

The new warden arrived from New York City Reformatory at New Hampton, which he had managed on the honor plan for three years. Superintendent of Prisons Charles F. Rattigan introduced Major Lawes to the prison staff of officials and then led him into the mess hall.

The Mutual Welfare League presented to the new warden a set of resolutions pledging the loyalty and co-operation of the prisoners.

SCORE TAKEN IN RAID.

Police Find Loot from Hotels in a Rooming House.

Three Mexicans were arrested last night on charges of having assaulted and robbed Private Manuel Barrose, stationed at Pier 3, Hoboken, early yesterday morning. Sixteen others and a woman who were also arrested with the three men in a rooming house at 587 Eighth Avenue, by detectives of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, were also locked up on charges of grand larceny.

Detectives Frank Hogan, John Cooney, and Fred Mondo raided the house following a report made by the soldier that he had been robbed of $30 by three men. The Mexicans gave their names as Jacquin Meyer of 587 Eighth Avenue Simon Reyes of 264 West Forty-first Street, and Joseph Villasfnor of 38 South Street. An additional charge of violating the Sullivan law was made against Meyer.

During the raid the detectives found sixteen men, mostly Portuguese and Spaniards, and a woman, who gave her name as Jennie Namage, 37 years old, and living at that address. Search of the premises disclosed, the police report, silverware and linens, valued at several thousand dollars, bearing the names of some of the leading hotels of the city.

Jitney Kills a Child.

Six-year-old Helen Bausch, of 788 Jersey Avenue, Jersey City, was killed by a jitney last night while crossing Montgomery Street at Washington Street in Jersey City. The child ran ahead of her parents and got in the way of the automobile. Marco Olivo, of 47 Stevens Avenue, Jersey City, was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

DOCTORS UPSET TALE OF GIRLS "STRUNG UP"

Punishment at Bedford, as Described, Impossible, They Tell Investigator.

BEDFORD, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Four surgeons, including Lieutenant Amos O. Squire, U. S. N., retired, head physician of Sing Sing Prison, have advised John S. Kennedy, who is investigating charges of cruelty to inmates of the State Reformatory for Women, that it would be physically impossible for the prisoners to be "strung up" the way they testified. The opinions of the surgeons, it was learned today, were given to Mr. Kennedy in writing.

Mr. Kennedy wrote to the surgeons, without letting any of them know he had communicated with the others. He asked them to say whether they believed girls, with hands handcuffed behind their backs, could endure being suspended, with feet completely off the floor.

Minnie Leeder, Stella Kramer, Dorothy Jett, and Lillian Rosenstein had testified they had been hung up by the hands while so bound. They said Miss Julia Minogue, disciplinary officer, supervised the "stringing up" and that once six girls were "swung off" together and left so suspended for several minutes.

All the doctors replied that it would be impossible to hang prisoners in that fashion without inflicting serious injuries. They said that the prisoners could not endure the torture.

Dr. Squire made an experiment in Sing Sing. He had Principal Keeper Martin Deeley handcuff a guard's hands behind his back and then lift him by the hands until his feet were off the floor. The guard shrieked with pain and turned over with his feet in the air.

Miss Helen Cobb, the reformatory Superintendent, and Miss Minogue have contended steadily that the girls have testified falsely about the "stringing up."

LIFE INSURANCE IN CANADA.

American Companies Hold $619,261,713, or More Than Third of It.

United States insurance companies hold a little over one-third of the ordinary life insurance in force in Canada. The proportion is steadily rising in favor of American companies.

The total net amount of insurance in force in the Dominion at the end of 1918 was $1,785,061,273. Of this $1,105,503,447 was held by Canadian companies, $60,296,113 by British and $619,261,713 by "foreign" companies, the latter class consisting entirely of American companies. During 1918 the total amount of policies taken was $313,251,556, or $131,131,126 more than in 1917. Of this amount American companies got $127,853,228; Canadian, $179,429,315, and British $5,969,013. The amount of insurance taken during the year was $131,131,126 greater than in 1917, of which increase the American companies got no less than $23,545,602.

1905	188,578,127
1910	242,629,174
1911	272,530,942
1912	309,114,827
1913	359,775,530
1914	386,969,397
1915	423,550,850
1916	467,499,266
1917	529,725,775
1918	619,261,713

In 1899 American companies held 28 per cent. of the insurance then in force in the Dominion. Ten years later they held 27 per cent. In 1915 they had 32 per cent., and in 1918 34 per cent.

As Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, recently pointed out, Canada is under-insured, the average amount of life insurance per capita being about $225, which is much less than per capita insurance in the United States. As an evidence of this, it may be pointed out that only in very recent years have Canadians really awakened to the advisability of carrying what is now considered to be adequate insurance. During the 90's the average amount of new business written a year did not exceed $6,000,000. In 1905, $105,907,336, in the form of new policies, was taken out, an increase of $7,600,000 over the preceding year; but in 1906 there was a falling off of nearly $11,000,000 in the amount of new business done.

Not until 1909 was the $100,000,000 mark for the year passed. In that year the figures jumped from $99,896,206 to $131,739,078. This set a new and much larger amount for the yearly increase. During the period 1909-1914 the rate of increase for new business was $14,000,000 a year. In 1914, the first year of the war, there was a drop of $14,000,000 in the amount of new business written. Gradually the volume increased, but it was not until 1916 that the figures of 1913 were reached. In 1917, however, there was a sharp advance, the new business showing an increase of $50,000,000 over 1916.

During the 1899-1909 period American companies did not hold their own in the Canadian field, having 1 per cent. less insurance in effect during the latter year than they had ten years before. During the last decade they have paid much more attention to Canada, having since 1912, doubled the amount of their insurance in force.

As the business of American companies has increased in Canada, so have the assets. In 1890 the assets were $23,562,824; in 1908 they were $46,762,534, and in 1918, $98,697,188.

Canada has been looked on as a very favorable field for the United States companies. One reason is the large number of Americans in the Dominion who, having an acquaintance with American companies, are naturally inclined in that direction. Another reason for the rapid advance is that some of them specialize in industrial insurance with premiums payable on a weekly basis. None of the important Canadian companies deal in this class of insurance.

American insurance companies operating in Canada are at present investing most of their earnings in Canada. With exchange so strongly against Canada, it is not profitable to send money to the United States for investment.

NEW AIR LINE TO GERMANY.

Two Danish Companies Plan Service from Copenhagen.

Another air route to the Continent will be in operation very soon, for plans are now under way to provide transit by airplane for passengers and mails from Denmark to Germany. According to a report from Trade Commissioner Thormod O. Klath, at Copenhagen, two Danish airplane companies have made applications to the Danish Government for permission to establish a regular passenger and mail service by airplane between Copenhagen and Warnemunde, Germany.

It is understood that a German company plans to establish an air route between Warnemunde and Berlin as soon as the Danish air service between Copenhagen and Warnemunde is in operation, with a view to co-operating with the Danish companies and thus afford means of direct airplane transit service between Copenhagen and Berlin.

The shortest and most used passenger route from Copenhagen to Berlin is by way of train to Gjedser, Denmark, thence by ferry to Warnemunde, and then by rail to Berlin. At present practically all of the Scandinavian and Baltic passenger and mail traffic is carried over this line, and for the last few months all trains have been crowded and the service has been very unsatisfactory. It is expected that the new airplane service will prove very popular with business men going to and from Germany, because of the great congestion in railway travel to points in Germany and the very unsatisfactory facilities provided by the German railroads.

Do You Realize—

A dollar is worth more in buying real estate to-day than in any other commodity.

Realty prices have not advanced in proportion to the declining value of the dollar.

Such a condition is without precedent—it won't continue!

The time to invest is NOW!

Buying a private house in the Fifth, Park and Madison Avenue sections is not only more economical than renting, but you obtain a permanent home of comfort and dignity—and are making an investment that is certain to increase in value.

There are completed and fully tenanted business and apartment buildings for sale that yield exceptionally high returns on the investments.

MAKE YOURSELF
JUNIOR ACCOUNTANT IN 5 MONTHS;
SENIOR ACCOUNTANT IN 11 MONTHS, THROUGH THE
LA SALLE PROBLEM METHOD.

If you are ambitious to become a successful accountant our training should enable you to make yourself a junior accountant, earning from $35 to $50 a week, within five months, and WITHIN TWELVE MONTHS should qualify you for a position of Senior Accountant Auditor, or Income Tax Expert at a salary of at least $75 a week, with possibilities of double that or more.

It is only a question of industry—a fixed purpose to devote a few spare hours a week to intensive training under the direction of William B. Castenholtz, the best known accountancy teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants.

We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the BIG start toward success, and have their records to point to with just pride; we can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth while to investigate.

SKIDDING CAR HURLS ACTRESS TO DEATH

Miss Fitzhugh of New York Is Thrown Over Philadelphia Railroad Bridge.

DRIVEN BY SON OF HOSTESS

She Had Just Returned from England, Where She Had Entertained American Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—Miss Venita Fitzhugh, 24 years old, a New York actress who only recently returned from England after spending six months there entertaining American soldiers, was killed at 4 o'clock this morning when she was flung from an automobile over the Walnut Street Bridge to the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The machine in which she was a passenger skidded sharply on the down grade at Thirtieth and Walnut Streets when the driver, William A. Clader, a public accountant, tried to turn out to pass another machine. Before he could right the car it had ascended the curb and crashed into the heavy iron guard rail of the bridge, bending it with the force of the blow.

The impact hurled Miss Fitzhugh out of the machine and over the side of the bridge. She was picked up dead with her skull fractured and her neck broken by Clader, Edward J. McGonigle of 6,013 Chestnut Street, also a passenger in the machine, and Patrolman Sisk, who saw the accident from a passing trolley car.

Clader, with whose mother Miss Fitzhugh had been spending the holidays, was arrested and held, pending action by the Coroner.

Miss Fitzhugh was born in St. Louis. Her grandfather, the late Colonel Fitzhugh, was a cousin of Fitzhugh Lee. She was educated in a convent, but went on the stage soon after leaving the institution.

Miss Venita Fitzhugh first attained prominence on the stage when she sang the rôle of Mariposa Gilroy in the Knickerbocker Theatre performance of "The Marriage Market," in 1913. She had understudied Kitty Gordon's rôle in "The Enchantress," and also appeared in "All Aboard." In 1917 she was with Anna Held in "Follow Me."

DENY SEPARATE PEACE HELP

Danes Say They Never Worked with Germany to Detach Russia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Diplomatic advices from Copenhagen today stated that the Danish Foreign Office has authorized a declaration that Denmark did not at any time during the world war lend assistance to Germany in making a separate peace with Russia.

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the former German Imperial Chancellor, in a recent statement dealing with Germany's efforts to make peace with Russia in 1915, mentioned a mission to Petrograd by N. H. Andersen, Danish Counselor of State. According to the advices just received in Washington the Danish Foreign Ministry has taken occasion to point out that the work of State Counselor Andersen during the war was carried on solely in the interest of Denmark and that his efforts were undertaken in full accord with the Foreign Office. The Foreign Ministry asserts that his efforts did not at any time include an endeavor to assist Germany in any way to bring about a separate peace with Russia.

Andersen is the President of the East Asiatic Company of Copenhagen. He is said to have been one of the few men in Europe who, during the war, could go to Berlin or to Downing Street and remain equally acceptable to officials at both places. After the close of the war Andersen was decorated by the British Government with the Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

QUITS AFTER EIGHT TERMS.

Dr. E. L. Brush Succeeded by E. L. Kincaid as Mayor of Mt. Vernon.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Jan. 1.—After serving eight terms as Mayor, Dr. Edward F. Brush retired from office today. He is over 70 years old.

Mayor Brush turned over the keys of the city to Elmer L. Kincaid, his successor, at the City Hall. Mr. Kincaid at one time was a Post Office Inspector, and was elected on the Republican ticket at the last election by a big majority over Albert F. Geschledt, Democrat.

Reveller's Bullet Kills Musician.

Charles Lochington, a clarinet player at Loew's Palace Theatre, in East New York Avenue, was found dead early yesterday on the sidewalk near his home at 1,833 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. He had been shot through the back of the head. His money and watch had not been taken. The police believe he was struck by a stray bullet fired in celebrating the arrival of the New Year. He was 60 years old.

SCIENCE GAINING IN ATTACK ON CANCER

Dr. Flexner Also Reports Dr. Noguchi Working on Yellow Fever Serum.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 1.—Science has not discovered a preventive of epidemic diseases, but a serum is being formulated that may eradicate yellow fever, according to delegates attending the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in session here.

Delegates warned against influenza, spinal meningitis, and infantile paralysis. These diseases have not been wiped out, but are having "a recess," delegates asserted.

Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, President of the Association, explained that scientists were progressing in their fight on cancer, saying that medical research "gradually was getting into a position of strategic superiority" in its attack on this malady.

"It seems possible that yellow fever may be the first disease to be eradicated," he continued. "It is insect-borne by a particular kind of mosquito. Dr. Noguchi, a Japanese scientist, is working on a serum that may rid the human race of this affliction."

Many Notables at Osler Funeral.

OXFORD, Eng., Jan. 1 (via Montreal)—Christ Church Cathedral was crowded today at the funeral services for Sir William Osler. The entire medical faculty of Oxford University was present, as were many other representative men of Oxford and several leaders of the medical profession in London.

Let Every Business Resolve

TO KEEP its accounts on a modern accounting basis.

To eliminate guesswork by always having on hand information of the status of its affairs.

To subject its books to a periodical audit by a staff of certified accountants on whose experience and judgment it can safely rely.

Not to delay until the end of the year the consideration of important tax matters, but to arrange its affairs throughout the year with an eye always on the final tax returns.

To make such business resolutions as these, and then call upon a recognized accountancy organization to help execute them.

DECLARES PREVOST SHOT BROWN IN AUTO

Mrs. Vester Dares Him, After His Rearrest, to Deny the Crime.

CONFRONTS HIM IN JAIL

Police Chief Says Friend of Widow Fails to Prove Whereabouts During Fatal Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT CLEMONS, Mich., Jan. 1.—Lloyd Prevost, friend of Ruth Prevost Brown, widow of J. Stanley Brown, whose murderer is still being sought, was arrested for the second time this morning and directly accused of the crime.

He was taken to the county jail, where Mrs. Beatrice Veska of Battle Creek, known to the soldiers at Camp Custer as the "camp vamp," acknowledged friend of Brown, and a few days ago arrested on a warrant charging her with the murder, charged him to his face with shooting Brown.

"You killed Brown," she exclaimed. "You daren't look me in the eye and deny it."

Prevost never moved a muscle.

"Do you think any girl had the nerve to do this thing?" she insisted.

Prevost still remained silent.

Allan Straight, Chief of Police, asserted today that Brown was known to have expostulated with Prevost because of the latter's attentions to Mrs. Brown. "The last minute Brown was seen alive," said the Chief, "was just before 10 o'clock the night of his death. He said he was going to meet Lloyd Prevost, to ride to Utica along the very road on which less than an hour later he was shot to death in his automobile.

"At 9:30 Prevost says he walked along the busiest street of the town, in which he was born, and in which he knows every second person, turned over the river bridge and walked a block to the Edison Hotel. Then he says he went into the hotel and up to his and Brown's room and went to bed, departing for work in the morning. Yet he has been unable to produce a single person among all his friends in Mount Clemens who saw him walking along Gratiot Avenue and over to his hotel.

"He walked three blocks apparently at a busy time of the night, and no one saw him. Nor is he able to produce any one who saw him enter the hotel and go upstairs to his room.

"The best his landlady can do for him is to say that she heard a noise as of some one going upstairs. There are eight or nine hours in the life of Lloyd Prevost unaccounted for by a single witness, and unfortunately for him, these hours are the ones that cover the murder of Stanley Brown."

James D. Carpenter, Jr., Resigns.

James D. Carpenter, Jr., who has been a United States Commissioner and Deputy Clerk in Admiralty in Jersey City for the last ten years, has resigned, the resignation taking effect Dec. 31. Inadequate compensation for the duties of the office was the reason given by Mr. Carpenter for his resignation. He will devote his entire time to the practice of law.

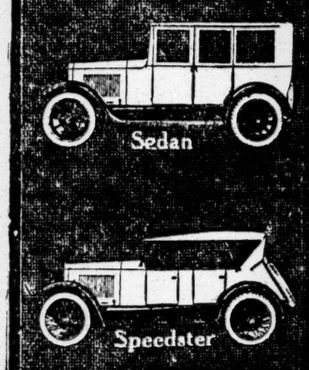
Velie



See the Authoritative Style at the Show

THE most talked-of cars of all motordom! The first Authoritative Example of the new style for 1920.

Five Velie Models are shown in a beautiful harmony of symmetrical, mirror-like planes.

Closed cars cushioned in mohair velvet. Sport Model and Roadster with the snap and vim long desired. Touring Car replete with new features.

Whatever your need for family or individual use, you will find it in the New Velie Line.

The new engine has made a sensation. Burns low-grade fuel perfectly—reduces running cost—has silent, velvety power at all speeds. Big crankshaft held firmly in four bearings—bronze-backed bearings everywhere. See it at the show.

Extra!—A Lower Priced Velie Six—Extra!
A new Velie 5-passenger Six, smaller and lower priced, an astonishing embodiment of Velie quality, will be exhibited for the first time. See it.

Guaranteed $45, $50, $55, $60 Values

Next week ends the first phase of the most ambitious undertaking of its kind ever attempted in New York—the distribution of a million dollars' worth of merchandise in the space of a few weeks—in a series of drives of short duration. The success of the venture has been such that fifty active salesmen for five consecutive days have been literally besieged by buyers to be waited upon.

Forty famous nationally advertised brands are embraced in this mighty movement.

This sale of 3000 Suits and Overcoats at $35 each is first of this momentous series of big events, and it will come to a close next week. They are guaranteed $45, $50, $55 and $60 values. Money refunded if you are dissatisfied in the slightest particular whatever. All styles from conservative to the very extreme. All colors, all fabrics, all sizes. Here is your opportunity. Don't miss it.
